HOUSEKEEPERS who are wise will not be persuaded into the purchase of the unreliable baking powders which some dealers wish to sell for the sake of the additional profit derived therefrom. Crudely mixed from low-grade, impure ingredients, such powders cost but half as much to make as the highly refined, absolutely pure Royal Baking Powder, although retailed at the same price. They are unwholesome and lacking in leavening strength.

Royal Baking Powder gives the greatest value for its cost, and there is no other powder or preparation that will give such satisfaction, or make such pure, wholesome and delicious food, or which in practical use will be found so economical.

FRANCE WILL SEE FIGHTING.

General Duchesne's Task of Conquering Madagascar Not an Easy One.

General Duchesne, who has been appointed commander of the French expedition which will attempt to conquer and annex Madagascar in March or April at an initial expense of $13,000,000, has been in the military service of France for 39 years. He was born in eastern France 57 years ago, was graduated from the military school of St. Cyr and made a sublieutenant of the Second infantry in 1857. At the battle of Solferino, in 1859, he was badly wounded and was rewarded with the cross of the Legion of Honor. He became a captain in 1864, and his regiment displayed heroic conduct in 1870 at the battle of Spickeren, losing its colonel, lieutenant colonel, 23 officers and nearly 400 men. Duchesne escaped the slaughter, but was captured at Metz and sent to a German prison. He has also served France with distinction in Algeria, Tonquin and Formosa. He received the rank of brigadier general in 1888 and was made general of a division in 1893.

GENERAL DUCHESNE.

France has coveted Madagascar since 1642, when she gained a foothold at Anosy, but wars with the natives compelled her to abandon the conquest. The big African island, which is twice as long as New York state and larger than France, has great natural riches and is of decided strategic importance. In 1885 France compelled Madagascar to give her a coaling station at Diego Suarez and assumed a partial protectorate, taking care of Madagascar's foreign affairs, much against her will. Flushed with her conquest of Siam, France has concluded that the time has come for the conquest of more territory; hence the expedition soon to be dispatched under General Duchesne's leadership.

In reply to France's recent ultimatum Queen Ranavalona III refused France's demands for more territory on the island and insists upon Madagascar's right to import munitions of war. As the climate of the lowlands is hot and deadly, and as the Hovas, the dominant tribe, have an army as large as the standing army of the United States, well trained and equipped with modern weapons, the little French army of 5,000 or 6,000 men will not find the subjugation of Madagascar an easy task. On several occasions the natives have routed attacking parties of French and English, and with months of warning Queen Ranavalona will doubtless have a warm reception ready for General Duchesne.

Syllogistic.

Forty years since "Porte Crayon" was down on Albermarle sound and told a native that there were men with mouths eight inches wide. The native declared that was a fish story. Porte reproved him for his incredulity and pointed out that deductions from known facts proved this statement. "We know," he said, "that oysters must be eaten whole. We know that there are oysters eight inches across the minor dimension. Therefore there must be mouths eight inches wide to take them in, or the beautiful chain of harmony in the universe is broken."

Get well: That's the way to look well. Cure the disorders and ailments that beset you, with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It regulates and promotes all the proper functions, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength. It's a powerful general, as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, imparting vigor and strength to the entire system.

MRS. ULRICH.

MRS. ANNA ULRICH, of Elm Creek, Buffalo Co., Neb., writes: "I enjoy good health thanks to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I was under doctors' care for two years with womb disease, and gradually wasting in strength all the time. I was so weak that I could sit up in bed only a few moments, for two years. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and by the time I had taken one-half dozen bottles I was up and going wherever I pleased, and have had good health and been very strong ever since—that was two years and a half ago."

Expenses at the World's Fair.

The admission ticket entitles the visitor to see all of the World's fair proper, covering 500 acres of Jackson park. This includes access to the 12 principal buildings, the state and government buildings and the headquarters of all countries represented. The guidebook may be bought in one large volume or in parts. A few cents will be charged for rolling chairs, gondolas and boats on the lagoon. These will be a great assistance in economizing time and strength. Guides who will pilot a party of five for 50 cents an hour may be hired, but the Columbian guards are prepared to give information, and armed with a catalogue you will have but little use for a guide.

For the one admission fee you may also walk in the Midway plaisance and see the curious foreign architecture and modes of life and industry. If you desire to enter any of the buildings or villages, a fee of about 25 cents will have to be paid, as these are private concessions.

If you are prepared to economize, you can live comfortably and see all the sights for a month on $100. One hundred and fifty dollars should be enough for any reasonable human being, though of course there is practically no limit to the amount you may spend on souvenirs, works of art and personal display. You can even pay as if you were four persons rolled into one if you insist on a private bathroom at a hotel, but $3 to $5 a day will pay all reasonable expenses.—Chicago Letter.

The President at a Reception.

Mr. Cleveland has by force of precedent continued the ancient custom of receiving the general public three times a week in the great east parlor, but there is little doubt that he should like, as probably any other president would like, to escape this task of handshaking. The hour set for this function is 1:30 p. m., just after the president has eaten luncheon. A man who is so intimately familiar with Mr. Cleveland as to know his private personal ways is authority for the statement that upon every one of these public reception days Mr. Cleveland has gone to his bedroom and there quietly slipped into his pocket a revolver, and then descended the stairs to the east parlor.

Moreover, the throng of visitors who flock to these public receptions is kept at some distance from the president as he stands in the doorway which serves as an exit for those who pass him. This is done by a cordon of servants of the house, who, counting merely the doorkeepers and messengers, entirely outside of the clerical force in executive offices, number at least 20. The visitors string by the president in Indian file, and as they pass him, receiving each one a shake of the hand, they pass also a most pleasant but determined looking man standing exactly opposite Mr. Cleveland. The people do not know it, but this man is also armed.—New York Recorder.

Likely to Be Cruel Sport.

Colonel Cody could put himself at a very much better enterprise than that of encouraging the cowboy race which is to take place to the World's fair. It is not in the least likely that a race run by cowboys of several nationalities, all of them the wildest men of their type, will be signalized by any great amount of humanity. Indeed the chances are that the horses will simply be run beyond their strength. Such a race is in great contrast to a race between trained horses, whose speed is a matter of fine calculation, and to whom the whip is seldom touched. The race of the cowboys it is very much more than likely will contain every possible feature of brutality.

It may be characteristic of a portion of the west, but the people at the fair do not want to see everything that is characteristic of this country, but only that which is best as well as that which is characteristic. It is to be hoped that officers of the humane society will be on the ground, and that they will see that there is no slaughter of horses. We want to leave that sort of thing to Germany—which does it well.—Omaha World-Herald.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

Fact or Fiction About Two Great Fair Awards.

A newspaper paragraph denounces as "false" the claim of a baking powder company to an award at the World's Fair. Whom can it mean?

Certainly not Dr. Price's. Why? Because, as the records show, Dr. Price's exhibited, competed and received the highest award both at Chicago and the California Midwinter Fair. The award in California included Gold Medal. The official examiners pronounced it the strongest, the purest, the most wholesome and efficient of all the baking powders. Its title to confidence is unquestioned.

Can it be the manufacturers of a New York powder, fictitiously labeled "absolutely pure," who are making "false" claims? That would be strange indeed, inasmuch as they were not even considered in the awards.

Was it Ammonia in the New York powder that prevented its makers from competing? If not, what?

WELL-KNOWN PEOPLE

PROMINENT PERSONAGES FROM FAR AND NEAR.

People Who Have Gained Distinction in Their Particular Sphere in Life, Both in This Country and Abroad—Mr. Trevor-Battye.

Considerable anxiety is felt for Mr. Trevor-Battye, a London writer and explorer, who since June has been on the Island of Kalgney, in the Arctic Ocean, north of Russia. He was landed there with only six week's provisions, and his boat, the Saxon, has been unable to reach the island again and take him off. The explorer is a mighty hunter and fisher and a man of great pluck and strength. At Oxford he distinguished himself by re-establishing the Hawking Club that had been extinct for nearly a century and a half. After leaving college he roamed the world over as hunter, fisherman and naturalist. His book, "Pictures in Prose," attracted widespread attention.

Mrs. May Wright Sewall, recently made President of the National Council of Women, is a very active member of a number of other women's clubs and organizations. She was born in Milwaukee, and in 1866 graduated from the Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill. She taught for a few years, and was then married to Edwin W. Thompson of Paw Paw, Mich., who died in 1875. In 1880 she married Theodore L. Sewall of Indianapolis, which city has since been her home, where she has a large training school for girls. She is an able speaker, writer and organizer, and has been called to preside over many meetings and conventions.

Harry Bourjohn.

In the athletic world Harry Bourjohn, the young cross country runner of Philadelphia, is a celebrity. Though he is only 17 years of age and has had little experience at long distance running, he recently defeated George W. Orton of the University of Pennsylvania, who held the world's record. Bourjohn led the field along the entire course, and finished strong and apparently within his powers. He is a member of the American Rowing Club, and was given a start of 5 minutes and 15 seconds. He ran over the course of 5 13-32 miles in 33 minutes, actual time. Orton, who started from scratch, finished fourth, but ran the distance in 27 minutes and 50 seconds. This race is an annual event, and attracts much attention.

M. Faye.

M. Faye, who recently attained the jubilee of his astronomical career, is one of the most illustrious members of the Paris Academy of Science, and is now the "Father" of all living astronomers. The comet recently detected by an American is one discovered by M. Faye in 1844, and has not been detected for fifty years. M. Faye was elected a member of the Section of Astronomy in 1847. He is the head of the French Nautical Office and President of the Official Board of the Paris Observatory. He was one of the Cabinet Ministers for Public Instruction during the short-lived Rochebouet administration of 1877, which was called into office by Marshal MacMahon. M. Faye's scientific achievements are of great value.

Fred Carleton.

Fred Carleton, who was selected Deputy Grand Sire of the order of Odd Fellows at the recent session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge held at Chattanooga, has been a member of the order nearly twenty-four years. He was admitted to the Grand Lodge of Texas in 1874 and in 1878 to the Grand Encampment. He was elected representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge in 1880 to fill a vacancy, and the following year was again elected. In 1882 he was returned for the full term of two years, and has succeeded himself in the Sovereign Grand Lodge continuously since that date. At the session of 1890 he was nominated for the office of Deputy Grand Sire, without success. In 1892 he was again nominated, but withdrew after the second ballot.

FRED CARLETON.

The Progress of Socialism.

The progress of socialism is making the Duke of Cambridge a sadder—it could not of course make him a wiser—man. It was very sad, he said at a charity dinner, to think that the masses were led to believe that they could benefit themselves by pulling down the classes.

In this world, continued his royal highness, of course it was impossible for all of us to be on a level, for if all were made equal one day some would be superior on the morrow. Fortunately the world was governed and ought to be governed by common sense, and he hoped it would always continue to be.

But the duke forgets two things. The first is that it is quite possible to imagine a new order of society under which those who "would be superior on the morrow" would be so in virtue of merit and not of birth. And the second is that under the existing order of society, though proved capacity can often ascend, no effective means—as Professor Huxley somewhere laments—has yet been found for making proved incapacity descend.—Westminster Gazette.

ELECTRIC WIRES.

Some writer very aptly likens the nerves to electric wires, and the general working of their system to that of electric cars. A man who "slips his trolley" like Mr. Jeremiah Eney, 1812 W. Lombard St., Baltimore, Md., will need something better than even a galvanic battery to set him all right. Mr. Eney found that something in the following way: "I suffered," he says, "a long time with neuralgia in the head. I gave St. Jacobs Oil a fair trial, and am entirely cured." In this way the great remedy acts as a motorman to restore broken wires and set the system to perfect action.

WHERE TEAK WOOD GROWS.

The Coming of the White Man Meant a Nation's Fall.

In the heart of untrodden jungles, on thick wooded hillsides, leaning over the brinks of precipices, where tropical creepers twist like snakes choking the life out of younger growths, where orchids flaunt aloft and strange vines bloom, there the teak wood grows. Against its corrugated bark tigers and leopards sharpen their claws, and under its thick shade strange beasts rest by day.

That atom of animate destruction, the white ant, has passed it by. Other growths have reared their heads out of the jungle around it, have grown, have lived their day, died and rotted back to the roots which supplied them with life. In comparison man has been a midget, a mote in the sun, hunting his fellow animals with flint headed arrows and stone axes, flitting, passing, gone, but the great oaks have grown, have spread their arms benignantly over the dust of tiny shapes beneath, and planted in dignity have stood as emblems of strength and power in meditations lasting one, two, three, five and six hundred years. They have secreted the units of time in their hearts as a maiden hides the thoughts of her first love. Days have come as thick as the snows that fall on Kunchinjunga or as the waves crowding one another to the shores of the Bengal sea. And then, as if to give color to the superstition of the hill man long since gone with his tribe to the land where shadows fall deeper than those cast by the teak tree in the jungle, out of these emblems of strength has grown a weakness that has overthrown a nation.

The first oak of Burma to be felled by a white man was symbolic of the nation's fall, and when the visitor to Mandalay is shown the king's palace and reads the inscription on one side of a bungalowlike veranda, "King Thebaw sat in this opening with his two queens and the queen mother when he gave himself up to General Prendergast on the 30th day of November, 1885," if he cares to continue the fancy, he will notice that on each side of this opening the oaken carvings are broken and defaced, as if the events which changed a dynasty had leaned upon the teak wood and it had fallen beneath the weight.—Century.

The World's Tribute to Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

Highest Honors Awarded by the World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, 1893.

World's Fair Medal and Diploma awarded to Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

The highest award was given on every claim, comprising superiority in leavening power, keeping properties, purity and excellence. This verdict has been given by the best jury ever assembled for such a purpose, backed by the recommendation of the Chief Chemist of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., who made an elaborate examination and test of all the baking powders. This is pre-eminently the highest authority on such matters in America.

This verdict conclusively settles the question and proves that Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is superior in every way to any other brand.

NOTE.—The Chief Chemist rejected the Alum baking powders, stating to the World's Fair jury that he considered them unwholesome.

UNWEPT, UNHONORED AND UNSUNG.

He was a pure philanthropist—
This hero of my rhyme.
The blase soul he would assist
To have a pleasant time,
And to the weeping pessimist
Make this world seem sublime.

He took no thought of starving wights
Because right well he knew
So quick are hours in their flights
No single meal would do
To keep a starving soul to rights
More than a day or two.

But when he met a man of woe
Who thought of suicide
Unto the druggist's he would go,
And there enough bromide
To lay the unhappy mortal low
He'd gratisly provide.

And if he saw a person fall
Upon the icy street,
With laughter in his voice he'd bawl,
"You've slippers on your feet,"
Which so the fallen one would gall
He would forget the sleet.

And if again a person struck
A snag in some small spec—
In short, with worthless stock was stuck,
His purse a broken wreck—
He'd comfort him with "You're in luck:
You did not break your neck."

In other people's sorrows he
Would always find some fun
And try to lighten misery
As soon as 'twas begun.
He'd even chat most wittily
With his own tailor's dun.

And yet when this philanthropist
With his foredaddies slept,
The many that he did assist
Unto his funeral crept,
And each in grinning did persist,
And not one mortal wept.

—Harper's Bazar.

Who Made This Neat Puzzle?

We should like to know the name of the author of the following puzzle and anagram:

A —— old woman with —— intent
Put on her —— and to market went.
"——," said she, "give me, I pray,
The wherewithal to —— this day."

Each of the blanks is to be filled with a word of four letters, and the same letters occur in each of the five different words. These words are consecutively "vile," "evil," "veil," "Levi" and "live." We repeat that we are curious to learn the name of the author of this ingenious anagram puzzle.—Chicago Record.

Milk.

It is strange that with all the scientific tests applied to milk inspection there is no recognized standard of the purity of milk. Science cannot as yet distinguish the difference between watery milk from a poor cow and good milk adulterated with water. The cheap grades of condensed milk are generally skimmilk, and even the best is not as nutritious as fresh milk.—Pomona (Cal.) Progress.

Clothes and Their Wearer.

It is curious how clothes become stamped with the wearer's personality. Just as shoes and gloves adjust themselves to the wearer, hats take on a something that instinctively reminds one of the wearer. It is curious, but it is so.

A New Scheme of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Company—Will Furnish Their Help With Medical Attendance.

William L. Douglas, the President of the world-famed W. L. Douglas Shoe Company, has always had a great personal interest in the army of men and women who inhabit the great factory at Montello during the working hours of the day, and who make the greatly advertised $3 shoe.

Every person in his employ—and they form a small army—has recently been handed a card, a fac-simile of which is here given:

to full and free medical attendance while employed by the W. L. Douglas Shoe Company. A competent and skilful physician will be at the private office of the company at 12 M. daily, except Sundays and holidays.

If said employe should be detained at home by sickness, the physician will give full and free medical attendance there.

W. L. DOUGLASS SHOE COMPANY.

CONDITIONS.

The physician will not make visits outside the city limits. This ticket is not transferable, and does not apply to the family of the employe, and must be returned as soon as the term of employment ceases. This privilege is a free gift of the company, and is no part of the contract for wages, and may be made void by the Company, at its own option, without notice.

Mr. Douglas says that he believes there are hundreds of workingmen and workingwomen who find a doctor's bill a great burden after a period of enforced idleness, and that if this is lifted from them they must feel that their employer is interested in them in some other way than simply to get all the work he can for just as little money as he can.

The plan is a wise and good one.

Speaking of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Company, it may be said that their factory is the only one in the city of Brockton where the principle of arbitration is recognized and has full sway. Mr. Douglas is a firm believer in the principle and has been since the establishment of the State Board of Arbitration. He claims that labor troubles would not be as frequent as they are if manufacturers and help would recognize this great principle and adopt it.

"It's jes' ter'ble, so it is," remarked Reginald de Bumme. "Wot's ter'ble?" inquired Clarence Fitz Hautbeau. "Ter see so many people waitin' work—done."
