

THE HOP YIELD.

Washington, 80,000 Bales; California, 60,000 Bales, and Oregon, 70,000 Bales.

Speaking of the hop situation, Captain George Pope, of Portland, says:

"The situation of Oregon's hop crop this year is a peculiar one. Four weeks ago the most conservative grower or dealer had made up his mind that nearly 100,000 bales would be produced in this state. The hops were on the vines, and no doubt the quality would have been excellent but for the heavy rains in August, which imparted new life to vines, and fresh stragglers began to set on laterals that could not have come to maturity at so late a date. In addition to this, the core of the burr grew continuously under conditions produced by the August rains and the warm weather of this month, so that growers were confronted by a problem that puzzled them. Kilns which in former years could be dried in 18 hours could not this year be taken off in less than 24 to 36 hours, and in some cases even 80 hours were required to take off a flooring of moderate size. This threw the drying machinery out of shape. The hops, owing to the cool weather of August were backward. Picking of them did not become general until about September 10, so that all large yards have suffered considerably. Entire yards have been abandoned on account of the rapid spread of mold, with the result that the crop has been cut down to about 70,000 bales. The quality of these 70,000 bales will range about 10,000 bales choice, 30,000 to 40,000 medium, and the remainder indifferent.

"From what is known of other states, California has the best quality, and 60,000 bales is said to be the yield in that state. Washington's quality is said to be the same as ours, but as that state is seven or eight days later in maturing the crop west of the Cascades, it is doubtful if it will harvest the quota accredited to her—50,000 bales. New York has one-third less this year than last, and the crop is said to have come down in very poor shape. English advices are conflicting. The yield in England is said to be the heaviest in many years. One writer who is an authority, while very conservative, gives the yield as 1,100 pounds per acre. England this year has 60,000 acres of hops. Such a yield, therefore, if it is all gathered, will be nearly equal to British consumption. Germany's crop is also above the average, but it is doubtful if she has many hops to throw on the export market. The market value of English hops today ranges from $2 1/2 to $4 1/2 per 112 pounds, but it is said that even these prices will not be maintained after the surplus of the United States seeks an outlet. As to this, however, there is no assurance.

"The points in favor of the grower are these: First, the old stocks have all been worked off, and the crop of the world goes to a practically bare market; second, times all the world over are better; confidence has been restored, labor is everywhere fully employed, and hence the consumption of beer is on the increase."

Seattle Starch Factory.
At the meeting of the Seattle chamber of commerce at Seattle last week that committee reported in favor of asking in raising $25,000 for the establishment of a starch factory there. The proposed factory is to be built under the supervision of Mr. Hundhausen, of Westfalen, Germany whose family owns a secret process of making starch that has been in use for 30 years. The process saves all the gluten from the flour, while the process now in use on the coast, saves little or none of the gluten. The estimated cost of building and running the factory is $27,924. It is estimated that a factory at that point could sell in round numbers one-eighth of all the starch used on the coast, or per annum 600,000 pounds. This is an average of one ton per day and would require 1.33 tons of flour per day.

To Have a Regular Steamship Line.
The Alaska Packers Association is making preparations to establish a regular steamship line running between San Francisco and Bristol Bay next summer. The company has several cameries located on Bristol Bay which are operated during the summer, but there has been no mail or passenger service from that place. The men engaged in fishing there are shut out from the world while the season lasts. The association has recently let a contract with a Portland firm for the building of a steamer which will cost $200,000.

Atlin Needs More Courts.
A petition is being circulated in Atlin asking for the appointment of a county court judge for that district. The need of such a court is imperative. Already there are 28 cases on the calendar. This, in most instances, will work great hardship. In one case an old gentleman sued for 60 days' wages at $4 per day, in all $240. The amount being over $100 the matter could not be settled in the small debts court, and so the case pending.

Six carloads of fancy liquors, weighing 60 tons, going to Dawson under special permits issued by Canadian government officials, went through Skagway recently in care of a convoy of the United States customs inspector.

Dryers in Operation.
A few days of warm weather have ripened the prunes at Roseburg so rapidly that the packers were forced to quit packing. L. Chapman sent one car to Montana and T. N. Segar, of Eugene, three cars to the Eastern states. Mr. Biddle and Mr. Womacot have started their dryers and all the other dryers of the valley will start up within a few days.

Oregon's Medicine Industry.
Dr. J. A. Lamberson has during the past few months bought for shipment near Lebanon, 340 tons of cascara bark, for which he has paid $90 a ton, or a total of $30,600. He has also bought 20 tons of Oregon grape root, paying therefor $1,200. The doctor is also investigating the market for bilalium, having bought 66 barrels of that article, paying $1,250 per barrel. Dr. Lamberson, who resides at Starbuck, Wash., states that he is now convinced that the collection of medicine barks, etc., will prove a permanent industry in that section of Oregon.

GENERAL TRADE IS GOOD.

Reaction in the Stock Market Has Not Little Effect.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The reaction in the stock market is not a sign of anything outside that market, but has caused many to look for signs of a reaction elsewhere. Such signs have been hard to find. It has been for months a wonder that the demand for products was sustained at rates exceeding past consumption in any year, notwithstanding the general rises in prices. But the demand does not appear to abate, and the rise in prices continues.

Wheat exports fall a little below last year's, but in three weeks, flour included, have been 8,862,877 bushels for Atlantic ports, against 9,393,831 bushels last year, and 1,021,998 bushels from Pacific ports, against 907,961 bushels last year. But Western receipts have been 21,759,852 bushels, against 23,999,397 bushels last year, and even more impressive are the receipts of 18,515,933 bushels of corn, against 11,777,483 bushels last year, and the exports of 9,201,427 bushels, against 5,943,968 last year.

Further government reports have been so credited abroad that cotton has risen to 6.32 cents, but it comes forward more freely than in years of maximum crops.

When men pay $3 to $5 per ton more than the latest quoted price for iron products in order to get early deliveries, it is because delay is threatened on works or railroads or bridges, vessels or machinery, promising a profit many times the cost of a small fraction of the material. In such circumstances as in much of the reconstruction and expansion now going on, present cost counts for little compared with the earning power of the finished product in a time like this.

SUSPENDERS ABOLISHED.

A Shirt of New Pattern Which Does Away with Suspenders.

A shirt recently patented in England and placed on the market there dispenses entirely with the use of suspenders. The burden of the braces is taken off the shoulders entirely by the shirt. As will be seen by the dotted lines in the illustrations, the yoke is extended both back and front, and to it are fixed three tabs.

which are easily attached or detached by loops or suspenders to the trousers. This relieves the downward pressure of trouser braces on the shoulders, which has a natural tendency to contract the chest. This shirt, it is claimed, is the most comfortable garment a man can wear, inasmuch as the weight is equally distributed over the body. For cricket, cycling, rowing, and, in fact, all kinds of sports, it is most invaluable. It is also recommended for dress shirts, as it not only allows one to sit upright at table, but always keeps the front of the shirt in position, and prevents it from bulging out of the waistcoat. Two figures of the new design are shown, back and front. By these it is said that while the new shirt has an equal pressure all around, the ordinary braces pull heavily on the neck portion of the shoulders.

Wives of the Waltz King.

Johann Strauss, the waltz king, was scarcely laid away to rest in the Friedhof when a series of disputes arose over his possessions. Strauss secured to his wife and stepdaughter, as well as his sisters, moderate incomes for life, and then made the Society of Friends of Music his heir-at-law. He disinherited his brother, the well-known Edward Strauss, and made no provision for the destitute widow of his brother Joseph. The chief effort to dispute the legality of Strauss' will is to be made by his second wife, from whom he claimed that he was divorced.

When Strauss contracted his second marriage both he and his wife were Roman Catholics, and were united in a Catholic church and with the rites of that religion. The Austrian marriage laws are exceptionally severe, and married Catholics can in this country effect a legal separation from one another, but never an absolute divorce which enables them to marry again. The result is that Roman Catholics who have secured a separation resort to all sorts of evasions of the law in order to marry again. Johann Strauss resorted from Roman Catholicism and became a Protestant, then emigrated to the Duchy of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, resided there for a period, obtained an absolute divorce from his first wife and married a third time. This evasion of the Austrian marriage laws deprived Strauss of the court favor which he had enjoyed, and it seems certain that in the strict legal sense his second wife is his rightful widow, whereas his third wife, for whom he has provided, had no authentic claim on him. The Austrian laws of succession provide that a wife can never be disinherited, but has always a claim on at least one-third of the property left by her husband, so that the second wife of the great musician has every prospect of obtaining this share of his wealth. At present she is in poor circumstances, and earns her living in a photographic studio in Berlin.

Walls Plastered with Coins.

Miss Daisy Dentz, of Dentzville, N. J., a suburb of Trenton, has probably the largest collection of coins in New Jersey. Some of them are many hundred years old, and they represent the currencies of nearly every country in the world. Some idea of the size of the collection may be gathered from the fact that the ceiling of Miss Dentz's boudoir is completely covered with United States money, while the four walls are hidden behind the coins of Asiatic, European, African and South American countries. There is considerable history attached to this collection, especially to the English coins, which were found near Princeton in a queer shaped hat by one of Miss Dentz's relatives while in search of minerals. The hat is similar in shape to those worn by the Hessian soldiers during the revolution and is still in Miss Dentz's possession. There are many valuable coins in her collection, and were she to convert them all into present American currency they would yield quite a snug sum.—Philadelphia Record.

The Wind Made Snowballs.

Last March there was a remarkable exhibition at Grafton, N. H., of the comparatively rare phenomenon of "snow rollers." Freshly fallen snow was rolled by the wind into innumerable cylinders, some of them as large as a barrel, which dotted the hills and fields. Similar rollers have been seen in recent years in Connecticut, in Kansas and in the State of Washington. The size varies with the strength of the wind.

Creeping Numbness is a Danger Signal

Mr. G. H. Barber, a well known citizen of Lawrence, Kan., says: "I am now seventy years of age. About a year ago I experienced a coldness or numbness in the feet, then creeping up my legs, until it reached my body. I grew very thin in flesh, appetite poor and I did not relish my food. At last I became unable to move about. I consulted several distinguished physicians, none telling me I had locomotor ataxia, another that I had creeping paralysis. I took their medicines but continued to grow worse. Almost a year ago a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Before I had finished my first box I found they were benefiting me. I used twelve boxes in all, and was perfectly cured. Although it is six months since I used my last pill there has been no recurrence of the disease."—From Lawrence Journal.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors prescribed a local remedy, and by constantly doling out cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any catarrh that will cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Sold by druggists, 75c.

There are few quieter, more secluded villages in England than the Meons, east and west, lying among the Hampshire Downes. Old Winchester Hill presiding over the scene seems to tell of some old British city thereabouts, the forewornness of the more famous city of the plains. And the Romans were busy about the hills with camps and summer settlements long since. But nothing much has happened there since. Sturdy Cobbett passed that way in his "Rural Rides," and marveled at the huge church of East Meon in its mighty solitude. Built to hold thousands, and now, in Cobbett's time, a few shepherds and graziers, sparsely scattered, form the whole population of the parish. And still the process of depopulation goes on, as census tables tell. But the Meons are to have a railway at last, and we read that the Meon valley railway from Alton to Fareham, a distance of about 20 miles, will run through country hitherto quite untouched by any railway, and will afford a rapid and direct means of communication between Alderhot and the southern ports and defenses of Portsmouth, Southampton and Gosport.—Household Words.

Joseph Jefferson, some 10 years ago, spent a week with a Scotch peer. Among the guests was a haughty and brilliant lady who made a dead set at quizzing him. He did not detect it at first and answered some of her absurd questions about America quite innocently. At last he saw her purpose and decided to get even. His opportunity came when emboldened by her success, she said: "By the by, have you met the queen lately?" "No, Madam," Jefferson replied with perfect seriousness, "I was out when her majesty called upon me." She colored slightly and then turned away and never spoke to him again.—Detroit Free Press.

Bridget's Mishap.

An Irish lady, having had a few hot words with her husband one day, had occasion a few moments after to send her servant for some fish for dinner. "Bridget," said the mistress, "go down to the town at once and get me a plaice."

"Indeed, an' I will, ma'am," said Bridget; "and I may as well get wan for myself, for I can't stand the master no more than yourself."—Spare Moments.

Americans are quick to appreciate merit. The Dewey celebrations prove that, and it is again forcibly demonstrated in the praise and confidence which is accorded Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, one of the most meritorious remedies ever compounded for indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, liver or kidney disease or any trouble arising from a weak stomach.

Feasting the Public. "I'm about bushed in the matter of curiosities," mused the owner of a small store. "It's a bad habit—this idea of drawing trade by making a museum of the window, but I can't stop now—business won't allow it."

A few hours later the soda water trade was rushing. The crowd outside the window gazed until it was thirsty at the remarkable bird that hung in a big cage. The card attached bore a handful of the alphabet hysterically put together and designed for a scientific name. After it were the words: "From Samoa."

A few days later the "curiosity" was feeding in the back yard with the rest of the bantam hens.—Detroit Free Press.

The famous clock in the Palais de Justice in Paris, dates from 1370, and is the work of the celebrated De Vick, whose turret clocks are the earliest on reliable record. The carved figures of Piety and Justice and the angles supporting the royal coat of arms were executed by Gremaine Pilon. It is believed that it was the bell of this clock that rang the signal for the massacre of St. Bartholomew in 1572.

The very next day he put his design into execution, and he hadn't been honest more than 15 minutes when 17 of the leading bulls fell dead, they were so surprised at him. Hereupon the market naturally broke, and the operator could get all the stocks he wanted at his own figure. It is claimed that some, if not all, of these bulls had taken radishes and ham for breakfast, but that, it is submitted, does not destroy the moral of this fable.—Detroit Journal.
