Inspector-General of the Army Breck-oridge has submitted to the War De Inspector-tremeral of the Army Breckinridge has submitted to the War Department a report of the operations of his department. He dwells at length upon the activity of the army in the past year. At one time, the report asserts, the country seemed on the verge of war, which served to show the eagerness with which all Americans are ready to resent indignities. When war seemed inevitable, the response of the people to a call, not yet made but anticipated, for men was something thoroughly gratifying. These tenders of regiments of men came spontaneously from all sections of the country, Texas being perhaps the first to offer her bervices in rallying around the flag in defense of national dignity. In the North and South alike

A reply to the English counter case in the Behring sea negotiations is approaching completion at the State Department and will soon be ready for the United States counsel to lay before the arbitrators. The work of preparing the reply has been going on for some weeks at the State Department under the direct charge of Secretary John W. Foster. The lawyers and clerks who are engaged in the work have been shut up in a large room, and no one from the outer world has been allowed to enter the room. Ex-Minister Phelps and Justice Harlan have not personally been at the State Department during the preparation of the case, in which they are counsel, but they have been in correspondence with their younger representatives, and every point made has been carefully gone over by Secretary Foster. The purpose of the officials is to weigh carefully every point made on behalf of the United States, so as to put it in the cleavest language and study its relations with every other point, in order to avoid conflict or compromising admissions. The case of the United States before the high court of arbitration will leave this country in a few weeks for Paris, where the court will sit. The original case of the United States and the British counter case are already in print, and have been submitted to counsel on both sides. It is not intended, however, to make any of the arguments public until the sward is made and accepted by the two countries, The entire case will probably be sent to Congress by the President and printed in the English blue books.

During the past week Washington City has been treated to a series of "booms." They have generally occurred in the evening, and have had sufficient force to set the crockery vibrating on all the ceramic shelves throughout the city. These heavy detonations have proceeded from a rain-making experiment of the Department of Agriculture, which has been encamped at Fort Meyer, Va., just up the Potomac river from Washington, endeavoring to ascertain an economical method of explosives by testing various compositions of gases. They have not been trying to make rain there, but to ascertain the cheapest and best explosive been trying to make rain there, but to ascertain the cheapest and boxt explosive compound with which to carry on their experiments elsewhere. They have ascertained this fact, and the explosive which will be used next will be a chlorate powder devised for the purpose and gases composed of three parts hydrogen and one part oxygen, which is a cheap and simple method. There will also be used ordinary illuminating gas and oxygen in the proportion of two parts of the nsed ordinary illuminating gas and oxygen in the proportion of two parts of the former and one of the latter. The concussion produced from it does not cost more than one-twentieth as much as a corresponding explosion of dynamite or one-tenth as much as an explosion of "rosellite," and has the same effect. A prevailing impression was that the intention of the party was to produce rain, but such was not the case. From 20,000 to 52,000 feet of gas is generally used in experiments for that purpose, but at Fort Meyer only several hundred feet were consumed. Arrangements are now being made to ship the entire apparatus, composing over 350,000 pounds of freight to Texas and New Mexico the latter part of the week to try and make rain in real earnest, but the locations for the operations have not yet been definitely decided upon.
