OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER.

Tax supervisors of the road districts of this county are now engaged in their season's work. Much of the work accomplished each year is only of a most temporary nature. We should desire to see less temporary and more permanent road work accomplished. On many of the bad hill grades, for instance, the deep ruts and washouts are being filled with dirt only, and not enough is being done to prevent a similar damage to the roads in future. This is not intended as a "kick" against any of our supervisors, but simply as a suggestion. There is no question but what they are doing the best they can under the circumstances. We are a strong advocate of a better road improvement system.

Lettle doubt remains now that the death of the members of the timber cruising party in Clatsop county was caused from eating canned goods. This seems to be the only logical conclusion. Expert guides would hardly become bewildered and lose their bearings in the vicinity in which the bodies were found, and the presumption that all hands remained with one member because he was fick or crippled, until destitute of food and starvation gnawing their vitality, a certainly too absurd to be regarded ifth any seriousness. Such an idea eems to us to be a reflection on the intelligence of the members of the party. Toomsine poisoning undoubtedly caused he awful ending of the lives of the men.

A raw additions are being made to the population in our county right along, mainly of the class seeking homes. Some of the newcomers are making or intending to make purchases and others are prudently looking over the county, seeking information upon important points before locating permanently. Similar reports of an influx of home-seekers come from various sections of the state, only in greater numbers. Both the new residents and the county are to be congratulated upon this showing, and every community is anxious to add to the sum total of its thrift and energy, and the reflex of these qualities in increased values. Hence, these accessions to our population will meet with a neighborly welcome whereever they locate. A FEW additions are being made to the regard to jurisdiction by the county court. There was no other alternative at the time the petitions were drawn, nor is there yet. The starting point at this end of the proposed road is at the western boundary line of the city limits of St. Helens, and until such time as the county court is petitioned to create Willamette street and other streets in St. Helens as county roads the court would have no jurisdiction in the matter to order them improved. This latter case would be a matter for after consideration. The prime object was to get the petitions in circulation, that work on the principal thoroughfare might be started at once. The improvement inside the corporate limits of St. Helens is a matter quickly and easily adjusted, and such a filmsy technicality, it seems to us, is a poor foundation upon which to base an objection to the signing of the petition. The city authorities here have but recently had Willamette street cutout and opened to the western boundary of the city, which fact alone would appear as evidence of good faith on the part of the people here to see that the road eventually terminates at the water's edge of the Columbia river. These little matters can be quickly enough and easily enough satisfactorily adjusted when it is a settled fact that the people want a road.

"Nothing greened to the water's edge of the Columbia river. These little matters can be quickly enough and easily enough satisfactorily adjusted when it is a settled fact that the people want a road.

"Norman succeeds like success," is an old but certainly true saying, and its application to the demands of the demands of the character, previous cropping and manure on hands, the character is a complete to the demands of the company of the condition of the company of the condition of county school money just made. The Clatakanie district's allow and its fitness for soil, crop, and as supplement to home manural supples, and the forms in which the ingredients of the condition of the city of St. Helens, were and the form in which the ingredient of the same supplement to home manural supples, and the forms in which the ingredient of the same and the forms in which the ingredient of the same of the condition of the city of St. Helens, were and the St. Helens district? The answer is simple enough, yet the fact is bold and stubborn. There are more children in those districts simply because the people have made an effort to get them there. They have induced them there, and the inducement has been good school iscilities. At Clatakanie there are twice amony children drawing school money as there are in the St. Helens district. People locate where their children can have advantage of good educational training in a good, comfortable building and three instructors are employed to train the youth. NOTES OF INTEREST TO OUR

A hog pen is had enough in summer; out if it is damp in winter it is the place where feed will be rapidly wasted. The logs must be dry and warm or the food equired for warmth will cost more than the animal is worth.

A good milking cow that has no breeding is a possibility, but such cows are simply "sports," or accidental "discovies," and cannot be relied upon for transmitting their good qualities to their progeny, though they may give good results when bred to pure-bred bulls.

It is seldom that the fruit-grower who orders peach trees gets the varieties he orders. When making contracts for peach trees be sure and procure them from a reliable nurseryman, and even then it will be well to have a written guarantee that the varieties are true to

During very cold weather the best way to keep the animals warm is to have the stalls covered a foot deep with leaves, cut straw or shredded cornstalks. In this manner the cold draughts that come in from the floor will be partially prevented, and the animals will require less food by reason of such protection.

Feeding cows according to their live weight is not a safe rule. The quantity of food eaten by some of the small cows during public tests for butter exceeded that consumed by much larger cows. Each cow is an individual differing from the others, and, to know how to properly feed, the dairyman must observe her closely and study her characteristics.

Shrubbery costs but little and adds value to a place, but unless properly arranged it will be of so advantage. There should be no vacant places as long as a shrub or a flower can be grown. The lawn should not be crowded with evergreens or flowers, but where a few are used on the lawn and put in the right places, they add to the beauty of the lawn. All work in the flower yard should begin as early in spring as the frost and the condition of the ground will permit.

To make fence posts more durable take boiled linseed oil, stir in pulverized coal to the consistency of paint, and give the post one or two thick coatings. Coal tar, thickened with pulverized coal, will also answer, but it will be better to first use the lineeed oil and then the coal tar. Apply both mixtures warm. The object is to protect the posts against water. After each post is set in its place use the coal tar mixture freely at the surface of the ground.

In the foreign markets lean pork is preferred, and there is a growing demand for more lean pork at home. Lean pork can be produced at less cost than may be supposed, and the hogs will grow faster and give heavier weights than when the pork is produced solely from corn. It is done by feeding, in addition to the corn, skim milk, bran, shorts, linseed meal, beans, peas, clover and other nitrogenous foods, which not only promote growth, but increase the weight also.

The mutton breeds of sheep are receiving more attention now than ever before. It is estimated that eight sheep can be kept in place of one cow, but the cow entails more labor. She will eat coarser food in winter, however, than will the sheep, but the latter can thrive on scanty pasturage that will not support a cow. There is much land which is more suitable for sheep than for cattle, and it is upon such lands that sheep should be kept rather than to permit the land to be unprofitable.

A farmer living near town, says a Corvallis paper, reports that he had a hen on his place that on Easter morning layed an egg with the word "Easter" engraved upon it. A week later the farmer was surprised to find in the same hen's nest an egg upon which were engraved the words, "Oh spring, spring, you giddy young thing." The hen still lives and is doing well.

It is understood in railroad circles that the Northern Pacific is about to enter into traffic arrangement with the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad Company to send all of its freight to California by that route. The Astoria road will, it is said, establish a line of steamboats to ply between that port and San Francisco, and as soon as that arrangement is entered into the transfer of Northern Pacific freight from the other routes will be commenced. The railway now ships its commodities either by the vessels of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, loading them in Tacoma, or makes railroad connections with the Southern Pacific at Portland.
