

ARE YOU TO LIVE IN ALASKA?

Some experiments that are being made in Alaska... The universal article of diet in that country, degraded upon and indigestible...

These facts are very important for every one proposing to go to Alaska and the Yukon country to know, for should he be persuaded by some out-fitter to take one of the cheap brands of baking powder it will cost just as much to transport it, and then when he opens it for use, after all his labor in packing it over the long and difficult route, he will find a solid caked mass or a lot of spoiled powder, with no strength and useless.

There is no better guide to follow in these matters than the advice of those who have gone through similar experience. Mr. McQuesten, who is called "the father of Alaska," after an experience of years upon the trail, in the camp, and in the use of every kind of supply, says: "We find in Alaska that the importance of proper kind of baking powder cannot be overestimated."

The Royal Baking Powder will not cake nor lose its strength either on board ship or in damp climates, and is the most highly concentrated and efficient of leavening agents.

A Belgian agricultural journal says that in Antwerp in 10 months more than 4,000 American horses were disposed of, exclusive of those coming by way of England or by transportation vessels calling at that port, and that these importations must not be confined with those brought from the Argentine Republic some years before.

ST. VALENTINE'S day came on a Thursday that year. Tuesday, the 12th, was very warm, almost spring-like; people listened involuntarily for bluebirds and robins and looked at the elm branches against the sky as if they expected to see leaves.

Miss Little, the school teacher, came in with the young man who was paying her attention. She had been telling him how she had punished that dear little Serena for whispering about a valentine; how sorry she was, and how she had wished to send her a valentine, to atone—and the young man had been thinking how sweet and tender-hearted she must be.

Miss Little at once selected the same valentine which had pleased Grandfather Judd. "This is the prettiest," said she. "I will take it." She furthermore decided she would leave it at the store and have it sent from there.

The school teacher carefully directed the envelope which she had the valentine to Miss Serena Ann Dodd, Riggsville, N. Y. Dadd was the name of the young man who was writing upon the school teacher, and when she married him she was to go to Riggsville, N. Y., to live.

After the envelope was directed Miss Little gave Solomon Badger a penny to buy a stamp. After they had gone Solomon Badger spied the envelope; discovered that the valentine was not inclosed, and began to search for the one she had chosen. It was quite another valentine than the one Miss Little had purchased, which was posted next day. It went to Riggsville, N. Y., and finally brought up in the dead letter office, where it must be sold.

It was 5 o'clock when the valentine was sold for the third time to Miranda Ball. She gave it to Lettie Goodwin to post, because her way home lay past the office. The next morning Serena Ann's cousin, Sam Wells, drove over from the east village, and passing the postoffice saw something white on the snow bank. He stopped, got out and investigated. "A valentine," he cried, "I declare. He tried to pick it up, but it was frozen down. There had been quite a thaw the day before, and the weather had grown colder during the night. Sam was very careful, but he had to leave the addressed part of the envelope in the snow.

Lincoln and the Kittens. A Story Illustrative of the Kindness of His Generous Nature. Gen. Horace Porter in his Campaigning With Grant, in the Century Magazine, tells a good story of Lincoln's kindness to animals on the occasion of the martyr President's visit to Gen. Grant's camp. Three tiny kittens were crawling about the tent at the time, says Gen. Porter. The mother had died, and the little wanderers were expressing their grief by meowing piteously. Mr. Lincoln picked them up, took them on his lap, stroked their soft fur, and murmured: "Poor little creatures, don't cry; you'll be taken good care of," and turning to Bowen, said: "Colonel, I hope you will see that these poor little motherless waifs are given plenty of milk and treated kindly." Bowen replied: "I will see, Mr. President, that they are taken in charge by the cook of our mess, and are well cared for." Several times during his stay Mr. Lincoln was found fondling these kittens. He would wipe their eyes tenderly with his handkerchief, stroke their smooth coats, and listen to them purring their gratitude to him. It was a curious sight at an army headquarters upon the eve of a great military crisis in the nation's history, to see the hand which had lifted the signature to the Emancipation Proclamation, and had signed the commissions of all the heroic men who served the cause of the Union, from the general-in-chief to the lowest lieutenant, tenderly caressing three stray kittens. It well illustrated the kindness of the man's disposition, and showed the child-like simplicity which was mingled with the grandeur of his nature.

BLACK AND BLUE.

Black and blue colors are not subject to fashion this season nor in any season. They hold their own and will not wash out. They are pretty solid colors, and but for the misery of wearing them, might become fashionable. Some men take pride in wearing them as tokens of their profession, as soldiers do their caps. But bruises, black or blue, or both, ought to have immediate attention, for under them may be a nerve hurt or a muscle badly wrenched. A black and blue bruise is a bad thing, not only from its tender soreness but the contused blood is prevention of regular circulation. While sore spots like these will not wash out, there is something that will rub them out in no time, and that is St. Jacobs Oil. It is peculiarly adapted to their quick cure. A pennant can be worn only by hard knocks with wear and bruises, but after the ball is over, if any remain, this one cure is the best. Bruises come from contusion in all avocations, and it is well to remember at all times what will cure them the best.

AN OPEN LETTER.

From Miss May Eschner, of Columbus, O., to Alling Women. To all women who are ill! It affords me great pleasure to tell you of the benefit I have derived from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I can hardly find words to express my gratitude for the boon given to suffering women in that excellent remedy.

Before taking the Compound I was thin, sallow, and nervous. I was troubled with leucorrhoea, and my menstrual periods were very irregular. I tried three physicians and gradually grew worse. About a year ago I was advised by a friend to try Mrs. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash and Vegetable Compound, which I did. After using three bottles of the Vegetable Compound and one package of Sensitive Wash, I am now enjoying better health than I ever did, and attribute the same to Mrs. Pinkham's wonderful remedies. I cannot find words to express what a Godsend they have been to me.

THE LINCOLN CABIN.

Humble Abode in Which the Great Emancipator First Saw the Light. The house in which Abraham Lincoln was born still stands near Nolen Creek, in Larue (formerly Hardin) County, three miles south of Hogenville and two miles north of Buffalo, Ky. It is situated near the top of a hill, a full half mile from the roadway. A corn field surrounds the little house, which was built by Lincoln's father when he first attempted to do some farming on his own account. The soil around about the cabin is rough, unproductive and next to valueless, and there is no doubt that Abraham's father determined the site for his little homestead by the freely flowing spring that bubbles up from the limestone formation at the bottom of the hill. The flow of water is 1 1/2 inches in diameter and runs as freely as it did a century ago, giving a plentiful supply of water the year round.

The elder Lincoln was a carpenter, and he settled in that spot soon after his marriage for the purpose of trying agriculture. If Mr. Lincoln, the father, was a good carpenter he was certainly a poor builder for the architecture of the cabin is anything but an evidence of art or skill. The sides are constructed of very small logs that were not properly squared. The rafters are mere poles, and the chimney was made of sticks. The cabin was lighted and ventilated with one door and one window. The door was built of rough boards, and even the hinges of the door were of roughly hewn wood. This house in which the future statesman and President spent the days of his childhood had but one room. One-half of one wall of this is taken up with the great fireplace. When the patriot's father built it he lined its inside with a heavy coat of plaster. He tried to pick it up, but it was frozen down. There had been quite a thaw the day before, and the weather had grown colder during the night. Sam was very careful, but he had to leave the addressed part of the envelope in the snow.

LINCOLN AND SOCIETY.

Introduced Himself and Wife as the "Long and Short of the Presidency." In an article recalling the incidents of "When Lincoln Was First Inaugurated," in the Ladies Home Journal, Stephen Fiske gives a graphic account of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln's presentation to Washington society. There were a large number of the best-known of Washington society people assembled in the parlors of the hotel where Mr. Lincoln and his wife were stopping, nearly all moved by curiosity to see the "rail-splitter" President. "Presently, from a side door that suggested a scene on the stage, emerged the figure of Mr. Lincoln, tall, unassuming; then his tall, thin, awkward wife; then long arm, and finally, at the end of this arm a dumpy, little woman. He was dressed in a new suit of shiny black that had been presented to him as an advertisement by an enterprising tailor. She was wrapped in a white shawl, Mr. Lincoln looked at the fashionable assembly and said, in his clear, distinct voice: 'Ladies and gentlemen, permit me to present to you the long and short of the Presidency.'"

"As he said 'the long,' he bowed; as he said 'the short,' he looked down at the feet of Mr. Lincoln, and down through the pattern. The ladies stared at the strange couple; the gentlemen bent their heads. That man the President of the United States! That woman the first lady of the land! All the etiquette of the republic court that had been established since the days of President Washington was violated."

THE STORY. T was in the war times' early days, when eyes looked forward with anxious gaze, a young lad had been doomed to die. And around that thou know the reason why? He had been placed as sentinel. And at his post sleep he fell. And for that closing of his eyes Before him dreamless slumber lies. The President read the sentence through. And murmured, "The art I cannot do. Brought up on term, at work late, poor boy! No wonder that he slept."

At Frederickburg, among the slain, A lad, beyond all mortal pain, Was lying by himself apart, A picture next his youthful heart. 'T was Lincoln's picture that he wore, And just beneath these words he bore: "God bless Abraham Lincoln." Thus he showed The debt of love to him he owed.
