The proposition of Senator Everett, of Massachusetts, to allow the Chinese another year in which to register is right in line with other dilatory measures which have been advanced with studied regularity to defeat the purpose of the exclusion law and assist the Chinese in evading its requirements. Such a bill should be met by congress with the contempt it merits. Its passage would be a complete back-down by the government and its only effect would be to bring upon us the deserved ridicule of other countries, and further intensify the contempt which the Chinese already entertain for our laws. We submit that the passage of this new proposition would be simply a disgraceful display of weakness and cowardice on the part of this government, and protest against its adoption. If it could be shown that the Geary law is unjust or unconstitutional there would be some excuse for the administration to refuse to enforce it, but all efforts to pick a flaw in it have been fruitless. Neither is there any assurance that if the time for registration should be extended any considerable number of Chinese would avail themselves of the opportunity to comply with the law. They knew the act was constitutional but simply ignored it with insolent contempt. If they doubt the constitutionality of the law why should they impudently ask for more time instead of fighting it? The report that China will retaliate by driving all Americans out of China if this law is enforced, should have no weight in the matter. If we can trade the 110,000 Chinese in this country for the few adde-pated missionaries over in China, it will be the best bargain this country ever made. We will doubtless manage to get along without the Chinese, and the missionaries can find plenty of employment right at home. We hope the administration will proceed to enforce the law and disregard the protests which are being made by a few sap-headed sentimentalists whose cupidity is their only motive for espousing the cause of the Chinese. If the government has the moral courage to enforce a law let it be displayed in this matter, and let law and justice prevail.

Another report is current to the effect that money has been pledged to build the Goble & Astoria road, and that D. K. Warren and Walter Smith will soon return to Astoria with sufficient resources to push the enterprise to an early completion. Just how much foundation there is for the rumor is hard to determine, but there is probably very little; the source and tenor of the dispatch indicates that it is simply the regular monthly installment for September of stereotyped railroad rumors sent out by flighty rainbow chasers or real estate speculators for the purpose of creating sensation and a boom price for some side hill lots which they probably own along the proposed line. The Columbia river will undoubtedly be paralleled by a railroad sometime but we fail to see the philosophy of such an enterprise at present. With such cheap and easy means of transportation as the Columbia river affords it is hardly reasonable to suppose that as a matter of speculation capitalists would see the profit in investing three or four millions in a railroad which would be forced to compete every mile of the way with the cheap steamboat fares of the river. The more reasonable railroad proposition would be to build a line through the Nehalem valley where an immense territory rich in natural resources would quickly be developed and where there could not possibly be a prospect for competition. Added to this is the fact that a quarter of a million dollars has been spent on construction work on the valley line and all supplies are now on the ground with which to continue and complete the work. If a profitable investment in railroads is desired by capital it can be found in the Nehalem valley proposition.

A Good Thing to Keep at Hand. Some years ago we were very much subject to severe spells of cholera morbus, and now when we feel any of the symptoms that usually precede that ailment, such as sickness at the stomach, diarrhea, etc., we become scared. We have found Chamberlain's Cholera, Colic and Diarrhea Remedy the very thing to straighten one out in such cases, and always keep it about. We are not writing this for a pay testimonial, but to let our readers know what is a good thing to keep handy in the house.—Troy, Kan., Chief. For sale by Edwin Ross.

Mr. Moore, one of Portland's business men, was here Friday. Prof. Wm. Powell, of Pittsburg, was here Saturday and spoke to the alliance. Rev. Faxon preached here last Sunday, morning and evening. E. S. Faxon opened school Monday morning with a good attendance. Some of the younger members of the community decided that it was unfair for their parents to attend the alliance while they had nowhere to go so they met Monday night and formed an opposition to the alliance with eight members with Harry Sherman as president. There has been a heavy Oregon mist falling the past few days. We sincerely wish it had "mist" Oregon, as muddy roads in September are not what the doctor ordered.

If he can step upon a three-thousand foot raft and make it scale about one hundred and seventy-five thousand feet his services are, of course, invaluable to the mill man. He is, of course, well aware of this fact and governs himself accordingly. After the raft is in the boom the logger is completely at the mercy of the mill man and has nothing to do but accept the mill scale. If the office of state log scaler could be created the loggers could pay him five cents a thousand for his services and save about fifteen or twenty cents more than they now get for their logs per thousand. By a little concerted action on the part of the loggers this office could be created and by paying him a little more on the side than the mill men would be willing to pay, the loggers could expect better treatment.

Secretary Carlisle's order to coin the signiorage of bullion now in the treasury in order to get money for running expenses of the government, is one of the results of the policy which his party advocates and upon which it went into office. The prospective tariff tinkering has so greatly reduced imports that the falling off in import duties has reached the lowest point in thirty-five years, with the net result that the daily expenses of the government are now $170,000 more than the receipts. As a last resort Mr. Carlisle has decided to coin the signiorage in order to meet the defect. This signiorage is the government's profit or percentage for coining and is deducted as a toll from all bullion brought to the mint for coining. By the coining of this bullion nearly $85,000,000 will be added to the circulating medium, and will be immediately put into circulation.

ME. CLEVELAND is very successful in dictating to his party, but when it comes to dictating whether his new heir should be a boy or a girl he encountered a sharp snag. His little veto wouldn't work. We are requested to save all the coal oil cans for the near future, but we do not think we will. We will save our money, however, to buy wedding presents. The last few days of last week were very fine for hay-making, reminding us of the song of the honey-bee, "When the sun is hot he lingers not, but makes them all alive."

Last Sunday it rained all day, and those who had either hay or grain in field did not rest but made use of that day in the work of necessity—sowing the crop. The old adage, "The better the day the better the deed."

Hogren Brothers are still hauling and shipping cedar lumber to Portland, though times are hard and the market for such articles are dull; yet a first-class article will always command some price. Wm. Bremer, who has a homestead on Oak Ranch creek, about eleven miles west from here, had a piece of wheat that yielded fully forty bushels to the acre. This is extra good for new land without either cultivation or manuring. The wheat was sown last fall and was raked in with a hand rake.

The trains are raising havoc with cattle continually along here. One young, red cow, without either mark or brand, was knocked in the head on the morning of the 14th. We think it about time that the railroad commissioners insisted upon enforcing the railroad companies to fence the track according to law. Charley Bumgardner and D. D. Dillinger returned a few days ago from a fishing and hunting trip up the Coweman river, where I. S. Bumgardner and John Schmitka are logging. They report that the boys are doing well and getting in lots of logs; they also report lots of game and the best of fishing.

Sydney Dell, one of Portland's foremost lawyers, has been rusticated in the Nehalem valley and has found a live man in Vernonia who takes the Daily Oregonian. If Mr. Dell were to come here he would find several live men, and perhaps would be able to find more live men if the subscription price of the Oregonian was not quite out of the reach of the average farmer.

We sanction THE MIST's recommendation of summoning jurors, which it made editorial mention of in the last number. We believe the same saving could be effectually carried out as regards assessing. Why not require every person owning property to give, under oath, before his precinct justice, all his assets and liabilities, allowing the board of equalization to set valuation, etc., the county paying the justice for administering the oath.

CLATSKANIE. Hon. N. Merrill spent last week in Portland looking after a raft of logs sent up from the Clatskanie. M. O. Bryant and family, the last of the hop pickers from town, returned Monday evening. Attorney Geo. E. Davis, of Portland, spent a couple of days with his friend Prof. Cleaton, the first of the week. Mr. and Mrs. E. Hughes and party returned Saturday evening from their excursion to the hop fields near Kelseo. It was surprising to see the large number of men and women that left here Monday morning bound for the Oregon City land office to file on land in one of the new townships that was just coming in. Whole families were into it.

Mr. Smith and family, from the soot, started Monday evening for the Willamette valley in a covered wagon but rain coming on made the roads so slippery the trip was abandoned before the summit between here and Mist was reached, and the party came back the same evening. Last week's number of the Chief paid some attention to J. M. Blackford in the matter of the purchase of an organ for the school house here. Mr. Blackford does not care to answer the article farther than to announce that he bought what he considered the best organ for the money, and to say with reference to taking the money deposited with Capt. Nichols, he asked for it and got it after it had been agreed by the school board that the organ should be sent for. The money was appropriated to the very purpose for which it was raised, and the Chief's organ was not ordered because it was not thought the best for the building where it was to be used. Last Tuesday being the fifth anniversary of the marriage of Dr. and Mrs. Hall, some friends devised a scheme to celebrate the occasion, and in order to accommodate a larger number than their house would hold, Merrill's hall was secured for a gathering in the evening. A table had been arranged and spread along one side of the hall which was covered until the time came for its use. A crowd gathered sufficient to tax the capacity of the hall, and during the evening were very nicely entertained by the orchestra consisting of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Blackford, with Messrs. Fabrice and Shroads. Some games were indulged in by the younger element present which their elders looked on and enjoyed while they were reminded of their own early days. About 10 P. M. the tables were uncovered displaying a tempting assortment of cake and fruit and fifty or more of the older persons were seated around it and were served with coffee in addition to what was on the table. During the feasting, Rev. Moore as presiding officer, rose and announced what the gathering was for, and gave a very neat address on the necessity of social unity, after which he announced a few sentiments to be responded to by those present, first calling upon Hon. N. Merrill to answer to "Logging and lawmaking." Mr. Merrill announced that his experience as a logger was much more extensive than as a lawmaker, but had tried to do his best in each case. G. P. Hatt was called on next to respond to "The saw and hatchet in Clatskanie," and did very well, bringing in also some of the advantages of social gatherings. W. S. Miller gave some of his "Impressions of Oregon." Charlie Conyers spoke briefly of "Our Forests." G. W. Badger, of "The future of Clatskanie." Miss Boyle gave response "The young man for the times," and made quite a hit describing him. Mrs. W. H. Conyers spoke very intelligently and entertainingly on "Our ferns and mosses," while D. Dixon Sr. responded to "Our early struggles." After those responses Dr. Hall was called for and in a few words thanked the audience, and said his five years of married life had been very pleasantly spent, most of them in this place. Others being in waiting for refreshments, the tables were cleared and arranged for them. All those were soon served and the party dispersed about midnight after listening to more music and indulging in an exchange of courtesies.

MAINEVILLE. Mr. Moore, one of Portland's business men, was here Friday. Prof. Wm. Powell, of Pittsburg, was here Saturday and spoke to the alliance. Rev. Delicacy in Taste. The Chinese are well known to possess great delicacy of taste, especially in regard to their favorite beverage, tea. Few would be inclined, however, to give them credit for such sensitiveness of palate as was described by a Chinese lecturer on tea drinking, who said that when he was a boy about eleven years old he lived with his father, who was a little nearsighted, in a cottage in the southern part of China. One day he was cleaning out his father's teakettle, and could not get all the tea leaves out, so he put his hand in the kettle. About a half hour afterward his father called for his tea, which the speaker took to him and returned to work. Shortly the old gentleman called him again and asked him if he did not tell him never to put his hand in the teakettle. "Well," said the speaker, "I did not know whether my father was peering through the keyhole watching me or not. So I let three weeks pass, when I knew my father was out on business, and I again put my hand in the teakettle. That evening I was called to answer the question which was asked me several weeks before, but you can rest assured from that time to this I have never put my hand in any teakettle."—Good Housekeeping.

Permanently Cured by the Earthquake. Dr. Harris tells of a patient of his at the time of the earthquake, six years ago. She had been lying upon her back unable to move hardly and unable to speak a word for fourteen months. He had removed her to St. Joseph's infirmary to insure skillful treatment. The night of the earthquake, when the first shock was felt, the girl jumped from her bed and ran down the steps, and was the first patient to get out of the building. She was completely cured from that minute and walked and talked with perfect naturalness. She has never been troubled with a recurrence of her complaint.—Savannah News.

The Sacred Plants of the Druids. The Druids held many plants sacred, as, for instance, vervain, seago, mistletoe, and among trees the oak and the rowan. There is, I think, no serious doubt as to the identity of any of these except the second (seago), which is generally thought to be the club moss. Oak mistletoe is certainly rare, and that may have been the reason why it had an especially sacred character, but it does exist.—New York Recorder.

Names of Apples. The Tallman Sweet was a fine apple, but its name has become a tradition. Probably it is sold today under a different cognomen. Many of the present varieties receive different names from different producers. Some of the fancy varieties are the Maiden's Blush and the Ben Davis.—New York Evening Sun.

Eligible for Kentucky Car Drivers. The average street car driver must not think that when a lady wears her handkerchief at him she wants to carry on a flirtation. She simply wants him to stop the car that she might get out. The bowing, scraping and tipping of hat in recognition is all unnecessary.—Pulchah (Ky.) News.

George Understood. "Katie," he said timidly, "I-I-I have allowed myself to hope that you regard me as something more than a friend." "George," she answered softly, with half-averted face, "you—you are away off." And George understood. He came nearer.—Chicago Tribune.

Failed to Appreciate Milton. Milton was not great in the character of husband and father. We read of him that his first wife was disgusted with his gloomy house, and soon ran away from him, and his daughters were left to grow up utterly neglected.—Writer.

A Smart Child. "My little niece," said a dotting aunt, "begins to talk quite plainly; she can say 'Riddle Diddle,' 'Nantie,' 'boy,' and other words, though she is only ten months old." "That is young to talk so well," observed a fond mamma patronizingly; "but when my little Jack was seven months old he walked as firmly as any child of two years; at eight months he went anywhere in the house by himself, and at nine months he bought himself a hat. I took him to the front door and gave him his directions. He walked straight to the store, went in and said 'Robinson, hat.' The hat was fitted on him, he handed Mr. Robinson the bill I had given him and waited for the change. Mr. Robinson was so struck by his intelligence that he brought the child back to me and asked me what professional cancer I had destined him for."—Kate Field's Washington.

Impartial Justice. Foreign Visitor (proudly)—In my country we have one law for prince and pauper. American Host—Same way here. It doesn't matter whether a man is a beggar or a millionaire, he's got to obey the law unless he's got a pull.—New York Weekly.

An Absolute Need. "What you need," said the doctor, "is change." "Yes," said the patient, "I'll need lots of it to meet your bill."—New York Truth.

A Maine Cinderella. A Lewiston thief who stole a pair of ladies' rubber boots carried them off in his vest pocket.—Lewiston Journal.

Five Young Rulers. The five youngest sovereigns in Europe are William II of Germany, thirty-two years; Carlos I of Portugal, twenty-eight years; Alexander I of Servia, twenty years; Wilhelm III of Holland, eleven years, and Alfonso XIII of Spain, five years.—Exchange.

Prospects Still Good. W. H. Watson, of Astoria, one of the firm of Curry, Bro's & Co's of the Astoria railroad contractors, was in the city last Wednesday, and in company with Mr. McNamer, visited Greenville, where over a hundred mules and horses belonging to the company, have been pastured since last fall. This stock has been advertised for sale by Mr. McNamer to satisfy a lien of $2,000. Mr. Watson says the prospects for the building of this road are still bright. English money is being in and is waiting for the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law and settlement of the financial question in this country, in which case the capital will be forthcoming and the road will be built.—Forest Grove Times.

SCAPOOSE. The rains are destroying much grain and preventing the sowing of the wild hay crop. Rev. Geo. Baker will preach at the church next Saturday morning and Sunday morning. Bert West departed for Monmouth Monday to resume his studies at the Normal. P. Lonsington has completed a new residence on his farm two miles south of Scappoose station. The dwelling being erected by W. W. West is nearly ready for occupancy.

Mrs. O. V. St. Helens will continue the term of school while the treasury is intact. The shortage of state fund has cut off many months of winter school hereabouts. Miss Eva Bonser closes a successful term of school in Dist. 23 next week. Miss Mary Peterson is the teacher in Dist. 24 and Mrs. Edgard having resigned to commence a term of school at Weston, Ore. Hobbs entered the residence of D. Balch last Sunday afternoon, but fortunately did not carry off any valuables. The school house has been entered by thieves twice within the last month or two. Evidently the work of tramps.

The Astoria National Bank, of Portland, resumed business Saturday. This is the second of the suspended Portland banks to reopen its doors, and the others will follow in a short time. Messrs. Macklay and Dolan, two very prominent Oregon democrats of Portland, were called at this office on Wednesday. They are very genial gentlemen and are not slow to talk. In Childhood's Happy Days. Among the incidents of childhood that stand out in bold relief, as our memory reverts to the days when we were young, none are more prominent than severe sicknesses. The young mother vividly remembers that it was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy that cured her of cough, and in turn administered it to her children, and always with the best results. For sale by Edwin Ross.

FEMINA! A Book for Every Woman. This Work Has the Endorsement of the Most Prominent Educators on the Pacific Coast. The Rev. Edward C. Church, A. M., D. D., Principal of Irving Institute for Young Ladies, San Francisco, California, writes: "MY DEAR DOCTOR—I have taken great satisfaction in reading your book, 'Femina.' It is a book that is of incalculable value to mother and wives; and in view of the general ignorance of such matters that should be understood by them, it is just the book to place in their hands. While in spirit it is scientific, its language is easily understood by the most simple, and the most sensitive cannot be offended. Very Truly Yours, EDW. C. CHURCH."
