

The World's Fair Tests showed no baking powder so pure or so great in leavening power as the Royal.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 WALL ST., NEW-YORK.

Professor Huxley on the Sea Serpent.
The sea serpent came in my way. But before I tell a story of what happened many years ago I may be permitted to remark that I have not the least objection to the existence of that retiring creature, which, like the elephant, always shuns the light of day, and is not to be seen. There is no a priori reason that I know of why snake-billed reptiles from 50 feet long and upward should not disappear themselves in our seas as they did in those of the cretaceous epoch, which, geologically speaking, is a mere yesterday.

A gentleman who had been cruising on the west coast of Scotland sent me an account of an apparition of the monster, backed by the lengthy deposition of a companion, a person of proved intelligence and competency in some departments of scientific work. I read this document attentively, and when I came to the end of it I was almost convinced. Unfortunately there was a second deposition, supposed and intended to be confirmatory, from one of the yacht's crew—a quartermaster, I think. From this, however, it appeared to be beyond doubt that the circumstances under which the first deposition was made were such that it was impossible that he could have properly ascertained himself of the facts to which he testified.

He had done what we are all tempted to do—mixed up observations and conclusions from them, as if they rested on the same foundation. I refer to the state of the case to my correspondent, and from that day to this I have heard no more of that particular sea serpent. Professor Huxley in London Times.

How Eskimos Count.
The Eskimos of Greenland for "twenty" say "a man," and for "hundred" they say "five men," but the generality of them are not such learned arithmeticians as this, and therefore when the number is above twenty they say "innumerable." For "eight" they say "three on the other hand," and "twenty-four" is "four on the second hand." The Eskimos use the similar terms. The Ahts for "five" say "one hand"; for "six" "one on hand"; for "seven," "two on hand"; for "eight" they say "two hands less two"; "nine" is "two hands less one," and "ten" is "two hands."—Chicago Mail.

The Wild Lands of Maine.
The Leviston (Me.) Journal says that the wild lands of Maine would make 13 states as large as Rhode Island, two as large as New Hampshire and Vermont and one twice as large as Massachusetts.

THE HIGHEST AWARD.

Royal Baking Powder in Strength and Value 20 Per Cent Above Its Nearest Competitor.

The Royal Baking Powder has the enviable record of having received the highest award for articles of its class—greatest strength, purest ingredients, most perfect combination—wherever exhibited in competition with others. In the exhibitions of former years, at the Centennial, at Paris, Vienna and at the various State and Industrial Fairs, where it has been exhibited, judges have invariably awarded the Royal Baking Powder the highest honor.

At the recent World's Fair the examination for the baking powder awards were made by the experts of the chemical division of the Agricultural Department of Washington. The official report of the tests of the baking powders which were made by this department for the specific purpose of ascertaining which was the best, and which has been made public, shows the leavening strength of the Royal to be 100 cubic inches of carbonic gas per ounce of powder. Of the cream of tartar baking powder exhibited at the Fair the next highest in strength thus tested contained but 133 cubic inches of leavening gas. The other powders gave an average of 111. The Royal, therefore, was found to 20 per cent greater leavening strength than its nearest competitor, and 40 per cent above the average of all the other tests. Its superiority in other respects, however, in the quality of the food it makes as to fitness, delicacy and wholesomeness could not be measured by figures. It is these high qualities, known and appreciated by the women of the country for so many years, that have caused the sales of the Royal Baking Powder, as shown by statistics, to exceed the sales of all other baking powders combined.

Making Sea Water Fit to Drink.
Electricity may yet enable us to purify sea water as to fit it for drinking purposes. One of the most recent tests conducted from the ship Albatross would be banished by such a discovery, provided that the electric apparatus could be made portable enough to be taken off in a boat.—Science Gossip.

I used Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh, and have received great benefit. I believe it a safe and certain cure. Very pleasant to take.—Wm. Frazar, Rochester, N. Y.

WELL-KNOWN PEOPLE

PROMINENT PERSONAGES FROM FAR AND NEAR.

People Who Have Gained Distinction in Their Particular Sphere in Life, Both in This Country and Abroad.—Richard W. Meade.

Richard W. Meade, recently appointed to succeed Rear-Admiral Henry Erben (retired), has had a brilliant naval career. He was born in New York City October 9, 1837, and appointed midshipman in 1850, and has since cruised in nearly every sea, always with honor. In 1886 he served in the West Indies, was in command of the ironclad Louisville of the Eastern fleet in 1882, and was commissioned commander in 1888 and in 1890 as Captain. Admiral Meade is also a writer on naval affairs, and is noted in the service for his frank, outspoken ways. He has served in all the latter-day famous ships of the navy. In the St. Louis he witnessed the Kosztar affair at Smyrna.

ADMIRAL MEADE was commissioned commander in 1888 and in 1890 as Captain. Admiral Meade is also a writer on naval affairs, and is noted in the service for his frank, outspoken ways.

G. W. Perkins. Of interest to wage earners is President G. W. Perkins of the Cigarmakers' International Union and his story of the cigarmakers' blue label. Since the label has been in use, he says, 103,903,710 have been distributed and the International Union has used $100,000 for label agitation, and local unions equally as much. A cigar bearing the blue label assures a smaller one made by a union man in a clean factory under fair conditions and pay, and costs the consumer not a cent more than one made by non-unionists. President Perkins succeeded President Strasser in 1891 as head of the cigarmakers' organization, and he bids fair to maintain the prestige of the organization in the labor world for an indefinite period.

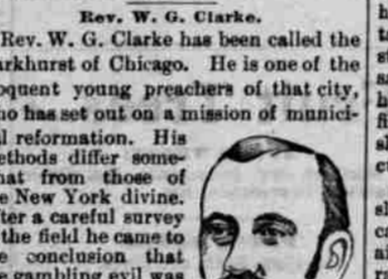

G. W. PERKINS, President of the Cigarmakers' International Union, is noted for his work in the labor world.

Empress of Russia.
The death of the Czar of Russia creates interest in and sympathy for the Czarina, whose picture accompanies this sketch. She is a sister of Alexandra, the Princess of Wales, and one of three daughters of King Christian of Denmark. She was married to the Czar on October 28, 1894, and since then has resided in the affection of her giant lord and master, the Czar of all the Russias. Her husband and no breath of scandal has ever touched their marital relations. The Empress was brought up in a plain and religious manner, and though her lovely disposition and tact has become a great favorite of the Russians. It is said that no one demands in vain her aid and protection. She has directed the education of her five children, and to them has communicated the best traits of her nature, her modesty and goodness of heart. She has a shrewd wit and a keen glance, and can decipher the politics of the time.

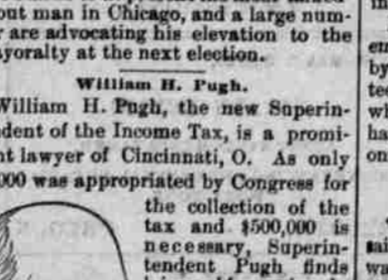

EMPERESS OF RUSSIA. The death of the Czar of Russia creates interest in and sympathy for the Czarina.

Rev. W. G. Clarke. Rev. W. G. Clarke has been called the Parkhurst of Chicago. He is one of the eloquent young preachers of that city, who has set out on a mission of manly reform. His methods differ from what those of the New York divine. After a careful survey of the field he came to the conclusion that the gambling evil was the worst of the evils of the city. Chicagoans were contending with, and at once planned for the suppression of that vice. He formed the Civic Federation, the chief object of which was to get against the houses of ill-fame. Mr. Clarke is at present the most-talked-about man in Chicago, and a large number are advocating his elevation to the Mayoralty at the next election.

REV. W. G. CLARKE. He is one of the eloquent young preachers of that city, who has set out on a mission of manly reform.

William H. Pugh. William H. Pugh, the new Superintendent of the Income Tax, is a prominent lawyer of Cincinnati, O. As only $8,000 was appropriated by Congress for the collection of the tax and $500,000 is necessary, Superintendent Pugh finds himself seriously handicapped. Mr. Pugh has served two terms as Prosecuting Attorney of Hamilton county, in which Cincinnati is situated. Since then he has practiced his profession, except when attending to his duties as Commissioner of Customs. He was appointed to the latter office by Secretary Carlisle in May, 1893. Although a man of between 50 and 60 years of age, he is very active, physically and mentally. One of his chief duties in his new position is to assess himself $4 for the reason that his annual salary is $4,200.

W. H. PUGH, the new Superintendent of the Income Tax, is a prominent lawyer of Cincinnati, O.

William Booth's Health. William Booth was born in 1829. He seems to have been fortunate in his parentage. His biographer says, "His mother was of an amiable disposition and saintly character that he regarded her as the nearest approach to human perfection with which he was acquainted." At 17 William became a local preacher. As to entering the ministry, he had grave doubts on account of his health. He underwent examination by a skilled physician, who pronounced him totally unfit for the strain of a Methodist preacher's life and assured him that 12 months of it would land him in the grave and "send him to the throne of God to receive punishment for suicide."

In the light of after events this seems very surprising. No man has done harder work than William Booth or done it for a longer time. He has never sipped himself or allowed any one to suggest his inability to keep it up indefinitely.—New York Herald.

GIRLHOOD IN ANCIENT GREECE.

Somewhat Restricted and Eminent Religious and Practical.

It would seem, judging from Miss Emily Penrose's lectures on early Athenian customs, that the women of ancient Greece, though they were fat and plump upon and inspired the sculptured ideal that have ever since set the standard of womanly loveliness, really had a very prosaic and stupid time of it among all the old poets and philosophers. And that it is a great deal nicer to live now, even with a hoop in your skirt and a stiff derby on your head, than in those days of poetry and high art, when a woman had no clubs or leagues, no social science sisterhoods, no sewing societies with nice men drifting in at the tea hour, no literary guilds or sanitary classes, no street cleaning organizations or hygienic fraternities, no nervous prostration, no crinolines, no careers and no stockings.

Little Athenian maids were kept closely in the women's apartments until they were married and very rarely appeared in public. They were taught reading, writing and dancing as accomplishments, but their real education consisted in learning to spin, to weave, to embroider and the treatment of simple illnesses among their slaves. They must also learn a great deal of elaborate ritual, as women took a prominent part in the family worship. In the courtyard garden in the center of the women's apartments the girls played among the flowers with their pet animals, the live plants being the place for the dolls and small figurines of today. At 7 years old a girl might become an Arphelose—a most envied post—and take part in the festivals of Athena.

At 10 she might engage in the exciting operation of grinding the corn to make votive cakes for Artemis; after that take part in certain high festivals and processions. Girls were frequently married at 15, the husband being chosen by the mother. Marriage was looked upon as both a civil and religious duty, and it was thought desirable that the husband should be much older than the wife, but so prosaic a wedding and romance to a girl was a wife never went unattended, but spent her time in looking after the house, superintending the slaves and preventing waste.

She was responsible for everything in her house, where all the food was prepared and all the clothing worn and made up. Her chief recreations were religious festivals and weddings, her only outside duties taking part in funeral ceremonies. Possibly this is the source of the inherent love of women for the mysticism of religion, the joy of weddings and the tragedy in death, for some women seem to enjoy the harrowing details of death ceremonies as well as the melody of wedding bells. Still those unemancipated women inspired the poet to glad bursts of songs and gave to the artist exquisite models of womanly grace and to the historian examples of heroism and self sacrifice which justified by facts the noble conceptions of the great poets who sang the charms of woman's virtue and beauty.

And they didn't have to fret because women wouldn't let them vote or worry because their last season's skirts would barely make sleeves for this season's gowns. So perhaps they were happier after all, and happiness is, next to beauty, the chief virtue of womanhood.—New York Sun.

A Desert Caravan.

A great caravan in many a superb spectacle, alas! too infrequent now in northern Africa. At first Arabs alone can detect it, a mere speck lost in a dusty haze, whence it emerges at length, a tawny colored mass possessed of a strange motion, the swarming of a thousand lives in one. Here and there all-bouqueted of straggling camels stand profile, like hieroglyphics, on the fiery sky, as, insensibly trailing its snakelike curves, the convoy advances.

Hours after being sighted it passes in slow file, led by a vanguard of blooded camels, whose gait and bearing have an air of arrogance not customary to that race of protractors, the chieftains alert on aloft in their floating burmooses, alert of eye, with gun in hand, straggling guardians of the convoy treasure. Behind them the camels of burden, exhausted less by loads than with the fatigues of the journey, their legs and croppers bald and scarred by blows, straggle forward languidly, thrusting out the tongue as they press their huge, spongy feet in the yielding ground. What resignation in their soft, staring eyes! Verily, no philosopher knows better than these poor brutes how insane are the revolts against insupportable fate.

Near at hand walk the drivers, their emaciated features savagely illumined by eyes of fire, and white, gleaming teeth piercing their parched lips. Of all who started with the caravan, how many have fallen by the way, abandoned to agonize alone in the desolation.—Scribner's.

Legends About the Moon.

"In Ceylon," says John Fiske, "it is said that as Sakyamuni was one day wandering half starved in the forest a pious hermit met him and offered itself to be slain and cooked for dinner, whereupon the holy Buddha set it on high in the moon that future generations of men might see it and marvel at its piety."

In the Samoan islands these dark patches are supposed to be portions of a woman's figure. A certain woman was once hammering something with a mallet when the moon arose, looking so much like a breadfruit that the woman asked it to come down and allow her child to eat off a piece of it, but the moon, enraged at the insult, gobbled up woman, mallet and child, and there in the moon's belly you may still behold them.—New York Telegram.

Surprised While Stealing a Ride.

A man named Edward Fuller of Philadelphia tried to steal a ride on a Pennsylvania railroad passenger train from the Broad street station, intending to get off at a suburban station. Instead of getting on a local train he boarded the Cincinnati and St. Louis express, getting between the tender and baggage car. He could not jump off and was sitting on the platform when the locomotive scooped up water from the tank between the rails. As the tank in the tender filled up it overflowed and almost drowned Fuller, who to escape opened the baggage car door and entered the car. The huge volume of water poured in after him and deluged the car, destroying the contents of a number of trunks. Fuller was arrested when the train reached Harrisburg and is now in jail for malicious mischief.—Cor. Philadelphia Telegraph.

FAITH CURISTS.

These very confident people are strangely self-satisfied until danger to life looms up, as when the chronic pains of many years' endurance attack the heart, like Rheumatism very often does, then they turn to a better faith. This better faith—held to by many thousands—is simple and direct. It is founded on experience that St. Jacobs Oil will cure, because it has cured all these painful ailments permanently. It is a faith founded on reason. We know what can be done by what has been done a thousand times. Every physician knows that those who have belief in treatment are the more easily cured; those who have not set up a resistance to the progress of cure.

Another Authentic Portrait of Columbus.

An alleged discovery at Naples of a beautiful authentic portrait by Titian of Christopher Columbus has caused a great sensation there. Our correspondent writes: The full length life size portrait was shown to me by Signor Cannavina, the antiquarian, who purchased it from Count Aldobrandi at Bologna. The whole, with the exception of the face and hands, had been coarsely painted over. This extraneous coat being removed, the figure in the uniform of a Spanish admiral was revealed. The face and coloring are very quiet; the face that of a man with hair just turning gray; the eyes are blue, thoughtful and even sad; the mouth is firmly cut, and he wears a pointed, short black beard and mustache. On the tapering fingers are three massive rings. The canvas is of a peculiar twilled kind. Signor Cannavina possesses documents which vouch for the authenticity of the picture. It is to be sent for exhibition to Chicago.—London News.

The Habitual Borrower.

Who has not a good friend whom he would gladly serve in any possible way, but who vexes his patience and tries his soul almost beyond endurance by the pernicious habit of borrowing and not repaying? The borrowing is had enough. However comic one's views may be, he still adheres to the rule that established rules in regard to private and individual rights of property, and he does object to his dearest friend appropriating his umbrella or boots just when he most needs them himself, or to walking off with his most cherished desk or to the frequent stealing of "socks, have you a quarter or 50 cents in change?" and then never thinking about making any return.

It is not the value of the book or pen or the money that one thinks of, but it is the principle of the thing and the disappointment in discovering one's friend will do such a thing. The friend is by no means an intentionally dishonest person. He is high-souled and honorable, but there is just a little something wrong with the man who will let such a habit fasten itself upon him, either from preoccupation and press of affairs or from sheer carelessness and disregard of the rights of others.—Ohio State Journal.

HAUNTED!

A haunted house in these practical and unromantic days is something of a rarity, but an individual haunted with the idea that his ailment is incurable is a personage frequently met with. Glibly he is told that his ailment is only a mild form of monomania, although in some cases repeated failures to obtain relief from many different sources almost seem to justify the doubt. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has demonstrated its ability to overcome dyspepsia, constipation, liver troubles, neuralgia, rheumatism, and all the chronic ailments that attend upon the system. It is a safe and reliable remedy. Ask for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and you will get the best.

IMITATORS AND IMPOSTORS.

The unequal success of ALCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER as an external remedy has induced unscrupulous parties to offer imitations, which they endeavor to sell on the reputation of ALCOCK'S. It is an absolute necessity for the genuine Porous Plaster to speak of them in the same category as the genuine Porous Plaster. Their alleged equality with ALCOCK'S is a false pretense.

The ablest medical practitioners and chemists of thousands of grateful patients unite in declaring ALCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER the best external remedy ever produced. Ask for ALCOCK'S, and accept no other.

SMOKELESS SHOTGUN POWDER.

When American "E. C." "E. C." Smokeless Powder is "Challenge," "E. C." Smokeless or "Superior" "E. C." Smokeless Shotgun Cartridges. There is only one quality of "E. C." powder and that is the "E. C." of the Smokeless Cartridges always loaded to order; so the dealers always get fresh goods.
