FAME GROWS

That the fame of the Pendleton Round-Up is still growing is evidenced by the fact that the St. Helens' Mist, one of the leading country papers on the Columbia river below Portland, is now putting on a contest and proposes to send six young ladies here this fall as its guests.

The territory has been divided into six districts and there have been 6 candidates entered for the first district, 10 for the second, 13 for the third, three for the fourth, one for the fifth and five for the sixth, at the last notice on the first of the month. The Mist is advertising the contest under heavy headlines on the front page, and among other things uses this very complimentary sentence: "There is no greater show of its kind on earth." The arrangements have all been made, a box seat reserved in the grand stand and reservations made at one of the leading hotels.

This is good advertising for the Round-Up, as well as showing enterprise on the part of the publisher, and from the contestants already entered, bids fair to be one of profit for the journal. Livewire, Pendleton, Ore.

RINGLING BROS. CIRCUS

Ringling Brothers' Circus and newly added $500,000 spectacle of "Joan of Arc" will exhibit in Portland Aug. 21 and 22. The spectacle in itself is an attraction that should bring thousands of visitors from the surrounding country. It is beyond question the greatest production of its kind ever seen in America.

The world's most skillful scenic artists, costumers, property makers, chorus directors and stage managers were engaged to mount the production. A stage bigger than a hundred ordinary theatres was built and made portable so that it can be conveyed from town to town and erected each morning in the main tent. Thus the circus proprietors have made it possible for those who live in contributory towns as well as in the large cities to see this magnificent wordless play with its cast of 1200 characters, a ballet of 300 dancing girls, a grand opera of 400 voices, 600 horses and a train load of special scenery, costumes, properties and mechanical devices for producing such stage effects as thunder, lightning, storms, fires and the sound of battle.

In the old market place of Rouen, France, there now stands a monument by which the French of today have sought to redeem their part in the execution of Joan of Arc, who on May 30, 1431 was burned to death on the false charge of heresy, after having delivered her country from the English and having restored the crown to Charles VII. History records but the meager facts of this strange heroine of eighteen years ago, who led the armies of France victorious through English invasion, and then, deserted by all, even the indolent monarch whom she preserved, died by the cruelest torture known with the name of the master upon her lips. Unsung in poetry, the name of this simple peasant girl has come down through the ages to be revered as that of a saint, and whose wonderful powers and whose bravery are verily believed to have been of divine inspiration.

On the triumphant incidents, the victorious engagements, the final defeat of the English armies, and the coronation of Charles VII, all achieved by the frail Maid of Orleans, has been founded the inspiring spectacle which gives Ringling Brothers' circus a new significance and makes an attraction such as the world in searching for amusement has never before found. The regular circus program is more than ever attractive. Its company of 375 foreign artists, its grand menagerie and its new street parade will prove a great surprise to those who attend from this city. The event is one that should not be missed.
