SCAPOOSE TAXPAYER ANSWERS

LETTER OF LAST WEEK

In your last week's issue I noticed the caption "A Thrilling Adventure," and the sub title, "Scappoose in the throes of excitement over robbery," and I wondered if I had been asleep that I had not heard about it. But as I read down through the half column or more of your valuable front page it began to dawn on my dull mind why your correspondent was trying to enlarge a mole hole into a mountain. With such a very great effort he would have delivered a good sound argument in favor of incorporating our little village, so that we might have a marshal to look after our hoodlum boys. Great, wasn't it? Great in its premises and wonderful in its conclusions. Scappoose will probably incorporate immediately if not instant. It is true that we do have a few hoodlum boys in our town. It would be far better for the peace and quiet of some of our staid citizens if the parents of these boys would keep them off the streets both day and night. I mean as loafers around the stores, the pool room and the street corners. But would incorporation cure the evil? Would incorporation even give us a marshal? It takes money to pay a marshal's salary. Who is going to pay it? Look at the other small towns in our own county. Take Vernonia, for example. It has been incorporated for the past 20 or 25 years and by living up to the limit on its tax rolls it yields just enough for ordinary police and city expenses. Nothing for a marshal and nothing for street improvements. It has one well worked, well graded street through it, but this work was done by the county and not by the city. Scappoose has as much. Look at Houlton! The writer heard a resident taxpayer of Houlton say during our campaign for incorporation that Houlton had no marshal, the mayor did what marshal's work was needed to be done, that the city could not afford to pay a marshal's regular salary. What? And Houlton has three saloons, bringing in at least $1200 a year, and levied last year a 10-mill tax on its taxable property. This is what the records show. It is true Scappoose has had a bit of hoodlumism the past year, but would incorporation get rid of it? With incorporation as your correspondent and his friends who tried to get it last summer want it, that is, in order to get saloons here, it would only bring more hoodlumism. Oh, but Mr. Taxpayer will hold up his hands in holy horror and say the saloon was not an issue last summer. Perhaps it was not openly. But it was all the same the big issue on both sides and the sequel is proving it. The breweries were to pay the expenses for the election. At least that was the understanding and after the election the bills were gathered up and presented. But what did Mr. Breweryman say? Just this and nothing more: "You did not deliver the goods." So, Nor will they soon. If they think they can let them put up the money for another survey and election expenses, get up their petition and bring it before the voters again. The anti's are ready for the fray. The "hens" would like to give them another good little peck. Either put up or shut up. Come out in the open.

Another Taxpayer.
