WHAT CANADA AND BRITAIN HAVE DONE

Generous appreciation is shown in the British press of the part the overseas dominions have taken in the war. Recently London celebrated the fourth anniversary of the arrival in England of the first Canadian contingent, and the London Times seized the opportunity to present Canada's record, and it is indeed a notable one when we consider how small a population Canada has, just a little more than seven million, all told. The Times tabulates Canada's contributions thus:

Regular Canadian troops at outbreak of war	3,000
Number of first contingent Canadian soldiers sent overseas up to Sept. 1, 1918.	33,000
Troops in training	400,000
Canadian soldiers killed in action	60,000
Casualties, over	50,000
Wounded returned from the front	175,000
Returned to Canada	40,000
Number who have received decorations	50,000
Awarded the Victoria Cross	10,000

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

A few pieces of pieplant stewed with pears will improve their flavor.

Save papers that loaves of bread are wrapped in and use them to line lunch boxes.

If cakes or cookies are put into a stone jar while they are still hot, they will keep soft and fresh much longer.

If oatmeal is soaked over night in cold water it can be cooked in less time in the morning.

Put coffee grounds around your potted plants and see hay they help retain the moisture. It makes them grow.

Equal parts of white cornmeal and wheat flour may be used to roll fish and meats in instead of using all flour.

When making muffins, if you add the egg last, one egg will be as good as two put in the mixture at the beginning.

Put as many pounds of corn syrup over your fruit when making preserves as you would sugar. Let stand over night and cook next morning.

When a cake of soap is worn nearly thin enough to break stick it to the new cake by putting both in quite warm water, then press firmly together. When cold it will be one solid cake.

Empty ink bottles are good receptacles for flower seeds, or garden seeds, too, where there is no great quantity. Do not seal them air tight, however. If an ink bottle is filled about half full of shot it makes a good paper weight.

MISUNDERSTOOD

An itinerant preacher of Alabama was plodding along on his way to the home of one of the brethren, when a young man driving a team of mules hitched to a wagon, overtook him and invited him to ride. Gladly accepting, he was soon seated by the youth's side.

It so chanced that they were in the middle of the forest in a wild, lonely spot, when the preacher, thinking the opportunity too good to be lost, turned to the young man and abruptly asked:

"Young man, are you prepared to die?"

The youth had been eying the preacher suspiciously for some time, and now gave a whoop that would have been creditable to a Comanche, sprang from the wagon and disappeared as fast as his legs could carry him.—Everybody's.
