LIFE IN AMERICAN NAVY

It is Not All Drill and Drudgery for the Enlisted Man.

"All the world loves the sailor," but how few know and understand him

The American people have very little knowledge of the bluejackets 52 who man the units 53 their professional zeal and enthusitheir unswerving devotion to fing and country

"Our brave men of the sea," says Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the United States navy, "should be better known to the American public. All the people of this great republic should be made thoroughly acquainted with the human element of the navy, not merely to popularize it, for the navy is popular in a wague, impersonal manner, but to have our citizens know more of what the navy really means to the men who compose it."

At 5:30 a. m. the bugler sounds the reveille, accompanied by a chorus of bootswains' pipes with the added admonition, "Up all hammocks!" "Shake a leg!" etc. The cooks are astir much earlier, for coffee must be served the crew. Then, after a short smoke, comes "Scrub and wash clothest

Then all hands clean ship. After the ship is cleaned breakfast served, and the bluejacket is usuar self is that of recreation and ally ready for it. Potatoes, ham and eggs, bread, butter and coffee constituto a sample breakfast menu, changed each day.

> After breakfast comes an hour for smoking and for relaxation, to don the uniform of the day and get ready for inspection at 9:30.

From that time until the dinner hour, 11:30, the time is spent at drill, and after dinner more drill. There are big gun drills, boat drills (with both oars and sails), signaling, small arms practice, collision drill, fire quarters, abandon ship, clearing ship for action and at night searchlight drills. These drills are inter-This is the one form of spersed with special duty, such as "Sharity" that I want to oppose with

Rarely are the men engaged upon books; one is for fuel, and the other the same task two days in succession, so the sailor's life has little chance
