The Minister's Furnace Fire.

Plumbers tell some laughable stories about people who don't know how to run furnaces and steam heating plants. "We put in a furnace for a minister once," says an Auburn plumber, "and the next day he came down and kicked about it. He said that it wouldn't burn, and he either wanted it taken out or put in working order right away. I went up, and after examining the chimney carefully I looked into the furnace. What do you suppose the trouble was? Well, sir, the minister had been trying to heat the house by building a fire in the ash box."—Lewiston Journal.

WHAT NEGLECT MAY DO.

There are some infirmities that only a surgeon's knife will relieve, and mostly strictly because of neglect. A neglected nerve pain may become so chronic as to cripple, and this is often the case with Sciatica. If taken in time, it is easily subdued, like other nerve pains, and vigor and health are restored. Thousands of cases have been treated by the use of St. Jacobs Oil, with the result of a prompt and permanent cure and restoration to health of the affected nerve. People cannot be too careful with their nerves. There is too much to suffer to admit of foolish neglect, and the simple thing of getting a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil and applying promptly may save years of misery and perhaps years of crippled condition. Let this warning serve to show what can be and what ought to be done without delay in an attack of this disease.

THE BANANA EATERS.

Two Kentuckians Enter Into a Queer Contest.

One of the most novel and interesting events in sporting circles which has occurred in Lexington for some time was the banana eating contest between two prominent young men of the city, Messrs. Garrett Welsh and John Luby, which took place in the fruit stand of Mr. Fugazzi, on Main street, the other night. The contest was the outgrowth of some remarks made some time previous on the capacity of the contestants. Each had friends present who were backing them clear off the boards.

The summary is as follows: At the drop of the flag Starter Dan Crow sent them off to a good start, with Welsh a half banana in the lead. He led Luby to the quarter, where he was overtaken. At the half Luby had 38 bananas to his credit, with Welsh a close second with 36. Here Welsh went out after the money, and at the three-quarters it was Welsh by eight bananas, but Welsh was showing signs of distress.

Turning into the stretch, Luby's jockey, McGurk, went for another stalk of bananas and succeeded in nosing out Welsh in fast time. Time: Luby, 64 bananas; Welsh, 61 bananas. Both ran a consistent race, and with a better jockey than McGinnis, Welsh should have won. Both were sent to the stable to rest up. They are entered for another stake race next week, and the betting on the event promises to be spirited.—Lexington Herald.

Here is the regime of a royal invalid, as we must still call the empress of Austria, for she is far from robust. No meal is allowed to be partaken of later than 7 o'clock p. m. A couple of eggs, milk in some light and wholesome form and a single plate of plainly cooked meat form the simple meal. Eight hours' sleep every night is insisted upon.

We must not be misled by seeing in the papers that the empress appeared at a state banquet, for she does so when necessity requires it, but without partaking of a single dish, her frugal repast, ordered by her physician, having been eaten in her private apartments.

Loie Fuller Is Coming.

Loie Fuller is coming over for a flying visit to America to show New York the wonders of her latest European success, "Salome." The other day she cabled W. A. McConnell, her agent, that she had accepted an offer of $10,000 for four weeks in New York, and would be over very soon. Mr. Stevens, her personal manager, will make the arrangements for Miss Fuller's engagement, which, it is supposed, will be played at the Olympia.

In the Face of Death.

Striking originality is granted to few in this world, but of Martha Evarts Holden, popularly, familiarly and affectionately called "Amber," it was the chief distinction. It was the unexpected and the daring that "Amber" always did. "Amber" thought and "Amber" wrote. She had the courage of her convictions, and if the convictions were queer sometimes they were uttered just the same, and the queerer the louder. And if "Amber" saw fit to change her convictions at any time the change was boldly chronicled in no uncertain tones.

Her last words to me were striking, as all her words had been. Trying with the impotent, foolish bravado we impertinently healthy ones assume in face of the majesty of death, I uttered some stupid sentences, as we do, intended to be comforting. "No, I know I am going to die," she said, looking me fairly in the face and speaking strongly, "and I am not afraid, but you will admit that it is a solemn time with me." It made one's feeble attempts to be cheerful seem so frivolous and empty! I was setting my flimsy standard for support and making vain boasts of help on the ground of a warrior who had already made the fight and was wounded to death.—Chicago Times-Herald.

"PULL" WITH THE PRESIDENT.

Miss Nellie Parker Said to Have Great Influence at the White House.

Miss Nellie Parker, of Richmond, Va., may not be a political boss, but she has a long and a strong "pull" with President Cleveland. Miss Parker deserves to have much influence at Washington—or anywhere else, for that matter—for she is one of the distinguished beauties of the South, and that is saying a great deal. The story of the great favor she is held in by the administration is interesting. Some months ago the President visited Atlanta, and Miss Parker took advantage of his presence there to call upon him. He was immensely delighted with the young lady and gave her, as a souvenir of the occasion, a brand-new cent piece. This he told her to guard carefully, and when she wanted entree to the White House to show this cent piece to the guards, and that she would be admitted readily and without question. Miss Parker treasured her cent piece with great care. Not long ago she was in Washington, and she thought she would try the talismanic effect of Mr. Cleveland's coin present. She did, and, mirabile dictu! its glistening red color acted as an open sesame, and Miss Parker was promptly ushered into the presidential presence. Miss Parker is one of the belles of Richmond, and it noted throughout the South for her charm of person. She is the daughter of Dr. W. W. Parker, a well-known medical man of Virginia's capital.

Children and Flowers.

Wise and loving parents want their children to be educated to enjoy what is beautiful in art, in literature and in nature. They may question the influence of luxurious living, may fear the effect of elegant surroundings as inducing indolence of mind and body or as fostering a spirit of discontent, but they cannot think that a life of "plain living and high thinking" would exclude pleasure in a sunny sky or a modest flower. The little garden where the children are allowed to have a plot of their own affords one of the most innocent delights of childhood. The planting, the weeding, the watching for the first blossom, keep the whole family interested, and is the most thoroughly natural and healthful pleasure a child can have. There is in all this a sense of ownership which is as unselfish as possession can be, for connected with it is usually the desire to give away the first fruits as an offering to friendship or charity.

The flower lover is almost always the flower giver, and nothing is sweeter than to see a dear child bring to the fond mother the first blossom from "my own garden."

The best and surest way to shut out evil thoughts is to furnish themes for good and pure and beautiful thoughts; a mind engaged in the attention to beautiful things in nature has no place for that which is hateful and ugly, and we cannot overestimate the real value of flower culture as a part of children's education.

I have often wondered if the children we see stealing flowers do this entirely from mischief, or if some do not really love the blossoms they cannot have at home. If they had early been taught a real appreciation of flowers, they would probably more highly regard their neighbors' rights in the matter.—Womankind.

A Dog's Remarkable Instinct.

A remarkable illustration of a dog's intelligence has occurred in Sutton. A married lady there has a small pet, and on her removal to a London hospital, owing to ill health, the animal became greatly distressed, running hither and thither in search of his mistress, to whom he was greatly attached. A week afterward the dog disappeared, and two days later returned to its home footsore and weary.

It subsequently transpired that the faithful terrier has found his way to the hospital where his mistress lay. No one guided him, and he traveled the whole way alone. He waited about for hours, trying to gain admission, and finally, after many rebuffs, succeeded in running into the hospital and finding the bed where the lady lay. With great delight he hailed her, and after satisfying himself that she was safe, he trotted back to Sutton, about fourteen miles distant.—London Daily News.

BURNING THREE MONTHS.

What R. T. McGinnis Says of the Big Bozeman Tunnel Fire.

R. T. McGinnis, a capitalist of Montreal, is in San Francisco. He recently came over the Northern Pacific road. He says that the great fire in the Bozeman tunnel on that road is one of the most extraordinary events ever coming within his knowledge. The tunnel has been on fire for over three months, and all efforts to quench it have proved unavailing.

He was told that the fire was first discovered early in the morning of Sept. 13 last. The immense amount of woodwork in the tunnel furnished abundant material for a big fire. At the end of three weeks the tunnel was a roaring furnace. The fire started about the middle of the tunnel, which is almost a mile long. Within a few days the smoke, traveling half a mile to either end of the tunnel, issued forth in dense volumes day and night.

Mr. McGinnis says that the immense quantities of water poured into the tunnel did not seem to do any good. The tunnel was then sealed up in the hope of smothering the fire. A few days ago the tunnel was opened, and the fire seemed to be burning as hot as ever. Mr. McGinnis says it has been sealed up again for an indefinite period. Meanwhile the company has built a switchback across the mountains, and in that way has been able to run its through freight and passenger trains.—San Francisco Examiner.

ONE CENT POSTAGE.

National Board of Trade Inaugurates an Aggressive Campaign.

Resolutions adopted by the national board of trade at its recent annual meeting declare in favor of 1 cent postage. The board appointed a committee of three to agitate this question. The members of this committee are Finley Acker of Philadelphia, Silas M. Giddings of Brooklyn and Blanchard Randall of Baltimore.

This committee has opened headquarters in the board of trade rooms in Philadelphia and is investigating the general subject of postal rates. It is sending inquiries to mercantile and trade organizations all over the United States for the purpose of securing their suggestions and co-operation.

It is shown by the committee that the average cost of carrying mail matter is 8 cents a pound. Letters pay 32 cents a pound, while secopd class matter pays only 1 cent. A reduction of letter postage will necessitate an increase in the rate of second class matter and the possible exclusion from the mails of cheap novels, which are mailed as periodicals. The promoters of the movement desire also the abolition of the franking privilege.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

An Indian Taboo.

The penalty for violating, even unwittingly, the taboo of a gens is a visitation of sores, livid spots, inflammation of the eyes, and even blindness. The In-shtasunda, or Thunder gens, do not touch reptiles, toads, or beetles. Some years ago the vegetable garden of the Omaha mission was visited by the potato bug. The good missionaries in charge engaged the children in the work of extermination by offering a bounty of five cents a quart, solid measure, for defunct bugs. As the extinction of the species became imminent, some of the young wits adulterated their bugs by the addition of spurious beetles. About this time one of the little girls became suddenly covered with sores. Her parents, hearing of it, came in consternation to the mission. She belonged to the Thunder gens, and the child's bug income ceased at once. She had unwittingly been carrying on a traffic in her taboo!—Century.

THE SENATE IN DECAY.

Walter Wellman Compares Its Past and Present With Sorrow.

"What is the matter with the United States senate?" What, indeed? If the truth must be told, it is a body in decadence. The moral and intellectual tone of the senate are both falling far below old time standards. Men who have been only ten years in Washington, daily attendants upon the sessions of congress and familiar with the characteristics and capabilities of most of the individual senators, can easily make a comparison which is odious to the senate of the present day.

Those who have been in Washington 15 or 20 years, as have a number of writers for the press, look back upon the senate and the senators of that day almost with tears in their eyes. Then the senate was, indeed, "the most dignified legislative body on earth." Such its members are still wont to term it, but the words are sarcastic. Then every member of the senate was a man of national reputation.

Now there are only a few senators whose fame really extends much beyond the borders of their own states, and in many cases their reputation is as politicians or speculators or money makers or for something besides statesmanship.

Where are the Conklings, the Thurmans, the Fessendens, the Wades, the Becks, the Trumbulls, the Sumners, the brilliant, broad and able men of this day? One hunts almost in vain for them in the senate chamber. There are senators of ability and high character, but the dry rot appears to be in them, and the pall of partyism, of narrowness or of slothfulness seems to be hanging over one and all. Rarely, indeed, does the debate rise to a respectable level. If the cranks are not exploiting their single ideas, the brawlers are engaged in personalities sadly out of place in the senate.

The upper branch of the American congress has fallen on evil days.—Walter Wellman in Chicago Times-Herald.

YOUNG AT FIFTY.

HOW A METHODIST MINISTER CARRIES HIS YEARS.

Rev. William Young, of Oswego, Tells a Reporter His Secret of Good Health—Will Surely Benefit Everyone Who Follows His Advice.

From the Times, Oswego, N. Y.

Probably no man is better known or more highly respected in Oswego, N. Y., than Rev. William Young, of the Methodist church. Mr. Young has not a conference appointment, but holds a responsible position with the Oswego City Savings bank, where he has been a trusty employe for the past twenty years.

In the spring of 1894 Mr. Young looked as if his time was limited and that he would be laid at rest with the great majority before the snow covered the ground. But, instead of failing as predicted, he soon gained a more healthy look and appeared stronger. As the months went by this improvement continued, until now he is as rugged and apparently as healthy as a young man of thirty, although his gray locks denote a more advanced age. A Times reporter determined to find out what had made this great, and it might be said phenomenal change, called upon Mr. Young at the bank and put the question direct and received the following reply:

"In truth I am a changed man, and I owe my present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In the spring of 1894 I was all run down and had commenced to think that my time had come. I had to be prescribed for by physicians, and although I received temporary relief, the same old trouble came back again and I was worse than before. I had no strength or appetite, and physically I was in a miserable condition. After my work I would go home, but the general lassitude which hung over me left me without any ambition, and when I would go to the table to eat, my appetite failed me and I would have to leave without taking hardly any nourishment. My kidneys were also badly affected, and I was in utter despair. One day, here at the bank, I happened to pick up one of the local papers, and my eye fell on an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The advertisement gave a description of a man who, afflicted as I then was, had been cured by using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was not a believer in that kind of doctoring, but concluded as a last resort to try a box of the pills, making up my mind that if they did not help me I certainly would not be injured any. Going to a drugstore, I purchased a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and commenced taking them according to directions. Very soon after I began to feel better and I saw I had made no mistake in trying the pills, and before the first box was emptied I felt so much improved that I immediately purchased another. I had taken seven boxes of the pills, and at the end of last summer I felt I was entirely cured and discontinued their use, but always keep a box handy if occasion requires. I am now entirely cured. The lassitude has left me, my kidneys are all right and my appetite—well, you should see me at the table. I am a new man again, and instead of feeling like a man of fifty, which is my age, I feel like a youngster of twenty, and I give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the full credit for this great change. I have recommended these pills to several of my neighbors and acquaintances who have been relieved of their complaints."

William Young, being duly sworn, deposes and says he is the gentleman referred to in the above interview, and it is true in every respect.

William Young.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 25th day of May, 1895.

REV. ZEPHANIAH MEEK, D. D.

Eminent Methodist Divine Cured of Nerve Trouble by Paine's Celery Compound.

Rev. Zephaniah Meek, D. D., is a household name all over the South. Since 1867 he has owned and edited the "Central Methodist," the leading paper of the Methodist Episcopal church in the South. He represented his state at the General Conference.

He was one of the Kentucky commissioners at the Chicago Columbian Exposition During his ministry in the South he has built and dedicated five chapels. He writes from Catlettsburg, Ky., where his home is, as follows:

"I have used several bottles of Paine's celery compound for nervous trouble, resulting from overwork, and with immediate effect, as well as permanent benefit. It is the best nerve tonic that I have ever tried It has also been used in my family with great benefit."

Tired out, half-sick men and women need something more than a mere rest. They need a positive unmistakable nerve food; they must have a reserve of nerve force to draw from, before their heads will cease to ache and their nerves cease to tremble with neuralgia.

It is estimated that there are over ten million nerve fibres in the body.

So long as these minute tissues are kept fully nourished, one lives in blissful ignorance of any such thing as neuralgia, headaches, or even a nervous system, but let one become "run-down" and the nutrition of the body get low, and every one of these myriad fibres becomes a "live-wire" within the flesh. Headaches, neuralgia, rheumatism, and other forms of nervousness and debility result directly from a famished nervous system. Paine's celery compound is able to correct this faulty condition. It builds up the nervous system and sustains it. The brain at once feels the strengthening effects of the superb nutriment. There are thousands of men and women today who have been enabled to keep vigorously at work, who must have given up but for Paine's celery compound. Nervous affections are a warning to busy people.

At the earliest sign of reduced nerve force, inability to sleep, langour, or a gloomy habit of mind, everyone should look immediately to the nutrition of their nervous system and to the purity of their blood. Paine's celery compound will attend to both of these urgent needs more thoroughly and more speedily than anything else in the world. Paine's celery compound is not to be confounded with the common preparations, the sarsaparilla and the nervines. Being the discovery of a man of science, Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth College, it has the support of the best physicians; they prescribe it universally; and the many sick persons made well by its use proves that that support is merited.

To the great majority of business men a vacation, to say nothing of three months of complete inactivity, is out of the question at this season, even when their brains demand a complete rest and their nerves ache and threaten them with prostration. Now, there are hundreds of business men and hard-worked professional men in this city in just this condition. What are they to do? Those who are tired out, "run down" and debilitated at this trying season will do well to read some of the straightforward and convincing statements from the men and women who have been cured by Paine's celery compound.

Nevous weakness vanishes before Paine's celery compound as mist before the strong, health-giving rays of the sun. Convince yourself of the fact at once, if your health is at all impaired.
