Pat Kelley of Warren, was in the county seat Monday. While in the city he made the Mist office a pleasant call and got acquainted. Mr. Kelley has one of the finest little ranches in the county, has it well improved and up in good shape. His potato crop, he says, is extra fine, and that he has the bean wonder of the state. Some time ago some one brought over from Ireland a small quantity of beans, getting a few of them at the time, Mr. Kelley planted some, more for curiosity, but he comes to find that they make a wonderful growth and yield in this section. The vines are now five feet tall, with a majority of the pods eight and nine inches long, with the bean as large as the end of one's thumb. He contemplates planting a good acreage of them another season. Mr. Kelley has lived in this section for the past twenty-five years. By careful investing and hard labor he has accumulated enough of this world's goods that he can enjoy the balance of his days. A good many years ago he purchased a twenty acre ranch for $500 cash. Only a short time ago this same piece of land brought $4400 on the market. What will the next few years bring to Columbia county when she has made such strides in the past. Mr. Kelley said it was impossible to keep house without the Mist, and renewed his subscription for another year.

Blackberries are fast ripening these days and as one looks from their window tin pails are swinging of the arms of men, women and children. Nature is indeed generous in her supply of wild fruit and the high cost of living, size of boxes or so many berries to a box is not on her schedule. Nature is both beautiful and wonderful and no thought of self enters into her plans.

Where is Your Grain?

Suppose by hard work you had got together a bushel of very fine, very rare, very costly grain. You wouldn't put it in an old stove—you wouldn't hide it in some out-of-the-way place. Rats, mice or birds might destroy it—insects make it worthless—fire destroy it—servants steal it. You would keep that costly grain in a safe place, so that you could plant it and get a bounteous harvest. Why not use the same care with your hard-earned dollars. Keep them at the Columbia County Bank. We watch your dollars for you all the time and you can get them at any time. We are a Bank of Personal Service.
