

INDUSTRIAL REVIEW

The Snake River Mining Company opened its new mill and from all reports is getting good results. The Bay is getting to be quite shipbuilding center. Three large ships are now on the ways at the Bend shipyards. The farmers in the vicinity of McCall plan to have a co-operative berry and fruit drying plant. The mill farmers and business men have been to Eugene investigating plant established in the university. Since the opening of the Willamette-Pacific railroad, fishermen in the Umpqua river region have been shipping large shipments of fresh fish to New York. The cranberry marshes of Clatsop county are becoming one of the chief industries of that county. More than 100 acres are in cultivation, and the growers expect to realize good returns on their products. At Junction City a new sawmill is being built. Their first contract is for $50,000 railroad ties, which will be used on the Oregon Electric Railway Company's lines. The legislature has voted $20,000 bonds for aid in the construction of the short road which is being built in central Oregon. Klamath Falls has voted $300,000 on this same project. The Southern Pacific plans to have the electrification of its line from Whithson to Corvallis completed by January 1, 1917. At Dallas the J. K. Armsby Company, of Chicago, has a million pounds of prunes waiting for cars to make shipments to eastern points. The Pendleton Woolen Mills have booked an order for $20,000 worth of marching uniforms. Another shipbuilding concern for Oregon. Capital has been enlisted to build a yard at Florence. The coal mines near Henryville have been leased, and from now on will be operated. Portland will have another car assembling plant, which will be located on the east side. Lincoln county contemplates building a bridge across the Yaquina river near the head of Yaquina bay. By the purchase of 1,000,000 Chinook salmon eggs, Montana fish commissioners expect to transform that sea-going variety of fish into land-locked salmon. Half of the purchase will be planted in Flathead lake and the other 500,000 will be taken to the Anaconda hatchery. "Always traue in your home town Ask Dick; he knows The Toggery."

There is every reason to believe that the price of butter will continue to rise, according to C. E. McNeill, president of the Chicago Butter and Egg Board. Mr. McNeill asserted that the board price probably will be 50 cents a pound before the first of the year.
"The storage houses were cleared when this season began," he said, "and the demand has been heavy. War orders for butter itself, for condensed milk and cheese, are partly responsible for the increased demand."
