St. Helens, October 13, 1893

THE appalling results of the late storms in Louisiana compels one to pause in sober contemplation of its awful fatality to both life and property, and ask if these repeated plagues of storm and contagion are not a special dispensation of providence wrought upon the unhappy people of that stricken land to appease divine wrath which may have been excited by the violation of some great law either human or divine. These repeated great catastrophe are certainly not the result of natural causes which could have their inception only in the natural elements peculiar to that smitten shore. These afflicted people may be the victims of a fatal conspiracy of the elements, but for whatever cause they may be afflicted their sufferings are certainly unusual and the loss of life appalling. There is no way of telling what the total loss of life has been, nor will the world ever have any conception of the consequent suffering and devastation resulting from the storm. Latest estimates place the number of lives lost at 2000 but if anything like an accurate account is ever obtained it is believed that these figures will be raised several hundred. The accounts of the terrible sufferings of the survivors enlists the sympathy of the entire world and arouses the conviction that those who found a grave beneath the troubled waters have met, by far, the most merciful fate. The few survivors of the deluged district find themselves in the most pitiable, destitute condition possible to imagine,and if prompt assistance is not at hand many of them will follow their friends across the waters which are never tossed by angry tempests. It has been found impossible to secure all the bodies for burial, as many of them are still beneath the waters and it is greatly feared that their rapid decomposition will breed a contagion which will be more deadly in effect than was the forces of the elements.

As a result of the recent anti-Chinese agitation a number of propositions have been made by those interested, some of which will probably result in some kind of a more or less satisfactory settlement of this very vexing problem. The late proposition to extend the time for registration was made at the request of the Chinese Six Companies in order to give time to ascertain as near as possible what per cent of the Chinese now here and unregistered is needed to perform the work that is usually done by Chinese laborers. The proposition of the Six Companies is this: There are about 150,000 Chinese laborers now in the country about half of whom are, on account of anti-Chines agitation and other causes, continually idle. It is the desire of the Six Companies that these idle men should be deported, for several good reasons. With a few exceptions these Chinamen were brought here by the Six Companies who paid for getting them into the country with the understanding that the companies were to guarantee them a living and labor at a certain price per day, reserving a per cent of their wages until their passage money was all paid. For various reasons thousands of the coolies have not been able to pay their debts to the companies and as the companies are obliged to support them until they can do so, it has been decided to make the closest possible estimate of the number that can be kept constantly at work and leave the superfluous ones to the tender mercies of the Geary law. With this end in view the Six Companies have asked for an extension of time in which to make the allotments for each state and town or city, and the number thus allotted will be registered and remain in the country. All the others will be deported so soon as the administration can perfect arrangements to that end.

SOUTH AMERICAN dispatches indicate that the war-loving people of that country are enjoying, to the fullest extent, their abnormal propensities for revolutions, war, bloodshed and pillage. Brazil has lately been convulsed with enternecive revolution on a large scale, and the total destruction of the splendid city of Rio Janiero, by the revolutionists, and the attendant slaughter of thousands of its inhabitants, was only averted by the intervention of American and European men-of-war, which had been sent there to protect the interests of subjects of those countries, and which vessels threatened to run their guns out on the victorious rebels if the latter did not immediately stop shelling the city. Just what these people are fighting about would be pretty hard to define and a great deal more difficult for anyone else to understand, but they are probably fighting because fighting has become such a passion with them that if they did not fight they could not enjoy good health. Several other states down there are fighting just because Brazil is, and because they do not want to be out of fashion. If these states could be brought under the control of some civilized nation and made to conform to its laws there could soon be built up on the South American continent one of the richest and most beautiful countries on earth, but so long as these people are permitted to govern, or more properly, misgovern themselves, there will never be anything but war and rumors of war.

MONDAY was "Chicago Day" at the Columbian exposition and with true pride and local patriotism, characteristic of the Chicago people, the day was made memorable at the fair by witnessing the largest attendance in its history. The admissions up to 11:30 P. M. were 751,026, over three quarters of a million, undoubtedly the greatest number of people ever congregated in one place. The great, spacious buildings were filled to their greatest capacity and the surrounding grounds were one great, throbbing, palpitating mass of humanity. Accidents were necessarily numerous, and many of them fatal. At one or two points a jam occurred, and despite the efforts of the guards several women fainted and were crushed to death. One hundred and twenty-five accidents were reported at the hospitals, a few of which resulted fatally. Chicago never does anything by halvee, and this is an illustration of what enterprise, tact and business ability can accomplish. The windy city quickly jumped into the first city of the nation and it has been done by the energy of her citizens who possess the happy faculty of knowing how to invest a dollar to make it return two or three dollars.

PROF. RORK'S free trade talk is about on a par with the other rot he preaches to the misguided people with whom he demagogues. Just how republicans, who have become so far lost to consciousness as to join the peoples' party, can swallow, without salt or seasoning, Prof. Rork's free trade demagogy, is a little indistinct. Still, where little is expected little is required, and certainly very little can be expected of a man whose lack of common intelligence would permit him to affiliate with a party whose cardinal principals are composed of no better material than is advocated by Prof. Rork and his confiding and deluded proselytes.

IF the South Americans could be induced to stop shooting each other for a short time and employ the same amount of energy in building up their country that they exercise in trying to tear it down, they could soon be both happier and richer and Oregon could have a fine market for the millions of fir and cedar lumber which our mills could produce if there could be found a place to dispose of it.

WHAT the people would like to know is not how much silver there is going to be in the silver dollar of the future; not how much they are going to be worth, but how many of them is going to be left in the treasury after the salaries of the present senators in congress are paid.

The Editor's Dream.

I would from the city's rule and law,
from its fashions and forms cut loose, and go where the strawberry grows on its straw and the gooseberry grows on its goose;
where the catnip tree is climbed by the cat
as she clutches for her prey, the guileless and suspecting rat on the rattan bush at play. I will watch with ease the saphron cow and the cowlet in their glee, as they leap in joy from bough to bough on top of a cowslip tree, and list while the partridge drums in the wood and the dog devours
the dogwood plum in the primitive solitude.
Oh let me drink from the moss-grown pump that was hued from a pumpkin tree—eat mush and drink from a rural stump, and from the fashion free—new gathered mush from the mushroom vine and milk from the milkweed sweet—with luscious pineapples from the vine—such food as the godsmight eat! And then to the whitewashed dairy I'll turn, where the dairymaid hastening hies, her ruddy and gold-red butter to churn from the milk of her butterflies.
And I'll rise at morn with the earliest bird
to the fragrant farmyard pass, and watch while the farmer turns his herd of grasshoppers out to grass.

Morphine Effects.

Morphine is caring many things, and its fatal hold is growing on those who would despise its more apparent use. Druggists report that they have customers for diarrhoea medicine who use it regularly, not knowing, perhaps, that they are miserable without it because of the effects of the morphine it contains. Neuralgia and toothache medicine is being furnished in the same way, and the habitual user imagines himself in pain when it is only the morphine craving. The best way is to ask the druggist whether the medicine he is about to sell you contains morphine, and if he is honest and values your respect, he will likely give you something else. The bowels can be regulated without morphia and with less permanent effect upon them; and the dentist is the proper person to take the toothache to.

BORN.

SCOTT.—On Saturday, October 7, 1893, at St. Helens, Oregon, to the wife of M. J. Scott, a son.

The ball given Friday night by the citizens of Milton for the commendable purpose of raising funds to continue the school at that place, was, notwithstanding the extreme inclemency of the weather, largely attended and the affair was both a social and pecuniary success. At an early hour socially-inclined neighbors began gathering at Braddock's hall, which had been specially prepared for the occasion, and by 9 o'clock about forty couples were industriously engaged in courting Terpsichore. The ladies of Milton are noted for their skill in preparing good things with which to refresh the hungry, and on this occasion they did their welll-merited reputations ample justice for when supper was announced the tabes were found to be loaded with every delicacy which cullinary skill could devise. Forty-six numbers were sold at a dollar each, and as almost everything was donated, the net proceeds amounted to $42.

They Give Their Reasons.

Perhaps some of our readers would like to know in what respect Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better than any other. When this remedy is taken as soon as a cold has been contracted, and before it has become settled in the system, it will counteract the effect of the cold and greatly lessen its severity, and it is the only remedy that will do this. It acts in perfect harmony with nature and aids nature in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions, liquefying the mucuous and causing the expulsion from the air cells of the lungs and restoring the system to a healthier and and strong condition. No other remedy in the market possesses these remarkable properties. No other will cure a cold so quickly. For sale by Edwin Ross.

Prune Industry and Orchard Work.

This is a pamphlet of 100 pages, written by T. A. Clarke, and handsomely printed with numerous illustrations by Possen & Son, of Portland, that contains the substance of many valuable articles. Mr. Clarke has published for two years past in The Oregonian, horticulture in the Northwest. The value of these articles is generally appreciated. Mr. Clarke has endeavored to combine in this handsome pamphlet all that is known of the prune industry the world over; its history on the Pacific coast, reliable facts as to the different varieties of prunes and methods of gathering curing and packing same for market. The book also contains full information for orchard work of all kinds, spraying for all insect pests or fungus, and is pronounced invaluable by all fruit growers. Its cost is 50 cents, and we can supply any who wish it, with a copy at club rates.

A Specific for Croup.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a specific for croup. It is very pleasant to take, which is one of the most important requisites where a cough remedy is intended for use among children. I have known of cases of croup where I know the life of the little one was saved by the use of Chamberlain's Croup Remedy." J. J. LaGrange, druggist, Avoca, Nebraska. 50 cent bottles for sale by Edwin Ross.

Life in Six Acts.

Baby.—Sighing, crying night and day, winking, blinking, full of play. Boy.—Fooling, schooling, getting tall; growing, rowing, playing ball. Youth.—Fussing, mussing o'er a tie; larking, sparking on the sly. Manhood.—Cooing, wooing future wife; gushing, blushing, tired of life. Middle Age.—Slaving, craving, hoarding wealth; driving, striving, broken health. Old Age.—Ailing, failing day by day; the undertaker ends the play.—Educator.

Fed on Oregon Oats.

Nancy Hanks made her record of 2:04 while being fed on Oregon oats, and a great many of the Eastern horsemen feed nothing else. By the way, Oregon was awarded the gold medal at the world's fair for the best wheat and oats in the world.

An Old Soldier Made Happy.

"During my term of service in the army I contracted chronic diarrhoea," says A. E. Bending, of Halsey, Oregon. "Since then I have used a great deal of medicine, but I found any medicine that would give me any relief it would injure my stomach, until Ceamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow." For sale by Edwin Ross.

TREASURER'S NOTICE.

St Helens, Or., Oct. 13, 1883.

Notice is hereby given that all unpaid county warrants of said county which have been presented and endorsed "Not paid for want of funds," up to Nov. 5, 1891, and also warrants numbered 1699, 1733, 1734, 1735 and 1736, will be paid on presentation at this office. Interest on said warrants will not be allowed after date of this notice. E. M. WHARTON, Treasurer of Columbia Couty, Oregon.

Large and Showy.

Oregon has a surprisingly large and showy fruit exhibit at the world's fair. The long tables are made of thirty-two kinds of native woods, and are admirably designed for displaying a large and very fine collection of fruits in jars, because they are unbroken by columns and partitions.—Cairo (Ill.) Telegraph.

MONMOUTH NOTES.

The public school commenced last Monday, it has quite a large attendance.

The seniors each have a term of eight weeks practicing teaching in the model school.

The reglar work of the senior class was taken up in the chapel last Friday, with Miss Crosby and Mr. Ringo.

The foot ball team of this college has accepted a challenge from the team of the Pacific University, at Forest Grove, to play a match game sometime in the near future.

The model school has two additional grades from last year, making it have four grades at present, which are under the supervision of Miss Cassavant who was elected critic teacher of that department.

The Normal has opened this year with an enrollment of 220 students. There are two out of their number that represents Columbia county, viz: Miss Marie Watts and Mr. Bert West, both from Scappoose.

MAINEVILLE.

Frank Brown has just finished a new barn.

Rudolph Keppler has been building a new house.

Fred Emerson has just moved to Houlton.

Mrs. Ella Vining was here last week.

J. R. Sherman is having a new barn built.

Mr. Baker, of the Nehalem, was here Monday.

Mrs. Walter Sweetland spent Monday and Tuesday with her mother, Mrs. Corliss.

Chas. Brown came down from Bay View Wednesday. He is now batching in C. C. Brown's house.

The neighbors spent Monday evenpleasantly at H. A. Corliss's singing and eating popcorn.

This is the weather that makes the pedestrian bless the people who laid the plank road from Houlton to Mainville.

An interesting communication from our Reuben correspondent, arrived too late for publication this week.
