tion in America? What are the provisions of the Oregon co-operative laws? What are the duties, rights, privileges and liabilities of the directors and stockholders?...

With all these problems rightly solved, the co-operative movement in Oregon would be permanently advanced, say leading authorities. Most of them are in various stages of evolution and it is best to learn what has been done and telling what is still to do...

The co-operative conferences will be both for those who have partial solutions and for those who want the others' idea. The farmers are organizing sections for various agricultural districts of the state. Further information can be had from the county agents.

Poultry Diseases Spread

Warning that poultry diseases have spread rapidly throughout the country is sounded by the veterinary department of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Cholera pos is prevalent on the coast, and has lived up to its reputation for fatality. Tuberculosis is next in fatality, 50 per cent of all birds brought to the station for diagnosis being affected with this disease. White starches is mentioned third, with lice and ticks as its from which a large number of poultry suffer. Some of these troubles are more or less easily remedied by a small amount of preventive care.

HOMESEEKERS COMING TO OREGON IN JULY

July nineteenth will mark the date when the first trainload of homeseekers from the middle west will start from Omaha to Oregon, according to announcements made by the executive committee of the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce following receipt of a long telegram from William Hanley from Omaha. This date was selected by the heads of the agricultural department of the Union Pacific system at Omaha and confirmed here by the executive committee of the state chamber.

As a director of the state chamber is in Omaha with a hearing, colonization expert who is working with Union Pacific officials in grouping together homeseekers to be brought to Oregon in a 2000 agricultural department of the Union Pacific will swing its whole force into the drive to send settlers to Oregon, it was announced.

Following notification as to the results of the conference in Omaha Secretary Quayle of the state chamber sent out letters to each congressional organization of the state, urging them to prepare for the coming of the settlers, first by obtaining licenses of lands in four districts at prices based upon careful appraisal, and second, to form, if possible, a corporation or financing commission composed of the leading business men of the community, for the purpose of buying up these available lands on easy terms and long payments. The Crook county chamber of commerce was recently formed and is already at work preparing for the homeseekers. The Baker county chamber working on plans for taking care of settlers when they arrive in Baker.

"These communities are to be commended for the promptness with which they are meeting the situation, and I am certain that all other communities will do their share. The state chamber can only bring the settlers to Oregon. It is up to the individual districts to take care of them when they arrive and see that they are located where they can make good."

Many applications for admission to the special homeseekers' party are already on file from middle western farmers according to Secretary Quayle. A recent letter from Gary Indiana, stated that three representative citizens of a large colony of prospective settlers had been selected to join the party.
