A Flaming Stream.

A party of Bethany students in an attempt to have fun Thursday night succeeded in scaring the town and community in general. Up Buffalo creek a big gusher oil well was recently opened up, and since then great quantities of oil have been coming down that usually placid stream. About 9 o'clock Thursday night the boys set fire to the oil in the creek with startling effect. It immediately spread over the width of the creek and then started off with the current, leaving in its train a sheet of flame nearly 70 feet high.

It was not long until Bethany was trembling in a semicircle of flame. Within an hour the creek looked like a serpent of fire nearly two miles long. Dense volumes of smoke almost suffocated the people of Bethany. By the close of the second hour every road was blockaded with wagons and buggies containing people who had come in for miles to see the strange fire upon the waters, and thousands of spectators were upon the hilltops.

The fire's fury increased until 24 hours had elapsed, when the flames died out. The damage was small. The water in the creek was nearly boiling when the fire was gone.—Wheeling Intelligencer.

The Winter In the City of Mexico.

The spring arrived here on the tablelands of Mexico four weeks ago, when all the peach and pear trees began blossoming, and the great ash trees, the handsomest of all the trees in this valley, renewed their leaves. The winter, if such a name can justly be given to a season which is different from the other seasons only in being slightly cooler, has been warm and pleasant, with not a single day when out of door life would be unpleasant. I recall that New Year's day was excessively warm, and that riding at noon on that day was hot work.

We have had hardly any snow on the smaller mountains making up the frame of this incomparable valley of Mexico, and this is unusual, as generally for a week or two in January the lower hills will get a capping of snow, which makes them a handsome sight under the overhead tropical sun. Nor did we have the usual amount of the "aguas nieves," or snow waters, a few days of cold showers, which are due to arrive in January, but staid away. In fact, while you in the far north have had what may fairly be called a tremendous winter, we have been enjoying one long Indian summer. —Cor. Boston Herald.

THE BUSINESS MAN'S LUNCH.

Hard Work and Indigestion go Hand in Hand.

Concentrated thought, continued in, robs the stomach of necessary blood, and this is also true of hard physical labor.

When a five horse-power engine is made to do ten horse-power work something is going to break. Very often the hard-worked man coming from the field or the office will "bolt" his food in a few minutes which will take hours to digest. Then too, many foods are about as useful in the stomach as a keg of nails would be in a fire under a boiler. The ill-used stomach refuses to do its work without the proper stimulus which it gets from the blood and nerves. The nerves are weak and "ready to break," because they do not get the nourishment they require from the blood, finally the ill-used brain is morbidly wide awake when the overworked man attempts to find rest in bed.

The application of common sense in the treatment of the stomach and the whole system brings to the busy man the full enjoyment of life and healthy digestion when he takes Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets to relieve a bilious stomach or after a too hearty meal, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to purify, enrich and vitalize the blood. The "Pellets" are tiny sugar-coated pills made of highly concentrated vegetable ingredients which relieve the stomach of all offending matters easily and thoroughly. They need only be taken for a short time to cure the biliousness, constipation and slothfulness, or torpor, of the liver; then the "Medical Discovery" should be taken in teaspoonful doses to increase the blood and enrich it. It has a peculiar effect upon the lining membranes of the stomach and bowels, toning up and strengthening them for all time. The whole system feels the effect of the pure blood coursing through the body and the nerves are vitalized and strengthened, not deadened, or put to sleep, as the so-called celery compounds and nerve mixtures do—but refreshed and fed on the food they need for health. If you suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia, nervousness, and any of the ills which come from impure blood and disordered stomach, you can cure yourself with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which can be obtained at any drug store in the country.

I suffered terribly from roaring in my head during an attack of catarrh, and because very deaf, used Ely's Cream Balm and in three weeks could hear as well as ever.—A. E. Newman, Gearing, Ind.

A STUPID ATTEMPT

To Sell Bad Whisky Under a Popular Brand.

Brands and Labels of the Famous Jesse Moore Whisky Imitated by a Seattle Importer, Who is Now Under Arrest.

The recent arrest in Seattle, Wash., of Aaron Jaffe by a United States internal revenue officer for wholesaling liquor without a license has disclosed one of the most daring and dangerous frauds that has been perpetrated against the government, and against one of the most reputable and popular whisky firms in the United States. Numerous complaints have reached Moore Hunt & Co. of San Francisco, sole agents on the Pacific Coast of the famous old Jesse Moore whisky, that a counterfeit article was being largely sold in Washington. The labels, bottles and wrappers were cast so exact an imitation of the genuine as to readily deceive the owners of the original brand. The contents were, however, as might be expected, not even an imitation but of so vile a character as to be readily detected by any one who is familiar with the high quality of the Jesse Moore whisky. Jaffe continued his operations to the sale of case goods; therefore detection was easy, as was also success in disposing of his goods, which bore the popular A 1 brand.

Ostensibly Jaffe was acting as agent for the "Golden Medal Distilling Company of Chicago," possibly a mythical concern. At any rate, all bills were made out and receipted in the name of that company. However, in a type-written letter prepared by Jaffe and mailed without signature to liquor dealers in Washington, he openly claimed that the whisky was spurious, but that the labels and bottles were so successfully imitated as to deceive even Jesse Moore & Co. or their agents, and in this single claim he was correct.

It has been said that "poor things are never imitated," which is a truism that even Jesse Moore & Co. and Moore, Hunt & Co. may accept with some small degree of satisfaction, and the fact that the Jesse Moore whiskies have become immensely popular and are steadily superseding all other brands of whisky on this Coast as well as throughout the Eastern States, was doubtless the strongest incentive to Jaffe to embark in an illicit and fraudulent manufacture.

Selling liquor at wholesale without a license is a serious offense against the United States internal revenue laws, and Jaffe will doubtless, as he should, upon conviction receive a severe penalty for his wrongdoing. Infringement of a copyright is also a serious offense, with severe penalties. Altogether, it would seem that this imitator of an excellent article has involved himself to an extent which will necessitate his prolonged retirement from the whisky business.

When arrested and confronted with the evidence of his crime, Jaffe broke down and made a full confession of his own guilt, without, however, implicating his partners in the fraud, whose identity is yet in doubt. The facts will doubtless come out on the trial. As the evidence against Jaffe is cumulative and abundant, there is no doubt of his conviction.

This is the most daring attempt yet made to imitate the Jesse Moore whisky, but the manufacturers may find some satisfaction in the fact that the culprit is suppressed Moore, Hunt & Co. will vigorously push the prosecution of Jaffe for fraud in counterfeiting their trade-mark and labels.

She Had Saved Every Hair.

Evidence may assume different shapes, but it is seldom that a wife introduces in court a pasteboard box filled with her own hair as evidence of cruel and abusive treatment at the hands of her husband. This is what Mrs. Annie Sutton of East Boston did in the Suffolk probate court at a hearing on her petition for separate support and a money allowance from her husband, John Sutton.

The box was 14 inches long, 6 wide and 3 deep, and was filled with hair. Mrs. Sutton testified that her husband in fits of rage had pulled out her hair, and that she had preserved it until she now had the box full. The husband denied that he had pulled out his wife's hair and was astonished at the introduction of this extraordinary evidence.

Angelo's Verdict.

Once a painter notorious for plagiarisms executed a historical picture in which every figure of importance was copied from some other artist, so that very little remained to himself. It was shown to Michael Angelo by a friend, who begged his opinion of it. "Excellently done," said Angelo, "only, at the day of judgment, when all bodies will resume their own limbs again, I do not know what will become of that historical painting, for there will be nothing left of it."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Royal Leads All.

The Royal Baking Powder is the purest and strongest baking powder made, and has received the highest award at all the great international and State fairs, wherever exhibited in competition with others.

The judge of awards on baking powder at the late Chicago Fair, Prof. H. W. Wiley, writes that the impertinent claims of other companies that they received the highest award for strength and purity are false; that no such awards were given them.

WELL-KNOWN PEOPLE

PROMINENT PERSONAGES FROM FAR AND NEAR.

People Who Have Gained Distinction in Their Particular Sphere in Life, Both in This Country and Abroad—Prince Hohenlohe.

Prince von Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurstt, the new German Chancellor, is also Premier of Prussia, as the two offices have been consolidated under one head with enlarged powers. The Cabinet dissensions which resulted in the resignation of Chancellor Caprivi and Premier Eulenburg grew out of the Socialist question. Prince Hohenlohe, although 75 years of age, is very active physically and mentally. He was the Bavarian Premier in 1866, and when offered the Chancellorship by Emperor William was Governor of Alsace-Lorraine.

PRINCE HOHENLOHE

Edward Fournil.

The most interesting element—if such a phrase can be properly applied to a man—in the billiard world in this country is Edward Fournil, the French player who came over with Catton to play Schaefer and Ives. Though not the champion of France, there is every probability that he will be if he continues to produce such scores as he made in a series of games he played with Vignaux shortly before leaving France. He defeated the champion fifteen games out of twenty, 300 to 400 points up, fourteen-inch balk line, and in one of the games went out in one run. It is believed that he is competent to hold his own with men like Slosson, and perhaps with Ives.

E. FOURNIL.

Henry R. Whitmore.

An important convention was that of the Transmississippi Congress, held in St. Louis November 26. It was attended by delegates from the twenty-two States west of the Mississippi and 450 cities, and had for its object the promotion and protection of Western interests. The President incumbent is Henry R. Whitmore of St. Louis, one of the best known and most influential men of his city. His election at the California session, held last winter, was considered a great victory for St. Louis, especially as that city was also named as the location of the recent meeting.

Major Augustus O. Bacon.

Major Augustus O. Bacon, who has been elected to represent Georgia in the United States Senate for the long term beginning March 4, 1895, is 50 years old, and has been prominent in politics nearly all his life. He is a successful lawyer and a man of fine ability. He was Speaker of the Georgia House of Representatives several years ago, and entered the Legislature last session with the expressed purpose of capturing the Senatorship. He is a man of considerable means, and comes of an old Southern family.

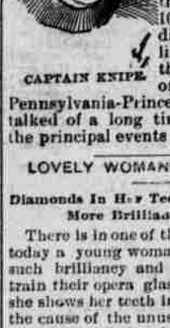
Captain Knipe.

The recent defeat of the Princeton football team by that of the University of Pennsylvania makes the Captain of the latter a center of interest in the sporting world. Captain Knipe is quite young, but is probably the best leader the team has ever had. Though he had been playing quarter-back earlier in the season, during the big game of the 10th ultimo he was diving through the lines as of old. He is the best line-bucker on the team. The Pennsylvania-Princeton game had been talked of a long time, and was one of the principal events of the season.



CAPTAIN KNIPE.

LOVELY WOMAN'S NEW DEVICE.

Diamonds In Her Teeth Make Her Smiles More Brilliant Than Ever.

There is in one of the New York theaters today a young woman who smiles with such brilliancy and sparkle that people train their opera glasses on her whenever she shows her teeth in the hope of finding the cause of the unusual brilliancy. Her name is not printed here, as there is no particular reason for advertising her, but it may be said that she is a most notable illustration of what is said to be the highest development of the dental craze in San Francisco. She has three diamonds set in her teeth, and they are unquestionably stones of the first water. There is one in a lower tooth, and two are in upper teeth, on either side of the mouth. She said when the manager of the theater talked to her a few nights since in the presence of a New York Sun reporter that she knew several other women in San Francisco who had tiny but brilliant diamonds set in their teeth, and she did not see why the plan should not become a general one.

As this is the first time that any one has publicly displayed diamonds in this fashion in New York, it may be well to state that English papers have for six months insisted that the setting of diamonds in teeth is a custom widely prevalent in America among both men and women. The papers have commented so much upon it that the news is apparently well grounded that numberless people have added to the value of their smiles in this way here, though New Yorkers would no doubt be astonished to learn that they have such a reputation abroad. In a Bond street show window in London there is another novelty, which is advertised as "the latest American fashion." It is a small network of silk, about 2 inches square, upon which the American man or woman of fashion has the initials of his or her name formed with tiny gold links, and which is sewed neatly into a corner of the handkerchief. When the handkerchiefs are sent to the laundry, the initials are ripped off and are sewed on again when the handkerchiefs are returned. All of this is very much of a novelty over here, despite the assertion in the London papers that it is an American fashion.

A FAT MAN'S DEED.

Story of a Tragic Scene on a Brooklyn Trolley Car Which Might Be True.

A very stout old Brooklyn gentleman squeezed himself past two women on a Putnam avenue car and wedged in between one of them and a man at the other end of the seat. The fit was such a tight one that the women held their breaths and assumed a pancake appearance. At the corner where the car turns into Putnam avenue the fat man turned like a big turret and put up a chubby finger. The car stopped.

"Putnam avenue; Grand avenue and Fulton street!" shouted the conductor.

The fat man settled back and resumed reading a newspaper, which he had dropped in his lap.

"Want to get out here?" asked the conductor, with his hand on the bell-rope.

The fat man shook his head. There was an angry twang of the cord, and the trolley began to whiz.

At Nostrand avenue the chubby finger went up again. The car stopped. Nobody moved. Then the man who rings up the fares got angry.

"See here," he exclaimed after he had climbed along the step on the side of the car until he was opposite the fat man, "what do you mean by telling me to stop for when you don't want to get off?"

"Why," responded the mountain of flesh as coolly as such a mass of adipose could be cool, "the car jolts so that I couldn't read this paragraph, which is slightly blurred. I merely wanted to have the car stand still until I had finished it. That's all. Now, if you can go along slowly without jolting, I will be able to get along very nicely, but if I come across another bad line or two I'll put my hand back of my head, and you stop. It's too much trouble for me to turn around."

The conductor's eyes twittered in the orbits. He placed his hand to his head and uttered shriek after shriek. Reason was shattered. He had become cross eyed and insane.—New York Mail and Express.

ANCIENT LIGHTHOUSES.

Beacon Lights to Guide Mariners Coeval With the Earliest Commerce.

Beacon lights to guide the wave tossed mariner to a safe harbor must have been almost coeval with the earliest commerce. There is positive record that lighthouses were built in ancient times, though few evidences now remain to us from old writers or in crumbled ruins. This is not strange, for light towers, never the most stable architectural form, were exposed to the storms of sea and war.

The Greeks attributed the first lighthouses to Hercules, and he was considered the protector of voyagers. It is claimed by some that Homer refers to lighthouses in the nineteenth book of the "Iliad."

Virgil mentions a light on a temple to Apollo which, visible far out at sea, warned and guided mariners. The Colossus at Rhodes, erected about 300 B. C., is said to have shown a signal light from its uplifted hand.

The oldest towers known were built by the Libyans in lower Egypt. They were temples also, and the lightkeeper priests taught pilotage, hydrography and navigation. The famous tower on the isle of Pharos, at Alexandria, built about 285 B. C., is the first lighthouse of undoubted record. This tower, constructed by Sostratus, the architect, was square in plan, of great height and built in offsets. An open brazier at the top of the tower contained the fuel for the light. At Dover and Boulogne, on either side of the English channel, were ancient lighthouses built by the Romans. But the lighthouse at Corunna, Spain, built in the reign of Trajan and reconstructed in 1634, is believed to be the oldest existing lighthouse.—E. P. Adams in Cassier's Magazine.

The Drug Store Telephone.

"Accommodation bureaus are all right when they are conducted as such," said a west side druggist, "but the sign over my door was intended to inform the public that drugs were dispensed within and not information doled out or telephone messages delivered blocks away. I make no kick when stamps are asked for and the city directory consulted by people, but when they ring up the telephone and call me from my work to answer it and then want a message delivered to a friend living a long distance from the store only a certificate of membership in the Antiswearing club which I have pasted on the transmitter keeps me from uttering fancy language. This morning I was at the breakfast table and was called to the phone. I found it was a lady who patronized me about once a month. She didn't talk plainly and kept me guessing for 15 minutes what she was driving at. I discovered that she wanted me to tell her next door neighbor that she wouldn't be home to dinner and ask her to open a window of the house and 'for mercy sake feed the poor little cat.' The telephone has been removed."—Buffalo Enquirer.

These Hereditary Interlopers.

I have always held that the very existence of a house of hereditary legislators is an intolerable abuse, and consequently that the country has a right to make use of every constitutional form to hinder the lords from interference with the popular will. Who represent the popular will? Assuredly its representatives. If, then, the elected representatives of the nation decide in favor of home rule, the lords are guilty of an act of lese majeste to the people if they interpose their veto. What can be more ridiculous than that a few hundred men—some hereditary legislators, some legislators because they have made huge fortunes by selling beer or by some similar avocation—should pretend to know better than the nation what the nation wants?

The true method to proceed with such obstructionists is, if they throw out the home rule bill to bring it in again in an autumn session and tack it on to the appropriation bill. If this be done home rule will become the law of the land before the end of this year. If it be not done I really do not know when it will become law. I am sick of half measures with these hereditary interlopers.—London Truth.

The Origin of Dyspepsia.

Doctor—It's merely a case of dyspepsia, ma'am.

Wife—And what does that come from?

Doctor—It comes from the Greek, ma'am.

Wife—Ah, I thought he'd been getting at something. He was all right as long as he stuck to beer.—Wilkesbarre Newsdealer.

HOW IT MAY HAPPEN.

"Jeminy crickets, she's got the rickets," whispered one beau to another in the company of a very pretty girls. Truly she was very beautiful, but there was a twitching about the nerves of the face which showed suffering. "No," said the other, "it's neuralgia and she's a martyr to it." St. Jacobs Oil was suggested as the world-renowned cure for it. Did she try it? Yes and was cured by it and—married "one of the fellows" afterward. The use of the great remedy for pain will not bring about a marriage, but in its cure of pain it will bring about conditions of health to make life more enjoyable. No man or woman ought to marry who is a sufferer from chronic pains. We should not wed woe to win only wretchedness.

Kept the Crown.

Orleans House, Twickenham, where Louis Philippe lived when duke of Orleans, is in the property market. In later days, staying as an exiled king at the Star and Garter, Richmond, he walked one day to Twickenham for the purpose, as he said, of seeing some of the old tradesmen who had served him when he resided there. The first person to recognize him was an old man, who doffed his hat and hoped his royal highness was well. The recognition, however, was not mutual. "Perhaps," said the old man, "your royal highness will remember me when I tell you that I keep the Crown"—an alehouse close to the entrance of Orleans House. "Do you?" said Louis Philippe. "Let me congratulate you. You are able to do what I am not."—London News.

A HERALD OF THE INFANT YEAR.

Clip the last thirty years or more from the century, and the segment will represent the term of the unbounded popularity of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The opening of the year 1895 will be signalized by the appearance of a fresh Almanac of the Bitters, in which the uses, derivation and action of this world-famous medicine will be lucidly set forth. Everybody should read it. The calendar and astronomical calculations to be found in this brochure are always astonishingly accurate, and the statistics, illustrations, humor and other reading matter rich in interest and full of profit. The Hostetter Company of Pittsburg, Pa., publish it themselves. They employ more than sixty hands in the mechanical work, and more than eleven months in the year are consumed in its preparation. It can be obtained, without cost, of all druggists and country dealers, and is printed in English, German, French, Welsh, Norwegian, Swedish, Holland, Bohemian and Spanish.
