Columbia county has increased 14 per cont since 1890. This is not a very large increase, but when it is remembered that this county is a heavily timbered section the rate of increase is gratifying. As stated in the Oregonian a few days ago the population in heavily wooded districts will not grow rapidly until the timber and coal of the county get the benefits of trapsportation so that these commodities will assist in clearing the land. Columbia county has for several years been the principal lumber and shingle producing section of the state, and while this is true it may be said that the development of these industries has, in the main, been carried on by local capital. The mills of the county, while of not large capacity, are numerated and brought intellectual, moral and financial prominence out of a long.

Intell education. Again permit us to say that the standard of our public school does not clear the law providing for the main tenance of the public school does not contemplate such a condition of things.

"WHILE there is life there is hope" is an old adage which the minds of progressive people often wonder back to, and with this thought in mind one should not falter at defeat or tire in a good cause. Enterprising people set dom give up in dispair. With this spirit predominant in all time the world has made great progress, states have worked out their own salvation and brought intellectual, moral and financial prominence out of a long.

To this add the amount consumed in other branches of industry and the aggregate will not fall short of $25,000 month, All these branches of industry combine to produce wealth, and at the same time they develop the county's natural resources, which, in the end, must place Columbia county in the front rank with the foremost counties of the state.

PROGRESSIVE CLATSKANIE.

On approaching the town of Clatskanie from the river the visitor is im-pressed with the idea that he is nearing a great manufacturing center. And, indeed, this is comparatively true. From the time the steamer enters the mouth of the Clatskanie river there can be seen at one glance steam issuing from four manufacturing establish-ments. The first one reached and being situated near the entrance to the river is the plant of the Clatskanie Lumbering Company. A short dis-tance above is located the Manzanillo mills, and further on about half a mile distant is the town of Clatskanie where is located the shingle mill of A. M. & W. K. Tichenor and the sawmill first mills mentioned are lumber and shingle mills combined, and the first one, as stated to a representative of THE MIST, is operated every day and part of the night filling orders that are constantly coming in. In addition to the four mills already mentioned there are a number of lumber and shingle mills located within a radius of a few miles of the city, from which point their product is shipped. It may be a source of some wonder-ment to persons outside to know just how these mills can be operated profit-ably and sell lumber and shingles at present low prices. It is not surpris-ing, however, to one who investigates the circumstances. They have their business reduced to a business basis. the logs are worked closely; the firms do not hire a days work done that they can do themselves; and last, but perhaps most important of all, they are satisfied with a small profit. The writer was in the town of Clat-kanie three days last week, and, without casting any reflection on gentle-men of lei-ure, it may be said the most noticeable thing there was the absence of the street loafer. The people are busy, industrious, and are endeavoring with all their might to make the best of their surroundings. While the merchants, millmen and loggers are not getting rich very fast, they are, nevertheless, up and doing, adapting themselves to present conditions, and instead of sitting idly by "waiting for their ship to come in," they are actually turning the tide of adversity into an increasing degree of prosperity.

How much better it would be if, instead of sending children to Portland and other towns to school every year, the patrons of our public schools would bestir themselves to better the institutions of learning at home. There certainly seems no good reason why the common schools of the country should

COLUMBIA COUNTY'S FUTURE,

According to the census enumeration just completed the population of Columbia county has increased 14 per cent since 1890. This is not a very large increase, but when it is remem-while of not large capacity, are numberous, and for most part have been almost constantly in operation. It has made little difference so far as the aggregate output is concerned, whether the prices have been good or not. The mills have been operated year after year with the margin of profit reduced with each succeeding year, until today, though the mills are still supplying the demand, the profits are small. But the operation of the mills has served a double purpose. While the great bodies of timber have been manufactured into lumber, shingles and piling for the market, furnishing employment annually for hundreds of men at remunerative wages, the land from which the timber has been cut has been largely, prepared for the plow, making it possible for the soil to be itilled with profit, and happy homes are now established where only a few years ago stood dense forests. those who come again a few years hence the scene will again be changed. It has been well said that "wonders never cease." Even so, and the wonders of Columbia county are just beginning to be realized.

There is another industry within our borders of no mean consequence, though small compared with those above mentioned. In the process of clearing land and making homes there is a vast amount of timber to be disposed which is valuable only for fuelposed which is valuable only for fuelposed which is valuable only for fuelposed which is valuable only for fuelposed.

Mrs. Ella Roberts was a Portland visitor Monday and Tuesday of last week. The general anticipation here is that the winter rains have set in, but we do not believe it.

We were pleased to see Mrs. D. Davi Mrs. Jas. Sheldon and Mr Jas. Cox, of a Helens, in our town Monday.

H.O. Howard is making a grand and much needed improvement to his mill in the way of a dry-house when he will be prepared to fill orders for all kinds of dry lumber.

Mr. Burt Tarbell and wife. Mrs. Luman, Mrs. Pope and Mrs. Bailey returned from the lop fields Friday. They report having a good time, but say the weather was a little disagreeable.
