St. Helens, October 27, 1893.

PUBLISHER'S NOTICE.

All communications sent to THE MIST for publication must be accompanied by the author's real name and not a nom de plume alone. We do not want the name for publication, but as an evidence of good faith. Correspondence without the writer's name accompanying will be consigned to the waste basket.

BRIEF MENTION.

The grand jury will meet again on December 19.

The Portland exposition closes Saturday evening.

Buy Pride of Japan tea. It has no equal. Swager keeps it.

W. A. Harris has been appointed deputy county clerk by E. E. Quick.

Circuit court adjourned Wednesday evening to meet again December 20.

E. Ridgway, L. Vandyke and Dick Sessman, of Vernonia, attended court here Friday.

Tom Cooper's new building is rapidly nearing completion and will soon be ready for occupancy.

Don't forget the masquerade tonight. Everything is ready for a huge time Supper will be served at the St. Helens Hotel.

It is said that the reason so many women chew gum is because they like to keep their jaws working whether they say anything or not.

Muckle Bro's.' mill started Wednesday for a short run to stock the yard for the local market and prepare some seasoned lumber for building purposes next year.

The Steamer City of Frankfort is a late competitor for the Astoria-Portland trade, and in consequence of cheap fares is receiving a fair share of patronage.

Judge Blakesley of the Oriental Hotel, is building a fine new barn in his large garden property west of town. The building will be one of the largest in the county. The foundation will be laid for a main building 80x120 to which will be added large sheds for stabling stock, storing grain and other purposes.

Belgium blocks for paving the streets of Tacoma are being delivered on board the Northern Pacific's cars at Milton at the rate of 5,000 a day. This number is not sufficient to keep the work going on in Tacoma and complaint is registered by the contractors there, who are pushing the work while the dry weather lasts.

The dense fogs which prevailed on the river a few mornings last week made steamboat navigation both difficult and dangerous, and came near causing several accidents to steamers. The steamers Mascot and Dixon, perhaps had the closest call reported. These steamers usually approach the St. Helens wharf at the same hour in the morning from opposite directions, and last Friday morning in the dense fog they met in front of Muckle's wharf and only avoided a disastrous collision by a mere scratch. The steamers struck each other a few feet off the jack-staff and both received a heavy glancing blow, but neither of them sustained serious damage. Consternation prevailed among the passengers for a few minutes but none of them were injured.

Sam Tedford, of Clatskanie, was brought here last week and lodged in the county jail to serve a sentence of ten days for refusing to pay a second road tax assessment. After repeated warning to work out his tax Tedford was arrested and taken before Justice Hall, who was forced to commit him in accordance with the provisions of the new road laws which makes it a finable offence to refuse compliance with it. The Justice proceeded in regularity in committing Tedford, but it is a question whether the county can afford to pay about $35 costs in order to punish a man for refusing to pay a $3 road tax. If the law is to be enforced somebody must be made an example of, and the county can probably establish a precedent now, just as well as to be forced into doing it later.

The marriage of Alfred Harrison, of this place, and Jennie Emerson, of Milton, was solemnized at the home of C. S. Emerson, in the latter place, on Saturday evening last, in the presence of the family and immediate friends of the bride. The young couple left the following morning for a trip in Washington state, and upon their return will take up their residence at Milton. Mr. Harrison has, for the past two years, been an employe of the Postoffice Store, at this place, where, by his industry and attention to business, has earned a valuable reputation. Mrs. Harrison has always lived at Milton where, by reason of her more than ordinary beauty and many other personal charms, she enjoys the love and admiration of a host of friends whom we gladly join in wishing herself and husband a happy and prosperous married life.

The Cowlitz River Transportation Company, was fully organized Monday evening in Castle Rock says the Cathlamet Gazette. Capt. Lewis was elected president, and G. W. Rowman was elected secretary. Articles of incorporation were adopted according to the laws of the state of Wash. The object of the company will be to build two boats of light draft to ply on the Cowlitz river. The larger boat of the two will run between Castle Rock and Portland, while the smaller will run between this place and Mossy Rock on the upper Cowlitz. The smaller boat is to be built at once and the larger one later on. It is claimed by Capt. Lewis that the small boat will only draw nine inches of water. All of the machinery will be in the forward part of the boat. It will have two wheels one forward, the other at the stern. These wheels will be run by an endless chain. The forward wheel is intended to run on the bottom of the river in the shallow places and will hold the boat steady so that she can be easily handled. Success to the new company.

Will Not Be Removed.

In response to the petition circulated and numerously signed, asking the Pacific Postal Telegraph-Cable Co., to reconsider its order to remove their office from this place to Warren, the following letter has been received by G. E. Andrews, the operator here:

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14, 1893.

G. E. ANDREWS, St. Helens.

Dear Sir:—"Your letter of Oct. is at hand. In view of the circumstances as you state them, we will let the loop remain where it is and keep the office where it is."

The office has been fairly well patronized, and it would be found very incenvenient to do business without it. In fact any modern improvement becomes a necessity when it is once enjoyed.

They Will Get Married.

After reading of the numerous matrimonial ventures of last week and the general tendancy to continue the interesting pastime, perhaps one ought not to be surprised if somebody tells him that even his own best girl had "gone with a handsomer man" and married some other fellow, but when Joe Campbell came quietly into town Wednesday evening with a handsome, heavily-veiled lady on his arm, and left her in the Oriental Hotel parlors while he paid a hasty visit to the court house, our little world received a shock it was not prepared for. When Joe produced a license and asked Justice Blakesley to tie the knot, the Judge was knocked clean off the persimon bush, and it took a five-dollar piece to restore him to consciousness. Joe needs no introduction to our readers and his wife is the well known landlady of the Occidental hotel, Portland. May joy go with them.

George E. Andrews, the accomodating and efficient operator at this place, has been tendered the office at Fresno, California, and will resign his position here to accept it. George is an industrious, gentlemanly, accomodating young fellow, and whatever position his employers may see fit to give him they have the assurance of having made a wise choice. George's many friends here join in wishing him success in his new position.

The Masquerade.

Don't fail to attend the masquerade at this place tonight. Remember everything is ready for a great time, masker's tickets, including supper, $1.50; general admission ticket, including supper $125; spectators 25 cents. Grand march at 8 o'clock.

Our genial friend Clarence White, went down to the Clatskanie fishing last Monday, and returned with two bull heads and one poor, sick, starved sucker, that was not able to stand the hard times, and had drifted out on a riffle to die. Clarence spinned us the regulation, large-sized fish story, with a few new and interesting variations. He says that just before he got to the river he saw a man who had a large creel over one shoulder, standing on the bank, stringing sixteen-inch trout on a stick, and wondered what he was doing that for when he had a basket to put them in. He approached the stranger and found that his basket was chock full of fourteen-inch trout, and that he was preparing to carry the large ones home on a pole over his shoulder. Clarence offered the fellow four bits apiece for two dozen of them but the man was stubborn and said that he didn't have any more than he wanted himself, besides, a four-bit piece was not worth as much as a trout since the house repealed the Sherman bill. The next time Mr. White goes trout fishing he will not carry his bait in a jug, and hopes that he will be able to catch something better than sleepy bullheads and consumptive suckers.

BACHELOR FLATS.

S. Saltser is digging his apples.

That is the worst mule I ever saw.—S. S.

E. E. Quick, accompanied by his daughter, paid his ranch a visit Sunday.

They say I got the license the other day but I don't know anything about it.—C. W.

J. S. Millard is getting ready for Thanksgiving, judging from the flock of turkeys on his ranch.

John Birdsall has about finished his new house and it will be quite an addition to the town.

Charles Wikstrom is thinking of turning taxidermist, and has been practicing on jail birds for the past week or ten days.

Erick is threshing his potatoes and says he would have had quite a multiplicity of them if it had not been for the merits of the little mice.

Cultivating Orchards.

The diverse treatment which orchards receive throughout the country affords a lesson showing the great benefit of giving them the best management, and the loss from neglected treatment. Neglect is too common, and poor crops and scabby fruit is the result. In contrast with these neglected orchards, are a few to which the owners give the best attention, and who receive good prices for the copious returns of handsome fruit. One orchard of this class, says the Country Gentleman, which has grown to full bearing size, affords the owner a handsome profit every year, while his careless neighbors receive not more than one-fourth of his returns. This well-managed orchard is kept in grass, which is grazed short by sheep, the grass afforded them being only one-half or two-thirds as much as would give them full feed, the deficiency being made up with grain or meal. This is fed to them regularly in long board troughs. The sheep eat every wormy apple as it falls, and the fruit is thus kept nearly clean from insects. The droppings of the sheep enrich the ground, and a top dressing of barn manure is added yearly.

The sales of the fruit from this orchard for many years have been equal to $100 from each acre it occupies. The shade of the apple trees prevents a rank growth of the grass, and the grazing of the sheep gives it somewhat the appearance of a lawn. The owners of some other excellent orchards, who cannot use sheep, apply yard or barn manure more copiously. In one of the finest visited, annual application of manure had gradually made it two or three inches deep; the result was a superb crop of apples. Other orchards, with less manure, are kept clean and mellow with a gang plow or Acme harrow to keep the surface clean and in a finely pulverized condition.

CLATSKANIE.

D. W. Freeman, of Fishhawk, was in town Tuesday.

Miss Dora Aldridge is down this week, suffering from fever.

Ed Elliott's house had a boy added to its attractions last week.

Potatoes are about all dug now, and in most cases turn out well.

A. M. Tichenor and party, have reached San Diego, Cal., where they find heat and dust.

Two divorce cases last week shows that wedded bliss may sometimes ferment and turn sour.

W. A. Edgerton has had an inclined walk built to his store, doing away with the steps, that were not the most comfortable.

Piles of new lumber brought to the church lot make it look as though something was going to be done there, and a new building is expected in the near future.

We notice that W. K. Tichenor is having some regard for the comfort of horses that are hitched about the warerooom, and has had a shed built for their protection. It will be appreciated and patronized when the weather requires it.

On Friday evening a literary and musical entertainment was given, mainly by the school pupils, at the public school building. It was in some measure, a test for the new organ taken into the building that day. Miss Lou Barr rendered some selections during the evening which were very pleasing, and greatly enjoyed. The exercises, generally, were good and highly appreciated. It was noted, however, that the pupils, in a musical way, performed their parts best. An admittance fee of ten cents was charged to go towards paying the balance due on tne organ.

The present road supervisor of road district No. 10, is making his administration somewhat memorable by showing persons what a road supervisor can do under the laws of Oregon. In opening the Marshland road, this summer, the necessity was alleged of calling for a second assessment and persons liable for work were ordered out a second time. Most of such persons performed the labor themselves or by substitute, but a few disputed the right of the assessor to call for more than one assessment yearly, and declined to work. Some of those having no property to levy on were treated to a copy of complaint and summons from the justice of the peace, made by the supervisor. Here was a starting point to test the matter and those interested were at first determined to enter a legal protest against the supervisor's action, but after figuring a little on the probable expense and the little certainty as to the result, all but two concluded that the easiest way out was to go to the justice and settle the matter by paying for the two days labor demanded and such costs as they were compelled to pay before the cases come to a hearing. The two others absented themselves suddenly and not appearing for trial judgment was entered against them in the justices court. This judgment according to law is collectable as a fine in a criminal action and one of the delinquents being in the Nehalem valley was brought over one day last week by a deputy sheriff, and refusing to pay the claim was sent to the county prison for ten days. The other absent one went over to Washington and in a few days returned with a road tax receipt. He was rather surprised to find he would have to pay the costs of the action in his case, but rustled around and paid them. It is evident to our people that the supervisor has a good deal of authority in road matters.

NEER CITY.

G. W. Farr is doing a rushing business since the compromise.

Mr. Fulton, of Reuben, has moved to Neer City and Mr. Royer expects to follow very soon.

As court week is over and the excitement incidental thereto is dying away, I will try to inform THE MIST what is going on at this place.

Messrs. Butts, Conard and Archibald will give a masquerade ball at Mooresville hall on the night of the 28th of this month. Tickets, including supper, $1.25. A good time is anticipated.

Since the last act of congress Link & Lamont have reduced the price of wood cutting to seventy-five cents a cord, and people are glad to get it to do at that price as there seems to be nothing else to do.

While in St. Helens, recently, we called on the editors of THE MIST and was very kindly entertained. They showed us the many intricacies of newspaper printing in a very interesting manner. The boys are entertainers, all right, and an hour or two can be profitably as well as pleasantly spent in their office.

Bennie and Ralph Neer have taken a contract to cut a strip of timber, thirty feet in width, through to the Nehalem, from this place. Bennie is a favorite among the people here and we want to see him do well. If he is successful in this undertaking we predict that though the winds may blow and the masts of his frail bark be shattered, he will stand by the helm and come gliding into port on an even keel.

The people of this place, it is said, are very kind hearted, and the following little incident verifies the statement: A lady was returning from a call the other day, and on the way she was startled by a cry of pain from an animal near by and going in the direction from which the sound came, she was astonished to see a small snake struggling in the coils of a larger one which was trying to swallow his little kinsman, body and soul. With true feminine pity for the weak, the lady found a stick and proposed to help the little sufferer out of its trouble, but before she had time to do anything the large snake succeeded in swallowing the smaller one. The large one must have been one of the pump snakes introduced in this country from Dakota, by one of your contempories in this county, for the little one no sooner disappeared at one end of its conquerer than it appeared at the other and quickly escaped to the bushes. The lady came back to town and reported the affair to the authorities. His snakeship was captured and snugly placed in a box and will be kept as a curiosity and its species propogated for the purpose of fighting forest fires.

REUBEN.

Jim McNaughton made a flying visit to Nehalem last week.

We are informed that the Kalama Hotel has changed hands.

Miss Grace Archibald has taken the place of Miss Bessie at the Riverside hotel owing to the severe illness of the latter.

H. B. Borthwick paid Mooresville a visit last Saturday. He reports not having found the mill in a very satisfactory condition.

Miss Fannie Mynatt departed from here last week to resume work in Portland, as the stores are taking back their old clerks and business once more rolls on.

Mat Roth had a cow killed by the cars at Reuben last Saturday. It would be well for the company to fence the track as a number of valuable cattle have been killed here this fall by trains.

Little Daisy, daughter of S. A. Fowler, of this place, met with the misfortune to have two fingers of her right hand nearly entirely severed from her hand, while at play with her little sister, one day this week. The deed was done with a hatchet, and the little sufferer will probably loose one finger as it was found to be hanging by but one very small piece of skin.
