OREGON HENS ARE PRODUCTIVE

Demonstration Flocks Exceed Average of National Laying Contest.

Four thousand six hundred seven hens in the Oregon demonstration poultry flocks that are being supervised by H. E. Crosby, Extension poultry specialist, laid during the month of August a total of 65,899 eggs with an average production of 14.2 per hen.

The ten highest record flocks reported for August had a total of 2,911 hens which laid 33,544 eggs with an average production per hen of 16.68 eggs. The 300 hens in the high national egg-laying contest laid 4,499 eggs during August, an average of 14.99 eggs per hen.

The highest individual flock record for August was made by 300 single-combed White Leghorns owned by C. C. Starr, of Lane county. This flock laid a total of 6,911 eggs, with an average production per hen of 23.04 eggs.

BACK TO TOWN CRIER

How many residents of any small community have ever considered what might happen if there were no newspapers? Just previous to "Subscribe for Your Home Town Paper Week," which is observed the country over November 7-12, is a good time to recall the plight of Macon, Mo., not long ago, when fire put the Chronicle-Herald out of business for two weeks.

According to The Publishers' Auxiliary, the old town crier, relic of many years back, was yanked from his hiding place, dusted off, and put back on his job, with a jangling bell, a megaphone, and a fog-horn voice, only a little worse for long disuse.

It may have been a novelty for two weeks. But think of a community without printers' ink, compelled to get its announcements of auctions, sales, court sessions, births, marriages, deaths, epidemics of sickness, dog ordinances, board meetings, commencement, tax notices, advertisements of help and situations wanted, accidents, and the rest, through a shouted word like that of the ordinary train announcer in a city depot. The town crier was a romantic figure in his day, but few towns would like to return to his ministrations now.

When one thinks of the temporary plight of Macon, and that it might become the permanent handicap of many towns, it is well to think of supporting the local paper.

OREGON ATHLETES TO WITNESS GAME

University of Oregon, Eugene, November 10.—(Special.)—Close to a hundred old Oregon athletes are expected to participate in the annual parade of Oregon letter men which will be held just preliminary to the Oregon-A. C. game on November 19 on Hayward field, according to present plans of the "Order of the O," the organization of all undergraduate letter men.

The athletes will return for the annual Oregon homecoming and will parade onto the field immediately preceding the football game which will decide the state championship. They will have special seats on the sidelines of the field reserved for them. All will wear sweaters bearing the "O" which they won while participating in a sport at the University of Oregon.

Following the game the letter men will gather at a banquet at which the "Order of the O" will be hosts. Letters have been sent out inviting the athletes to join in the special homecoming celebration.
