

LIBERTY THEATRE

SUNDAY-MONDAY, NOV 20-21

"THE WOMAN GOD CHANGED"

With Seena Owen and E. K. Lincoln.

A story filled with thrills and appeals. This picture carries one from the crowded city to the Bahama Islands, where many tropical scenes of rare beauty were "shot."

One stunning moment of disillusionment—and a dating life shattered! Maddening jealousy, a fatal shot, and another moth of Broadway's lights fleeing from the law! Then far to the South, on a sun-kissed island washed by summer seas two lonely victims of a wreck—the woman who killed and fled; the man who was sent to bring her back. Is there anything bigger than law; bigger than duty; bigger than love? Come and see.

Comedy: "Love and Doughnuts." Pathe Review. (Continuous Performance from 2 to 11.)

TUESDAY-WEDNESDAY, NOV. 22-23.

"THE BROKEN GATE"

Starring Bessie Barriscale.

The mother theme is one that always strikes home. Never was there given a more powerful illustration of mother love and all that it can mean than in this wonderful photodrama. It tells of the struggles of a brave little woman who for 20 years had worked and scrimped and saved in order that she might give her nameless son the comforts of life. "The Broken Gate" has strength in its characterization and beauty in its theme. Pathe Comedy and Review.

THURSDAY, NOV. 24 (THANKSGIVING.)

"QUO VADIS"

"Whither Goest Thou?"

Two performances Thanksgiving afternoon, 2 and 4 o'clock; Evening, 7:15 and 9:00. (See special announcements)

FRIDAY, NOV. 25

"THE NEW YORK IDEA"

With Alice Brady.

A sparkling comedy of marriage and divorce. There is a lot of amusement and a deal of food for thought in the play. It's clever and snappy from the word "go." A brilliant satire on modern society.

Comedy: "Too Good to Be True."

SATURDAY, NOV. 26.

"SKY-EYE"

A cyclonic air romance of death-defying escapes. Thrills enough to last a life-time. "Sky Eye" holds you breathless as you watch the jump from a plane to a rushing train—and other equally dangerous stunts. This is the first picture in which the greater part of the action is laid in the clouds. And it's some action.

Comedy: "Edgar, The Explorer."

International News.

MIST MISTINGS

Mrs. J. H. LeGrand is here for a visit to her sister, Mrs. William Russell.

Mrs. Edwin Ross was a Portland visitor Wednesday, the guest of friends.

Miss Mary Ellen Gill celebrated the first anniversary of her birth on Wednesday afternoon. A number of the friends of Miss Gill and her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gill, called during the afternoon to extend congratulations to the young lady and wish her "many happy returns of the day."

The ladies of the Congregational church will hold their annual Xmas sale and supper, Saturday, November 19. They have a beautiful line of sheets and pillow slips, dresser scarfs, tea sets, aprons, infant's clothes, etc. The sale will begin at 2 p. m. and the supper at 5:30 and will be held in the social hall of the Congregational church, November 19. The annual union Thanksgiving service will be held in the Congregational church next Thursday morning. The service will begin at 10 o'clock and close promptly at 11 o'clock, an arrangement which will allow ample time for completing preparations for that Thanksgiving dinner. The sermon will be preached by Rev. S. Darlow Johnson.

Frank W. Keating is one of the most impatient men in St. Helens, for he is anxiously awaiting the arrival of Mrs. Keating and Frank, Jr., who have been visiting relatives in Minneapolis and who are expected to arrive in St. Helens Sunday morning. Mr. Keating recently arrived in St. Helens, coming from Kennewick, Washington, and is employed in the mechanical department of the Mist. He was so favorably impressed with St. Helens that as soon as he could secure a house, he wired for his wife and son to join him here.

CARD OF THANKS.
Words cannot express my thanks and appreciation of the many kind acts of friends and acquaintances at the time of my recent bereavement. Especially do I wish to thank those who aided in the recovery of the body of my husband and to the Masonic lodge members who did everything in their power to aid me.
MRS. GOLDEN STARR SCOTT.

HUGHES' PROPOSAL PLEASES CITIZENS

of State Hughes at the Arms Conference. The desire of the United States for a World's peace cannot be doubted and Mr. Hughes has expressed the sentiment of millions of people living in the United States who will stand solidly back of him. It was a masterful stroke of diplomacy—the essence of which was to promulgate plans for the peace of the world and to make wars impossible. America has spoken and its voice has been heard around the world.

J. W. Allen: Instead of junking what we have, better keep it for police duty and instead of selling these vessels which cost us hundreds of millions of dollars, for just about nothing, keep them in a proper harbor and keep the vessels under the jurisdiction of the several powers.

Law A. Cates: Although the successful consummation of Mr. Hughes' plan for arms limitation must necessarily quite seriously affect the Pacific Coast, through the elimination of the proposed submarine base at the mouth of the Columbia and the immediate withdrawal of the Navy's other extensive plans for increased protection to this sunset land of opportunity, like all good Americans I can but give hearty endorsement and approval to the scheme, firmly believing that it will not only relieve overtaxed peoples of a considerable financial burden but also will have a tendency to create harmony and good will between the nations of the earth that could be accomplished through no other means. The American people have been subjected to innumerable surprises since the birth of their nation, but the one "sprung" by Mr. Hughes will go thundering down the ages as the peer of all its predecessors.

J. H. Wellington: I believe in an army and naval reserve, not so much as to training men to fight, but to give them a thorough training both physically and mentally. The proposal of the American government as outlined by Mr. Hughes meets with my hearty approval and I believe it will lead the way to a permanent peace between the nations.

J. H. Thatcher: If the proposal of Mr. Hughes is accepted by the representatives of the several governments represented at the conference, history will record it as a masterful diplomatic move unequalled in the annals of diplomatic conferences.

Martin White: It was one of the most wonderful strokes of diplomacy in the history of diplomatic conferences and Harding and Hughes and their advisory council have accomplished more in one half hour than was accomplished during the several months' session of the so-called League of Nations. Hughes offered a concrete proposition and I have no doubt that it will be adopted, with possibly some modifications, but it will accomplish the purpose for which the conference was called.

J. W. Day: My ideas on the disarmament conference are: I notice, with concern, that Borah who crystallizes public sentiment for the limitation of armaments and who forced the old guard into action, real or simulated, is not one of the delegates. I also note that the monotony of the paid press has increased in pitch from pinnaculo to a finisette, an octave at least, above high C. It will be well for the people not to be misled by the headlines, but to insist upon something more substantial than material froth; and then continue to insist. Until the exploitation of Shantung, the Saar Basin, upper Silesia, Danzig, Mesopotamia, Syria, Egypt, etc., ceases, we may as well meditate on the symmetry of a peel'd onion as to expect permanent peace.

Geo. H. Shinn: The armament conference may postpone but cannot permanently prevent war. Wilson Dewey entered Manila bay and ran up the American flag the United States at once became an imperial world power and as a consequence must at some time either fight for the retention of the Philippines or voluntarily renounce all control over them. The ultimate conflict between the white and yellow race seems to be inevitable. The only apparent way to prevent it seems to be for the white race to recognize a Monroe doctrine of Asia for the Asiatics. But judging future by past history and considering human nature, the United States will never give up actual control over the Philippines although independence under a protectorate may be granted and the white race will never concede Asia to the Asiatics, as business, big and little, is reaching out for the trade and dominance of Asia. This will ultimately lead to war between some, if not all, the nations of the earth. The law of the jungle has ever been the rule of nations as well as individual life in all ages of the world and ever will be until the so-called Christian peoples of the earth abide by the precepts of Christ and the Asiatics by those of Suddartha. Both the Christian and the Buddhist religions are religions of peace, but are only actually followed and practiced by a few isolated individuals of each creed, while the majority of their pretended followers are governed by the law of the jungle in both individual and national life. Dollar diplomacy rules the world instead of peace on earth, good will to men, and it is a matter of time before the final struggle will have to be made over even unto the narrow and the unjust course we can hope for universal peace.

Joseph P. Clancy: The proposition made by secretary Hughes at the conference of nations fell among those smiling, dilatory diplomats as unexpectedly as the German Bertha's huge projectiles came plunging into the capitol of France. What that proposition indicates on our part and what the ultimate disposal of it might be, may best be judged by recalling some international data. Perhaps the greatest military strategist who ever lived, Napoleon, declared that the thing most needed to wage successful warfare is money, money and more money. There are few that want conviction on this point. And the fact that must have stunned the foreign delegates into such a blank astonishment is that it was the richest nation in the world which stood up before them and proposed a disarmament so drastic. America's wealth is almost twice as great as that of all the other nations at the conference combined. We could build ten ships to their one. The plan of Mr. Hughes is at least sincere. What final action will the nations take? This is the question which agitates us all. A war has been predicted in which America, Japan and Great Britain are to be involved, we have heard it from the lips of statesmen who are by no means alarmists. But the attitude of the representatives from England and from Japan is at the present moment truly calculated to ally suspicion. On the other hand, however, the Japanese, in spite of large World-War debts, are feverishly spending 45 per cent of their yearly national income on armament alone; whereas, when Germany considered herself prepared to conquer the whole world she was spending only 31 per cent of her income on the armament, equipment, upkeep and provisioning of all her armies and navies. We all hope, at least, that the Japanese will accept the American plan without subterfuge.

Mrs. Oswald Deering visited with friends in Portland Wednesday.
