Large numbers of farmers promised to come to Oregon on the September excursion, according to Henring, but when the actual date of departure drew near, only seven were able to complete their reservations

"Although we were not able to se cure a large party to come to Oregon this fall. I believe that the past summer's work in the Middle West will be of enormous benefit to Oregon, declared Secretary Quayle. "Heu ring personally interviewed more than 3000 prospective settlers and distributed more than 25,000 pieces of descriptive literature. This cannot fail to create a tremendous sentiment for Oregon so that when con ditions are more favorable, this state will undoubtedly receive hundreds of farmers as a result of this campaign." ----

Ripe Tomatoes For Winter

Ripe and perfectly sound tomators may be kept for winter use by put ting them carefully into a largstone jar and pouring over them very strong brine. Cover the ja tightly to keep out the air. When wanted for use, take out the requir ed number of tomatoes and soak 2 hours in cold water. They can be peeled and sliced and taste as they had just come off the vine.
