COUNCIL ENDORSES CLEAN-UP DAY

Jaloff would not pay the city license fee, a storm broke. Logan contends that Jaloff does not have to pay the license or franchise fee to St. Helens or other towns on account of a law passed at the special session of the legislature which puts the business under state control. City Attorney Day expressed an opinion to the contrary. Jaloff's franchise in this city has expired and the mayor suggested that he be notified to attend the meeting of the council next Monday night and discuss the matter. Councilman Barnett thought this unnecessary. "If the franchise has expired and Jaloff has been notified, as he has, he has no right to use these streets for his business and I am in favor of arresting his drivers as fast as they come to town," Barnett said. "That's Jake with me," echoed McDonald, and the mayor said, "It's Jake with me also, only I believe we should give him an opportunity to be heard." The matter was about to be voted upon when Mr. Day suggested that while Jaloff had received fair notice, "when you go to law you want to be more than fair," and he suggested that the council wait until next Monday before taking any drastic action and Councilman Flynn moved that Jaloff be notified to meet with the council on Monday evening, May 15 and if he did not, the drivers of his stages would be arrested for violation of the city ordinance. The motion was seconded and carried. Jinnymen Make Protest. The real excitement of the evening was when the recorder reported that H. H. Bunting and H. J. Southard who operate for hire cars, refused to pay their quarterly license fees. In explanation of this action, Bunting said that he had paid a license for the purpose of securing protection from unlicensed jitneys. Such protection, he claimed, had not been given. He cited cases where certain longshoremen who drove cars were carrying passengers within the city limits. In one instance, he said, he had informed the recorder, given the driver's name and his car number, but no action was taken. He would refuse to pay a license for carrying passengers until the council enforced the ordinance. His statement led to a rebuke administered by Mr. Day who said, "That because one man broke the law, it gives you no right to do likewise and instead of being defiant of the law you should help the officers of the city enforce it." Mr. Day made several other remarks which were not related by Bunting who made a heated reply. John Johnson suggested some of the assertions of Bunting and also stated that he did not intend to pay his bus license unless Jaloff paid his. Marshal Potter said the thing to do was to make a complaint and he would arrest the party against whom the ordinance was made and Bunting said that he had a living to earn. He did not seem that he was called on to play the part of private detective. Others took part in the discussion and it was agreed that the check be kept on unlicensed jitney men. Several other matters were discussed and at 10:30 o'clock council adjourned after one of the warmest sessions they had experienced in several months. A number of interested spectators were present and, apparently enjoyed the entire performance.
