

Something Very Soothing.
There is something very soothing in the use of St. Jacobs Oil for the cure of Neuralgia. It soothes the pain, while it strengthens and restores the weak nerves to a natural condition. It is prompt and sure.

Characteristics of Lakes.
It takes a long time for the water always becomes salty, particularly if there is small rainfall and much evaporation. The Canadian sea is properly a salt lake. So is the Dead sea. There are several lakes of considerable size in Canada which have no visible outlet, being fed entirely from subterranean sources.—Chicago Chronicle.

True Greatness In Medicine
Is proved by the health of the people who have taken it. More people have been made well, more cases of disease and sickness have been cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla than by any other medicine in the world. The peculiar combination, proportion and process in its preparation make Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar to itself and unequalled by any other.

SYRUP OF FIGS
NEVER IMITATED QUALITY

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. In order to get its beneficial effects, please remember the name of the Company—

THE TRIBUTE DAY OF LIBERTY AND ENLIGHTENMENT.

WIDOW DARBY'S VALENTINE.

HE widow Darby, fair, plump and looking far younger than her 45 years, had ridden into town with Jared Kent because her horse had lamed himself that morning, and Jared "happened to be going in," and had asked the widow to ride with him. Jared was what some of the people of the neighborhood called a "regular born old bach." He had flouted and scorned womanhood most of the fifty years of his life, and had openly set forth his conviction that men were "better off without 'em than with 'em," particularly when it came to "marrying of 'em." He had held to this conviction so long and so constantly that all of the match-makers in the rural neighborhood in which he lived had given him up as a hopeless case beyond the pale of their schemes for making a benefactor of him.
Jared was not like most arowed women haters, a crabbed, cross-grained, sneeringly cynical man, which made his celibacy all the more unparadiseable in the eyes of the match-makers.
"He'd make a real good husband if he'd try," they said. "Then he has the nicest farm in the neighborhood, with one of the best houses on it and money out at interest, although he's not a bit mean and stingy. He'll do his full share always for a neighbor in distress. It isn't because he's too stingy to support her that Jared doesn't get him a wife."
It was a clear, crisp morning in February when Jared rode to the village with the widow Darby seated beside him in his neat little cutter. The sleighing was fine and the air keen and exhilarating. It gave the widow's plump cheeks a beautiful crimson glow and made her black eyes sparkle. She was in high spirits and her laugh rang out frequently as merry and rippling as the laugh of a child.
But then the widow Darby was peculiarly cheery. She had suffered keenly the loss of her husband and both of her children, but time had softened her grief, and she was too wise to spend her life in gloom and grief over the loss of those who were beyond all care and sorrow.
She had a comfortable little home and a few acres of land adjoining Jared Kent's. She had known Jared all of her life, but not once had she thought of him as a possible successor to Joel Darby.
"Jared will never marry any one," she had said. "He isn't of a marrying disposition. Some men are that way. It's all they lack to make an awful good wife, and I suppose he's just that kind of a fellow. He'd be nice and pleasant and all that, but he never came any nearer falling into any of the traps we set for him. We thought once that he did take a kind of a shine to a nice, sweet, real good looking girl of about 30 named Janet Deane from over Shelby way, who was visiting us. She'd made him an awful good wife, and I suppose he prides all the time, but nothing came of it."
"It's an elegant morning, isn't it?" said Jared, as he and the widow flew along over the hills and through long lanes in which the snow was drifted almost to the top rails of the fences.
"Oh, it's lovely!" replied the widow. "I like snow."
"So do I. You got much to do in town?"
"No; I'll be through with all of my errands in an hour. I can let something go if you don't want to stay in town that long."
"Oh, that'll be none too long for me. When shall I meet you?"
"I'll be at Smith & Hanson's dry goods store, any time you say."
"We'll call it 11 o'clock, then."
It was three minutes after 11 when Jared drove up to the appointed place of meeting. The widow had stepped into the sleigh and he was tucking the ropes in around her when she said:
"There, Jared, I'm just like other women; I've forgotten something."
"What is it?"
"I forgot to go around to the postoffice. I know that there's nothing there for me, because one of the Stone boys brought my mail out last night, and there's no mail trains in until noon; but poor old Jane Carr came over just before I left and wanted me to be sure and see if there was a letter for her. Her daughter is very sick out West, and she hasn't had a letter for a week, and she's half wild. I couldn't bear to tell her I'd forgotten to go to the postoffice."
"I'll drive round that way," said Jared. "It won't be three blocks out of the way."
Two or three boys stood idling in front of the postoffice and Jared said to one of them he chanced to know:
"Say, Jimmie, run into the office and see if there's any letter for Mrs. Jane Carr. You needn't ask for me, for I've been around and got my mail."
"You might look in box 184," said Mrs. Darby. "Mebbe there's a drop letter for me."
The boy came out a moment later with a very large square white envelope in one hand and a small blue envelope in the other. He grinned as he handed them to Mrs. Darby. She glanced at the blue envelope and said joyfully:
"O here's a letter for Jane, and it's from her daughter. I know by the postmark. How glad Jane will be! And here—well, I declare!"
She burst into a merry laugh as she

WANTED HIS HALF OF THE BERTH

A Good Story Geo. M. Pullman Loved to Tell of Lincoln.
There was one story of his career that the late George M. Pullman of sleeping car fame used to tell with manifest delight. It was as follows:
"One night going out of Chicago, a long, lean, ugly man, with a wart on his cheek, came into the depot. He paid George M. Pullman 50 cents, and a half berth was assigned him. Then he took off his coat and vest and hung them up, and they fitted the peg about as well as they fitted him. Then he kicked off his boots, which were of surprising length, turned into the berth, and having an easy conscience, was sleeping like a healthy baby before the car left the depot. Along came another passenger and paid his 50 cents. In two minutes he was back at George Pullman's.
"There's a man in that berth of mine," said he, hotly, "and he's about ten feet high. How am I going to sleep there, I'd like to know? Go and look at him."
In went Pullman—mad, too. The tall, lank man's knees were under his chin, his arms were stretched across the bed and his feet were stored comfortably—for him. Pullman shook him until he awoke, and then told him if he wanted the whole berth he would have to pay $1.
"My dear sir," said the tall man, "a contract is a contract. I have paid you 50 cents for this berth, and as you see, I'm occupying it. There's the other half," pointing to a strip about six inches wide. "Sell that and don't disturb me again." And, so saying, the man with a wart on his face went to sleep again. He was Abraham Lincoln.

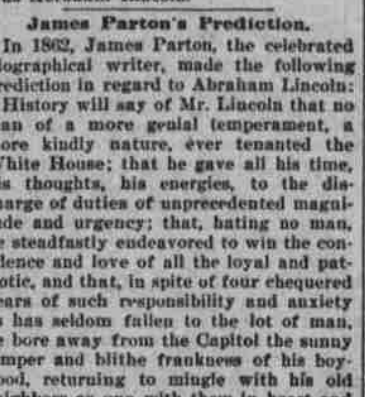

AT JANE CARR'S GATE.

dently disguised, and—O here is something inside! Let's see what it says.
"O wilt thou be my valentine
Forever and forever ay,
And wilt thou take this heart of mine,
And give me thine to-day?"
There was another verse, but before she had read it, the widow Darby cried out:
"Jared Kent, that's your handwriting and you need not try to deny it!"
"I'm not trying to deny it. You'll find my name signed in full to the next verse on the other page." This was the next verse:
"If 'yes' my answer is to be,
My heart with joy will bill,
If 'no,' I yet shall be your friend,
And I shall love you still."
They had reached the outskirts of the town now. Jared brought the horse to a standstill and said:
"Is it yes or no, Lucy?"
She looked at him with shining eyes and laughing face for a moment. Then she laid one of her mittened hands on the sleeve of the great fur coat he wore and said:
"I think it is yes, Jared."
He turned his horse's head toward the town.
"Where are you going?" she asked.
"Back to the minister's. It's Valentine's day, you know, and if it were to be my valentine, I want you to-day."
An hour later they stopped at Jane Carr's gate. She came skurrying out for her letter with her apron over her head.
"I brought you a letter, Jane, and I got a valentine," said Lucy, holding up the big white envelope.
"I got one also," said Jared, as he put

Gen. John A. Logan related the following: "On the morning of President Lincoln's arrival in Washington I called upon him at Willard's Hotel, in company with Mr. Lovejoy of Illinois. We both urged on the new President the necessity of a firm, vigorous policy. He listened to the end and then said very seriously, but cheerfully, 'As the country has placed me in the helm of the ship I'll try to steer her through.'"

A VALENTINE
LOVE abhors a single life,
So all nature doth declare,
Mountain peaks take clouds to wife,
Blushing roses and fair,
Zephyrs rush to sweet embrace,
Dew drops weave a wedding lace,
On the fields at early morn,
Bird unpaired near was born,
Violet eyes like Thine
Match the dark of mine
By a love signate
To our blissful state
Happy lovers we

BEECHER ON ADVERTISING DOCTORS.

San Francisco Chronicle.
"I am glad that the doctor cured him; I am glad that the doctor put it into the paper that he could cure him. And if any doctor is certain he can cure such diseases and don't put it into the paper, I am sorry. What a pity it would have been had this doctor come to town with his wealth of science and experience and gone away leaving him uncured! What a pity it would have been if he had been so prejudiced against advertising as to read the responsible certificates of the doctor and give him the go-by as a quack! What are newspapers for, if not to circulate information? What more valuable information can a newspaper give than to tell a sick man where he can be cured? If a man has devoted his life and labor to the study of a special class of diseases, the necessity of his saying so becomes all the more pressing. His duty is to advertise his cures imperiously, and really able man, whatever be his gifts, makes a great mistake if he fails to use those gifts through want of advertising."
The above extract from an article by the Rev. Mr. Beecher embodies a sound view of the subject of advertising. Suppose Dr. Darrin, at 383 Morrison street, this city, had come to the city and not advertised, who would know of his presence? Who would know of the following almost miraculous cure he performed in 1872, had not Mr. Dibble put it in the paper?
Mr. Editor: In 1872 my daughter was taken with the membranous eroup, and upon her recovery was left utterly deaf, and on two eminent physicians, who said they could do nothing for her. As a last resort, I took her to Dr. Darrin, who cured her, and she has never been troubled with deafness since. I consider it one of the greatest cures of electrical treatment on record, and with great satisfaction give this testimonial. I reside in Berkeley, Alameda county, Cal., and will take great pleasure in answering any inquiries concerning this most remarkable cure. Yours respectfully, WILLIAM S. DIBBLE.
