

SIZE DOESN'T COUNT

16-Year-Old English Boy Tells How He "Got" His First Hun

Tommy Kehoe, a 16-year-old English boy tells how he "got" his first Hun. Not a hundred feet away they were when our lads were jumping to the parapet to meet them with their bayonets. I made a leap for the top of the ladder, grabbed it, missed and slipped back. Somebody reached out a hand and pulled me up. Almost on us they were. Oh, never in my worst dreams—and I've had many a bad one since then—have I seen a more dreadful sight than that. They came at us out of the dark like fiends from another world, like the pictures I've seen of men from Mars; for their heads were covered with the most evil looking masks that anybody could imagine, masks with huge round eyes and long, pig-like snouts. Shells were bursting above them, machine guns were tearing through their ranks and their masks were white and glistening in the light of the rockets. Many a time I had thought of what war would be like, but never had I thought I should look on such a sight as that.

"Fight or die, Tommy Kehoe! Fight or die!" That's what I told myself as I crouched in front of the sand bags, with my bayonet ready for them. Whooping big men they were, head and shoulders above me. But as I waited there a thought flashed through me of the Bantam regiment, little fellows scarcely bigger than I, who had made good against even those giant Prussians. Size didn't count behind a bayonet. It was quickness that counted. I was sure of it. If I didn't then it was all over with me.

Even then, when they were almost up to us, how the guns were mowing them down! It looked as if none could be left in a moment or two. But those that didn't fall came on like madmen and poured through the lanes where the big guns had leveled our wires.

One—he was a six-footer if he was an inch—ran straight for me with his bayonet. I crouched and thrust at him—thrust upward. His bayonet went over my shoulder. He staggered and fell over my gun. I had got him! I had got him! In the stomach! "Was lucky for me there was no time to think over it or to stand there gazing at him—the dead Hun hanging over my gun with his mask- ed head almost touching me—for it was horrible. For a second or two I turned dizzy and sick. But it was fight again or die. I jerked my rifle back and stumbled over the dead man as he flopped to the ground.

"Make for their stomachs, Tommy Kehoe. Make for their stomachs!" I told myself. "Size don't count."

THE NAVY AND THE FOURTH LOAN

The United States Navy subscribed to $45,218,450 of the Fourth Loan. Of this sum nearly $9,000,000 was subscribed by the officers and sailors on duty on our ships in the war zones. Mrs. George Dewey, the widow of the great admiral, had her subscription to the loan credited to the navy.

The navy's subscription to the Fourth Loan is $10,000,000 more than its subscription to the First, Second and Third Loans combined and between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 more than its assigned quota. The navy did its duty in the fighting zones. The navy is doing its part in the fighting and in the financing of the nation, and going "over the top" in both.

It may be relied on, too, that the navy is going to keep its bonds. Our navy never does its duty only halfway. No feature of the Fourth Loan is more inspiring than the heavy subscription of the officers and men of the American navy.

OPENING OF THE DARDANELLES

With the reopening of the Dardanelles will begin a flow of commerce which will not only benefit the countries directly concerned, but relieve materially the pressure on shipping. The deficiency in tonnage serious enough in any case, has been aggravated by the cutting off of the direct line of supply for many bulky and essential articles of commerce. Before the war Great Britain was drawing about two-thirds of its imported foodstuffs from the Black Sea basin. This trade can not at once be resumed, because of the food shortage in Europe, but the reopening of free navigation on the Black sea and the rivers flowing into it will greatly accelerate the redistribution of grain for the relief of famine, and will provide the articles of exchange needed in the regions where it is still abundant.—Springfield Republican.

YANKS HAVE CLEAN TEETH

The American doughboy cleans his teeth more often than the soldier of any other army. Like civilians, soldiers try to clean their teeth in the morning before breakfast. It is not an unusual sight to see a group of doughboys lined up near a well, or pump, brushing their teeth and gazing skyward at the night bombing aeroplanes sailing over the lines. The American commissaries never can keep enough tooth brushes in stock to meet the demands of the soldiers.

POOR KAISER BILL!

He Had His Falls, Old Kaiser Bill, Of Potsdam Hill, He Never Woz, And never will. They've Kicked Poor Bill, Of Potsdam Hill, Clean off His Throne, Oh, Bitter Pill! So Here's to Bill, Of Potsdam Hill, With All His Falls, We Hate Him Still.

RECIPES

Pickled Grapes
Fill a jar with alternate layers of sugar and bunches of nice grapes, just ripe and freshly gathered; fill one-third full of good cold vinegar and cover tightly.

Celery and Egg Sandwiches
One cup chopped celery, one hard boiled egg, putting both through the finest cutter of the food chopper; add mayonnaise, a little salt if necessary. Spread between thin slices of brown bread.

Stuffing for Roast Pork
Use two cups of fine bread crumbs, three tablespoons of fat, a large apple peeled, cored and chopped and a small onion chopped with a little minced parsley, pepper and salt to season and milk to moisten.

Citron Preserves
Pare off the rind, remove seeds and cut citron into thin slices. Measure the citron, put in porcelain-lined preserving kettle, cover with water and boil for one hour. Remove citron and add as much sugar as there was fruit to the liquid and boil until the syrup is thick. Replace the citron, add a few slices of lemon and boil about one-half hour longer.

Cheese Fondue
Put one-half cupful of crumbs of warbread and two tablespoonfuls of butter substitute into bowl. Pour over them one-half cupful of boiling milk and one-half cupful of grated cheese, two yolks of eggs, salt, pepper and paprika to taste. Mix well, then add the stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Pour the mixture into a greased fireproof dish, sprinkle over a little grated cheese and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Serve hot.

Honey Custard
Scald one pint of milk in a double boiler and stir into the hot milk one-quarter cupful of strained honey, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt and one-half teaspoonful of vanilla. Beat two eggs thoroughly and pour the hot custard slowly over them. Return the mixture to boiler and cook until slightly thickened. Serve with fresh sponge cake. If a thicker custard is desired, dissolve one tablespoonful of corn starch in a little cold milk and add when custard is cooking.

Apple Salad
Beat half a cupful of double cream, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt until firm throughout. Cook these apples, cored and pared, in a syrup of equal measure of sugar and water, with two or three cloves and an inch of stick cinnamon, and set aside to become thoroughly chilled. Chop fine four Maraschino or candied cherries and eight or 10 pecan nut meats or blanched almonds. Wash three small heads of lettuce, remove the outer leaves and cut the stalks so that the heads will stand level. Place the lettuce on plates, with an apple in the center of each. Mix the nuts and cherries through the cream and pour it over the apples.

THE ROAD TO WEALTH

A waggish friend of the editor who saw a chance to "rub it in" a trifle sends the following clipping, but does not explain how, if an editor has been careless in selecting his uncles, the situation is to be remedied. The clipping is headed, "How Editors Get Rich," and is as follows: "A man tells of a country editor who started out poor 20 years ago and has retired with the comfortable fortune of $50,000. This money was acquired through industry, economy, conscientious efforts to give full value, indomitable perseverance, and the death of an uncle who left the editor $49,999.50.—Kansas City Times."

For a limited time only the subscription price of the Mist is being held at $1.50 per year.

Ike always thought

—a man was foolish to buy plug of the Gravely class when he could get a big plug of ordinary tobacco for the same money. But one day Bill gave him a chew of Gravely—just two or three small squares. Then Ike got the pure, satisfying Gravely taste. It lasted so long, you can't tell him nowadays that it costs him anything extra to chew Real Gravely.

It goes further—that's why you can get the good taste of this class of tobacco without extra cost
