The best housekeepers use the Royal Baking Powder instead. Its scientific composition insures uniform results. By its use alone can the finest flavored, most wholesome food be produced. A Milwaukee brewer has an option on an estate in Mexico, consisting of about 567 square miles, at 30 cents per acre. The property is known as the Camotlan estate, and it lies in the State of Jalisco, north and west of the city of Guadalajara, the second city of Mexico.

For Pure Food
The San Francisco Board of Health can engage in no more laudable occupation than the examination of our food supply and the instruction of the public as to those articles it finds to be pure and wholesome, and which, therefore, consumers should use.

There are quantities of baking powders in the market to use which is certain detriment to the health of the consumer. They are made from alum, or improperly compounded from other chemicals, so that they leave a strong alkaline residuum in the food. Many of these powders, having proved unsalable in the East, have been collected by their manufacturers from the dealers, with whom they were left on commission, and shipped to the Pacific Coast. In this market their unscrupulous manufacturers have indulged in extravagant statements both with reference to their own and other brands, claiming the most improbable inducements for their sale and defaming the brands best known and longest used upon the Pacific Coast. This information from this high authority, therefore, is most opportune.

The strength in leavening gas indicates both the economical value and the purity of a baking powder. The tests made by Messrs. Thomas Price & Sons, the well-known analytical chemists of San Francisco, show the Royal to contain 191 cubic inches of leavening gas per ounce of powder, which was fifty-one inches more than the next highest in strength. This shows the Royal about 30 per cent stronger than the best of the other powders and its use that much more economical.

The opinion of the Board of Health is as follows:
We, the members of the Board of Health of the city and county of San Francisco, cordially approve and recommend the Royal Baking Powder. It is absolutely pure and healthful, composed of the best ingredients, of the highest strength and character.

In our judgment it is impossible to make a purer or stronger baking powder than the Royal.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Bushyhead, ex-chief of the Cherokees, has managed by the insertion of a clause in the Cherokee land bill passed by Congress to select a quarter section of land before the tract is thrown open to settlement and establish a townsite. He has been offered $50,000 for his selection, but refuses.

Eight doctors treated me for Heart Disease and one for Rheumatism, but did me no good. I could not speak aloud. Everything that I took into the stomach distressed me. I could not sleep. I had taken all kinds of medicines. Through a neighbor I got one of your books. I procured a bottle of Green's August Flower and took it. I am to-day stout, hearty and strong and enjoy the best of health. August Flower saved my life and gave me my health. Mrs. Sarah J. Cox, Defiance, O.

GARDENS OF SIDON.

SCENES OF RARE BEAUTY IN THE OLD PHENICIAN CITY.

An Ancient City Noted For Its Many Groves and Gardens—Phoenicia as She Appears Today—The Dress of Its People—Their Garments and Their Arms.

The dewdrops glittered in the light of the just rising sun, and the air was heavy with sweet odors of hundreds of orange and lemon trees with white blossoms. The scene was a picture of marvellous fertility. Orange thickets, yellow and white with their double burden of fruit and flowers; lemon, apricot and fig trees, interspersed with the more tropical palm and date, all growing in the greatest luxuriance. At times we saw the queer shaftlike leaves of the banana, often 10 feet in length. An occasional mulberry orchard explained the presence of an enterprising silk manufacturer near by. Every few yards little brooks babbled along, the absolute essential of this luxuriance.

It is not strange that this paradise of flowers and fruit is much frequented by the inhabitants of the crowded, dirty town. No one can ride through these fair gardens and fail to perceive why the worship of the old Sidonians was so closely connected with the grove, and how from nature's rich profusion about them they learned to worship the idea of fertility, which was the essence of their religion. The ancient Sidon, too, was not crowded down close by the sea, but was situated farther back in the plain, and thus was enriched by a ring of emerald.

On the outskirts of the gardens we came to the catacombs of old Sidon, which have been excavated by the French. In the soft limestone rock extend long series of connected chambers which have contributed a few rude statues, several sarcophagi and mummies to the very few mementos which we have of that enterprising people who secured their alphabet in Egypt and carried it to Greece, and thus transmitted, with certain changes, the letters with which we communicate our 19th century ideas. More of the aesthetic art of Phoenicia is to be seen today in Athens than in all Palestine. There in the Mycenaean room one can see the richly inlaid daggers, the beautiful ornaments and the facsimiles of the beaten gold cups which were also manufactured by these artisans of oriental antiquity to grace the temple of Solomon at Jerusalem. Every ruin of that ancient world, whether in Phoenicia or not, when laid bare bears ample testimony to the skill and enterprise of this Semitic nation of traders.

Leaving these old tombs and the thoughts that they inspired, we were soon studying Phoenicia as she appears today. On our left extended the Lebanon range, while in the distance rose Mount Hermon, clad in snow, glistening like Pontic marble in the midday sun. On the right was the blue sea, into which we were long to plunge. Before us the narrow bridge path extended, now through fertile although only half cultivated fields, now over a rocky promontory, which often jutted into the sea. Habitations were rare and generally huddled together for protection against the Arab incursions.

On the highways we often met these modern representatives and probable descendants of the ancient Midianites. Tall, muscular fellows, with the dark Semitic countenance and black beard, clad with the striped shiba, a square piece of goat hair cloth folded and sewed above the shoulders, the chief garment of the patriarchs and the mantle of Elijah the Tishbite. Underneath they wore the kimber, the long flowing tunic, which appeared when they threw back their shiba. About their heads was tightly wrapped the silken keffiyeh, crowned with the two heavy goat hair coils, which encircled the tops of their heads like a large, black serpent. About the waist was tightly bound the girde, adorned with huge, odd shaped knives, or, if he be a civilized Arab, with pistols.

An ugly looking spear 15 or 20 feet long completed the outfit, an outfit well calculated to engender grave envy in the heart of an American cowboy. A little detour enabled us to visit the black tents of the Bedouins, the nomadic campers out. It is a rectangular edifice 15 or 20 feet long, supported on poles which 40 or 50 centuries of inherited experience has taught them to skillfully place at exactly the right angle. This palace of thickly woven goat hair cloth is held in position by strong guy ropes. The sides are raised or lowered at will, according to the position of the sun or the direction of the wind.

Within a curtain separates the women's apartment from the common reception room. The cooking outfit, like the dwelling, is characterized by its severe simplicity, is more fortunately the Arab does not demand a fancy course dinner, and long years of practice have taught him to dispense with a superfluous dish, which is generally more than one for a family.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

He Finally Paid the Fee.
A man lately went to a Lewiston clergyman with his betrothed to be married. He drew the minister aside and whispered, "I have no money." "Well, you can pay me when you pay day comes around." The marriage was performed. Then the man whispered, "We want the certificate." "Well, you can have that when you pay the fee. I'll reduce the fee to $5." "Well," said the man, putting his hand into his pocket, "I may as well pay you now," and he did.—Bangor Commercial.

A Sleep Walking Feat.
In the swampy districts of France the men are accustomed to walk over the marshy ground on stilts. A sleep walker on one occasion buckled on his stilts and crossed a swollen torrent in the dark. On awaking he found that the stilts had performed the same feat in daylight.

RIGID ECONOMY AND HARD LABOR.

New One Boston Merchant Became Rich and Influential.

"It would be well for the young men of today to take my recipe for becoming prosperous," said Mr. John Shepard the other day as he sat before his little desk in an upper story of his great dry goods house on Winter street. "I began life at the very bottom rung of the ladder, but with a determination that I would succeed if such a thing were possible with the talent that I possessed. Early in life I came to the conclusion that economy was the first great essential in establishing a fortune, and that labor was the second. I banished from my mind all other considerations when I began to work upon the road that I felt sure would lead to the goal of which I was in search.

"I remember very distinctly going down Marshall street one day and having my attention attracted by a most tempting display in a confectioner's window. I had what is known as a very sweet tooth, and I brought up standing before the sweet collection as if suddenly arrested by some irresistible force. My hand immediately found its way to the pocket that carried my meager hoard, and before I really knew what I was doing I had invested 6 cents in butter-totch. When I got back into the street, I began to have a full realization of what I had done, and it is safe to say that no candy ever entered a boy's mouth that was so little relished as was my butter-totch. I regretted that investment for years, and whenever the temptation again came upon me while passing the store I put it away instantly.

"Keeping close to this line of strict economy, I found myself at last in a position to go into business. Then, however, I commenced to feel that capital alone was powerless in the attainment of success, unless it was seconded by untiring labor. Here also I met all the necessary requirements, frequently devoting 20 hours of the 24 to my business. Gradually I found that I was amassing a fortune, and finally I established the house which now bears my name. After I had accomplished what I started out to do, there came over me an entire change. I had no aspirations to become abnormally wealthy.

"All that I wanted was a safe guarantee against possible disaster in the future. I devoted a portion of my time to the enjoyment of life, believing that I had earned my right to do so. No, sir; there is no use in filling my pockets with these artless ideas of getting rich, as they are not practical. Economy and labor are the only elements that enter into the great plan of successful business life."—Boston Herald.

Pot Economical.
At a dinner the other evening every one was asked to state truthfully what were his or her pet economies, and the result was very amusing, each person being convicted of some small meanness which contrasted oddly with his or her style of living. "I must confess I can never resist hatpins," said one grande dame. "I simply hate to buy them, and I always feel a disposition to take one whenever I see a carter's hand pinning at a friend's house."

"I am so thankful to hear you say so," exclaimed another magnate of society who entertains charmingly in her lovely house on Murray hill, "for I am a veritable kleptomaniac about rubber bands. Whenever I attend one of my charitable meetings I always feel an almost irresistible temptation to put several more than I need around my papers for home use."

"I think the only thing I am really stingy about," admitted a rich bachelor who is renowned for his hospitalities, "are matches. I always light over an old match if possible, and invariably row the servants if they buy too many."—New York Tribune.

Effect of Music on Animals.
At the zoo the zebra, wild ass, deer and ostrich went into paroxysms of rage at the sound of the piccolo, although they had manifested various signs of pleasure over the violin and flute. The tiger was asleep, and refused to be awakened by the fiddler and flute. But when the man with the piccolo began to play the animal sprang furiously to its feet and rushed angrily up and down the cage, lashing its tail. So extreme was the beast's anguish that the piccolo man speedily gave place to the fiddler. The difference was at once apparent. The tiger stopped, listened, lay down and purled like a kitten in its enjoyment of the grateful sounds, and presently fell asleep in luxurious repose.—London Spectator.

The Daily Dinner in Some Homes.
In no way has the spirit of the times brought more change than in the dinner hour and customs. The grandfathers of the present generation thought 6 o'clock a late hour to dine, but now 7:30 is considered early. The master should also don his dress suit, although the Tuxedo coat in one's own house is allowable. The mistress dresses as though for a ball, the only difference being in the material, which is plainer, and the gloves, which are worn long. The same formality must be observed in serving the dinner as obtains when a number of guests are present.—Vogue.

A New Game in Paris.
There is in Paris a game called drawing room confidence, which consists in the presentation to each guest of a little album containing a series of questions on one's personal character, tastes and predilections, to be answered in writing. The game is certainly not new. It used to be very familiar in London and the provinces some years ago, and perhaps it still lingers here and there in certain English drawing rooms.—London Letter.

How Gluck Composed.
Of Gluck it is said that when he felt himself in a humor to compose he had a pianoforte carried into a beautiful meadow, where, with a bottle of champagne on either side of him, he was able to do justice to his muse.—Harper's Bazar.

Typhoid Fever From Ice Cream.
It is a quite well established fact that ice may carry the germs of typhoid fever. Instances have been noted. The Lancet gives an account of the outbreak of this fever in London, which has been traced to some cheap ice cream peddled about the streets by Italians.

Light of the Moon.

The brightness of the moon is not so very much greater than the brightness of the same area of the sky. The total light of the full moon can be compared with the total light of the sun, though it is a very difficult problem, and the result will be that the sun is as bright as 680,000 full moons.—New York Telegram.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one cure for deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed, it has a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. The cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

COMPLETELY UPROOTED.

How many remedies there are which merely relieve without uprooting disease. The contrast with sterile medicines which such palliatives afford, not only enhances the dignity of the former, but serves to emphasize the folly of employing half-way measures when thorough ones are available. A marked instance of this is the case of the one hand, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in cases of chills and fever and bilious remittent, and on the other of ordinary remedies in cases of this type. By the bitters material complaint in every stage and of the most malignant type are completely conquered and lose their hold upon the system. They are rarely, if ever, dislodged by the ordinary sources of medicine, although their symptoms may unquestionably be mitigated through such means. The same holds good of indigestion, biliousness, kidney complaint, rheumatism, nervousness and debility. By the Bitters they are cured when many remedies fail.
