CONSULTING A WOMAN.

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Inspires Confidence and Hope. Examination by a male physician is a hard trial to a delicately organized woman.

She puts it off as long as she dare, and is only driven to it by fear of cancer, polypus, or some dreadful ailment.

Most frequently such a woman leaves a physician's office where she has undergone a critical examination with an impression, more or less, of discouragement.

This condition of the mind destroys the effect of advice; and she grows worse rather than better.

In consulting Mrs. Pinkham no hesitation need be felt, the story is told to a woman and is wholly confidential.

Her intimate knowledge of women's troubles makes her letter of advice a wellspring of hope, and her wide experience and skill point the way to health.

"I suffered with ovarian trouble for seven years, and no doctor knew what was the matter with me. I had spells which would last for two days or more.

I thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken seven bottles of it, and am entirely cured."

The above letter from Mrs. Foreman is only one of thousands.

MULLIGAN'S BRIGADE

The Gallant Chicago Regiment composed of Irishmen. "Hully! All Irishmen in favor of forming a regiment of Irish volunteers to sustain the government of the United States...

This notice appeared in all the Chicago newspapers on April 20, 1901. Five days before Gov. Yates had issued a call for troops, and the patriotic fervor of the people was at a white heat.

Those whose knowledge of war and war times is limited to the present conflict with Spain have small conception of the excitement that swept over the land, rising nowhere to a higher pitch than at Chicago when Fort Sumter was fired upon and the President issued a call for 75,000 troops.

The call for a meeting of the loyal Irishmen of the city, which was signed by James A. Mulligan, M. C. McDonald and eleven other Irish citizens, was royally responded to.

A Mulligan, an eloquent young Irish-American lawyer, delivered a ringing speech, as did several others, and the work of recruiting—the real business of the evening—was begun.

This meeting was but the beginning of the patriotic enthusiasm which speedily seized upon the people, and applications for admission to the Irish brigade, as the prospective regiment had been already named, continued to pour in, not from Chicago only, but from all portions of northern Illinois.

The Confederates were bent on taking Lexington, and Gen. Sterling Price soon appeared with 25,000 men. Outnumbered ten to one, poorly provisioned and suffering from lack of water, Col. Mulligan made determined defense. Called upon by Price to surrender and agree to fight no more on Missouri soil, brave Mulligan replied:

"The Irish brigade makes no compromise." At length after a resistance that fairly electrified all Northern hearts and called forth expressions of praise from the Confederates, Col. Mulligan was forced to surrender, the devoted Irishmen destroying their green flag in preference to yielding to the enemy.

The hero deed of Col. Mulligan while fighting the main body of Gen. Jubal A. Early's army at Kernstown, Va., July 24, 1864, is striking to all who are familiar with the awful events of the war of the rebellion.

"Lay me down and save the flag," he said to those who were bearing him mortally wounded from the field. The Irish brigade fought nobly for their country; they did more—they raised an enthusiasm that recruited many thousands of troops and imparted boldness to timid hearts.
