State Senator Colvig, of Jackson county, who is a candidate for presidential elector on the democratic ticket, spoke to a well filled house in St. Helens Friday night on the political topics of the day.

The excursion to Portland on Sunday last was fairly well patronized. The crowd was not large, but large enough for all to have a splendid time.

Most of the excursionists came from Rainier and St. Helens. On the way up the Meserve-Wagner corner band furnished splendid music, and between times the St. Helens gleub club favored as many as could find room in the ladies' cabin with vocal and instrumental music.

The declamations of Miss Josie Groves were especially fine, in which the young lady exhibited marked elocutionary accomplishments.

The readings by W. J. Rice, in his usually clever way, was highly appreciated by all; and last but not the least, the poetical effusion entitled "How to Pop the Question," by Mr. C. L. Colburn, was received amid great clapping of hands and general enthusiasm.

All those who wished attended the sacred concert at the Exposition building, and at 5 o'clock the steamer started for home, arriving at St. Helens at 7:20 and at Rainier at 9 o'clock.

During a discussion between a traveled English lady and an American gentleman on the respective merits of railway travel in England and America...

"And even for men it is not an altogether agreeable idea," said the American, "there have been, as you know, terrible occurrences in these railway carriages. How would you feel yourself if you were shut up with a lunatic?"

"My dear sir," answered the Englishwoman sharply, "I really think it would be no worse than being shut up with fifty lunatics, as you are here!"

"Thank you," said the gentleman rather stiffly. "Not at all," rejoined the Englishwoman in her most aggressive manner.
