Hood's Sarsaparilla

Special for Invalids.

Miss Anna Estell Wilson, of New York, has found a decidedly novel occupation. She prepares music for invalids. She says that although the healing power of music is yet only dimly perceived, nevertheless physicians acknowledge that its proper use produces highly beneficial effects. Under the influence of certain kinds of music the nerve cells, if depleted or too relaxed, may be stimulated to more vigorous action. Music of an opposite character will diminish too great nervous activity and tend to produce a condition of rapture and restfulness. Several physicians commend Miss Wilson's system. She does not say anything about how many different diseases of the nerves can be cured in a flat house is capable of producing in a very short time.

AIDED BY MRS. PINKHAM.

Mrs. W. E. Paxton, Youngtown, North Dakota. Writes about her struggle to regain health after the birth of her little girl:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It is with pleasure that I add my testimony to your list, hoping that it may induce others to avail themselves of your valuable medicine.

After the birth of my little girl, three years ago, my health was very poor. I had leucorrhoea badly, and a terrible bearing-down pain which gradually grew worse, until I could do no work. Also had headache nearly all the time, and dizzy feelings. Menstruations were very profuse, appearing every two weeks.

"I took medicine from a good doctor, but it seemed to do no good. I was becoming alarmed over my condition, when I read your advertisement in a paper. I sent at once for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking two-thirds of the bottle I felt so much better that I sent for two more. After using three bottles I felt as strong and well as any one.

"I think it is the best medicine for female weakness ever advertised, and recommend it to every lady I meet suffering from this trouble."

Maternity is a wonderful experience and many women approach it wholly unprepared. Childbirth under right conditions need not terrify women.

The advice of Mrs. Pinkham is freely offered to all expectant mothers, and her advice is beyond question the most valuable to be obtained. If Mrs. Paxton had written to Mrs. Pinkham before confinement she would have been saved much suffering. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

AMERICAN LOSSES

Only Six Killed at the Bombardment of Manila.

THIRTY-NINE WERE WOUNDED

Spanish soldiers Guarding the Gates Against the Insurgents-California Troops Went Through the Fight With Band Playing National Air.

London, Aug. 19.—The Manila correspondent of the Times, telegraphing August 14, says:

"The insurgents made a vigorous but unsuccessful effort to break the Spanish line at San Pablo last night. The curious situation remains unchanged. Although the Spanish army has surrendered and is laying down its arms, it still continues to hold the gates of the citadel and other remote positions against the insurgents. The latter have been informed that they will not be permitted to enter the town under any circumstances.

"The latest reports show that six Americans were killed, and 39 wounded. The Astor battery, under Captain March, did excellent service on the right of the line yesterday, shelling the blockhouse with its Hotchkiss mountain guns, and all charging the position with revolvers. It lost three men killed."

Inspired by the Music of the Band.

London, Aug. 19.—The Manila correspondent of the Times telegraphs under date of August 18:

"The capture of the town today was not without melodramatic events. Nor has it been a well-kept secret that the captain-general personally suggested the manner in which American troops should advance to prevent loss of life on both sides. At first it was not intended to attack the trenches, but quietly to advance after the bombardment had ceased. At the last moment, however, the programme was changed and orders were issued for the land battery to open fire simultaneously with the fleet, and for an advance to be made as soon as it was considered practicable to assault the Spanish trenches.

"The reason for this change of plan is not yet apparent, but considerable loss of life resulted. General Anderson placed his division according to directions from General Merritt. There were eight battalions of the First brigade under General McArthur in the fighting line on the right, with three battalions in reserve, while seven battalions of the Second brigade, under General Greene, were in the trenches across the road from the seashore, three others forming a reserve.

"The troops left the camp at 6:30 in a heavy thunder storm. They carried 800 rounds of ammunition per man and two days' cooked rations. Shortly after 8:45 the fleet got away with flags mastheaded. At 9 o'clock the Olympia led the way, attended by the Raleigh and the Petrel, while the Callao, under Lieutenant Tappan, and the launch Barolo crept close in shore in the heavy breakers.

"Perfect quiet prevailed in the lines on both sides as the great ships cleared for action and silently advanced sometimes hidden by rain squalls. The Monterey, with the Baltimore, Charleston and Boston, formed the reserve.

"At 9:25 a sudden cloud of smoke, green and white, against the stormy sky, completely hid the Olympia, a shell deaf screaming across two miles of turbulent water and burst near the Spanish fort at Malate, San Antonio de Abad. Then the Petrel and Raleigh, and the active little Callao opened a rapid fire directed towards the shore and of the entrenchments. In the heavy rain it was difficult to judge the range, and the shots at first fell short, but the fire soon became accurate and shells rendered the forts untenable, while the four guns of the Utah battery made excellent practice of the earthworks and swamp to the east of the fort. The Spanish replied feebly with a few shells.

"Less than half an hour after the bombardment began, General Greene decided that it was possible to advance, although the signals to cease firing were disregarded by the fleet, being probably invisible on account of the rain. Thereupon, six companies of the Colorado regiment leaped over their breastworks, dashed into the swamp and began volley firing from the partial shelter of the low hedges within 300 yards of the Spanish lines. A few moments later the remaining six companies moved along the sand ridge formed by an inlet under the outer works of the fort, and at 11 o'clock occupied this formidable stronghold without loss. McCoy hailed down the Spanish flag and raised the Stars and Stripes, amid wild cheers along the line.

"Meanwhile, the fleet, observing the movement of the troops along the beach, withheld its fire. The bombardment had lasted exactly an hour and a half. An hour later, General

Body Found in a Reservoir.

Salt Lake, Utah, Aug. 19.—A special to the Tribune from Lander, Wyo., says a message has been brought in from the Arapahoe agency saying that a body has been found floating in the reservoir, east of the agency. The body is supposed to be that of W. P. Noble, of Salt Lake, who left here for Casper last Tuesday in company with R. N. Harvey, a traveling man from St. Paul. Nothing has been heard from them since they left.

Thirty Killed in a Collision.

Cape Town, Aug. 19.—A collision is reported to have occurred at Matjiesfontein between a goods train and a passenger train, in which 30 persons were killed.

After the collision the cars of the passenger train caught fire and 19 natives were roasted alive.

Twenty-five natives and five Europeans were killed. Among the latter was Mr. J. W. Villiers, one of the bond candidates for Vryburg. Rev. Mr. Du Toit, wife and child, and Davey Cox, a prominent Rand football player. Many other persons were injured.

Greene and his staff proceeded along the beach, still under a hot infantry fire from the right, where the Eighteenth regulars and the Third regular artillery were engaging the enemy, and directed the movement for an advance into Malate. The vicinity of the forts was uncomfortable on account of a number of sharpshooters in the buildings on both sides, 200 yards distant. The forward movement was, therefore, hastened, and in a few minutes the outskirts of the suburbs were well occupied and the sharpshooters were driven away.

"As the Californians, under Colonel Smith, came up the beach, their band played the national air, accompanied by the whistling of Mauser bullets, and, during the sharpshooting, continued to encourage the men with inspiring music. Each regiment carried its colors into action. There was considerable street fighting in the suburbs of Malate and Ermita, but the battalion of Californians pushed into the Luneta, a popular promenade, within 300 yards of the most of the citadel. Then the white flag was hoisted at the southeast corner of the walled town. General Greene with a few members of his staff galloped along the Luneta under a sharp scattering fire from the houses near the beach, and parlaying with an officer, who directed him along to the gate, further east.

"At this moment, the Spanish forces, retreating from San Antonio de Abad, came into view, fully 2,000 strong, followed by insurgents, who had eluded General McArthur's troops, and now opened fire for a brief period. The situation was awkward, if not critical, both sides being slightly suspicious of treachery. The Spanish troops lining the citadel ramparts, observing the insurgents' action, opened fire on the Californians, killing one and wounding three. The confusion, however, soon ceased by the advance of the retreating Spanish to the esplanade, when General Greene ordered them to enter the citadel. Soon a long letter was brought from the captain-general, requesting the commander of the troops to meet him for consultation. General Greene immediately entered with Adjutant-General Bates.

"Meanwhile, according to arrangements, the moment the white flag was shown, General Merritt, who occupied the steamer Zedro, at temporary headquarters, sent General Whittier, with Flag Lieutenant Brunly, ashore to meet the captain-general and discuss a plan of capitulation.

"General Whittier found the officers most startled by the news that the attack was vigorously continuing along the whole line, the American troops even threatening the citadel. All available Spanish troops were immediately massed in the vicinity of the palace, awaiting the succession of events, concerning which a certain degree of anxiety was evident. General Merritt entered with his staff at 3 o'clock. The situation then was better understood and a conference with General Jaudenes was held. The terms agreed on may be outlined as follows:

"An agreement for the capitulation of the Philippines.

"A provision for disarming the men who remain organized, under the command of their officers, no parole being exacted.

"Necessary supplies to be furnished from the captured treasury funds, any possible deficiency being made good by the Americans.

"The safety of life and property of the Spanish soldiers and citizens to be guaranteed as far as possible.

"The question of transporting the troops to Spain to be referred to the decision of the Washington government, and that of returning their arms to the soldiers to be left to the discretion of General Merritt.

"Perfect order prevails tonight on both sides of the Pasig, the civil guard remaining armed and on duty, co-operating with the American sentries to preserve quiet. About 2,000 soldiers laid down their arms tonight in the palace vestibule. The stories of starvation in the town are exaggerated. The Spanish troops appear to be in excellent condition, and there are only 170 sick. Great credit must be given to General Merritt for his plan of attack, which was successfully carried out in every detail under unusually complicated conditions."

The Mustering Out.

Washington, Aug. 19.—At midnight the president announced his determination to muster out of the service 75,000 to 100,000 volunteers. Those to be discharged include three branches of the service, infantry, artillery and cavalry. The question of the mustering out of volunteers has been under consideration for some days. From a prominent official of the administration, it is understood to be the desire to obtain the wishes of the volunteer troops themselves as to remaining in the service.

As far as can be learned, the regular work train, with a passenger coach attached, plunged through the trestle which spans the Trunth river, about midway between Union wharf and Union City. It was about 125 feet high and 500 feet long.

WEEKLY MARKET LETTER.

(Reported by Howland, Hopkins & Co., Inc., Board of Trade Brokers, 20 to 24 Chamber of Commerce building, Portland, Oregon.)

The cash situation, which is generally the main element in the market, shows little change. The demand in some quarters failed to show as much activity, but in others it was fully up to previous weeks. The scarcity of cash wheat, the result of farmers refusing to sell freely, is the underlying strength. There were numerous bids of 64c over September for No. 2 red, and 8c over for No. 2 hard for export, but sales were slow. No. 2 red brought 72c and No. 2 hard 71 1/2c free on board.

In ordinary years this price would be an attractive one to farmers, but this season it is not. What the outcome will be is a puzzle. Farmers may be able to carry their point and force speculators to pay better prices. A great deal depends upon the magnitude of the export demand. The rally at the last was helped by reports that cash wheat in Kansas City was up 30c, and Minnesota 5c on cash wheat. There was also a report about Russia prohibiting exports, but it was denied by export houses in Paris. Receipts everywhere were under last year's.

The Price Current was rather bullish, and London reported the continent buying cargoes off coast. It is said that practically all the stock of the contract wheat at Chicago will be shipped out before the end of the week. With no stock there and futures at a discount there is not much prospect of bears making large profits by selling on the breaks. The government suggests a spring wheat crop for Minnesota of 79,321,000 bushels; North Dakota, 46,431,000 bushels; South Dakota, 41,898,000 bushels, a total for the three states of 167,650,000 bushels. Last year they had 109,588,000 bushels. The general belief is that the department's acreage is too low.

Conflicting reports in regard to the crop situation in Russia were circulated. The first received were unfavorable. They started inquiries from other sources. Dreyfus' man at New York said that the Russian situation was favorable, though less in some sections, and deliveries were rather light, owing to rains having delayed threshing. D. Bingham's information was that the Russian crops were good.

Good Roads Are Heavily Maintained.

"The great secret of success in road-making and road-keeping is to drain the roads, and keep the roads drained by keeping the ditches open," wrote John Gilmer Speed on "How to Have Good Country Roads," in the August Ladies' Home Journal. "The old method was to run a plow through the side ditches and throw the disturbed soil, sod and all, in the middle of the road. There it would stay till a heavy rain came to wash this soil back into the ditches and fill them up again. If there were money enough this kind of thing would be done over and over again, as often as four times in a year. Where there was not money enough to do this, the roads were broken stones or gravel would be placed in the road and left for the passing wagons to wear this material into ruts. The money spent was absolutely thrown away."

"By the new process all the road-making needs to do is to provide ditches and outlets for them, and then to shape the road that the water falling in a rainstorm will run off at once into the ditches. The water must not be suffered to run in the road, but off the road. The rainfall, being thus simply and effectively disposed of, becomes a most beneficial instead of a destructive agent; it cleans, and shapes, and hardens the roadway, instead of washing it away and deepening the ruts. When there are wet places, such as springs, in the roadway, gravel and broken stones will not cure such things. The water must be drained off underneath the roadway and into the ditches by means of pipe or blind drains. The whole thing is so simple that any one can easily master the principles and put the details into practical operation."

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammation of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.
