

OREGON MIST.

JANUARY 11, 1901.

1901 is yet a little awkward to write. Taxpayers time is nearly at hand again.

The Legislature will meet at Salem next Monday.

Mrs. J. W. Day visited friends in Reuben this week.

"The clouds above, the mud below, a universe of mud and snow".

S. C. Henry, of St. Helens, is agent for the latest improved gasoline lamps.

Merchant H. M. Fowler, of Goble, was among the county seat visitors Monday.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Watts of Scappoose, Monday, January 7, 1901.

John Berdahl, of Bacheior Flat, was in town Tuesday looking after business matters.

County court is in session this week, with the usual amount of first-of-the-year business to attend to.

In the probate court Monday John Benzer filed a petition for appointment as administrator of the estate of Joseph Benzer, deceased.

Come in and keep warm and dry while waiting for the boat. Our store is handy to the dock and commands a splendid view of the river.

School clerks of districts desiring to vote special tax should forthwith send to the County Clerk for the amount of taxable property in their district.

Rev. Mr. Philbrook will preach at Yankton next Sunday forenoon at the usual hour, and will conduct communion services in this city in the evening.

Married.—At Portland, Monday, December 24th, Jesse Garner to Miss Ida Davey, both of Marshland. Mr. and Mrs. Garner have gone to The Dalles to spend their honeymoon.

If you have any pet schemes which you think the Legislature ought to fix up for you, now is the time to begin to make your desires known, or else for ever after hold your peace.

Our logging friends, who were with us during the holidays, have returned to the camps to resume work. The active demand for logs with advancing prices is an inducement to loggers to keep the camps in operation.

St. Helens is fortunate in possessing not one individual crank who claims that the 20th century is already a year old. We believe the community to be entirely free from such an individual, but if there are any they keep their knowledge to themselves.

A hat is for the purpose of protecting and adorning the end of reason, and a shoe for the purpose of protecting and adorning the end of navigation. We have a good line of such articles and Congress didn't make any appropriation either. Collins & Gray, St. Helens merchants.

A trespass case tried out in the justice court Monday created some excitement. Mr. James Quinn had entered complaint against John Parteneu for unlawfully hunting ducks on the former's premises, but a jury, before which the facts in the case were reviewed, seemed to be of the opinion that the defendant had not trespassed, and he was accordingly released from custody.

Last week we stated the number of instruments handled in the County Clerk's office during the year 1900. We are prepared now to give the gross earnings of that office for that year. For recording $1865.20 was collected. Circuit and probate court fees amounted to $2622.60. The salary paid the officials was $2,300, leaving a margin of over $300. Back taxes collected by the Clerk during 1900 amounted to $3,254.01.

Mr. W. H. Dolman received a kick from a horse Sunday which has kept her confined to her room since. Mr. and Mrs. Dolman were on their way to Columbia City, riding in a sleigh. The horse was to be driven, which, in descending a slight incline ran on the horse's heels. The animal kicked quite viciously, overreaching the front of the sleigh, striking Mrs. Dolman on her lower limb, the calf of the shoe penetrating the flesh, near the shin bone nearly half an inch, inflicting quite a serious wound.

Commissioner Case came over from Pittsburg Monday to be on hand to attend the regular term of Commissioner's Court this week. Mr. Case reports about two feet of snow on the summit when he came over. The Commissioner also stated that the bridge across the Nehalem River above Vernonia, had been completed and was open for travel. The bridge is made under rather trying circumstances as the water was high during the entire time that work on the structure was in progress, which made extra trouble and extra expense. But it's a good bridge and well worth all it cost.

In last week's Kalama Press appeared the following complimentary notice of the paper's home town: "The City of Kalama has much to be proud of. No town of its size in the state has better water, better city officials, more enterprising business men, better schools and churches than Kalama. Situated as we are on deep water with immense mining possibilities coupled with that of our lumbering and fishing industries is sure to make this one of the leading cities of the coast. Kalama is a thriving little burg, and the statements of the Press are not out of place, at all."

Our friend Martin White, the affable gentleman and careful Assessor, assumed the duties of County Assessor for another term last week. Mr. White has three times previously performed this same duty, and his re-election last June makes it necessary for him to again comply with the law in this matter. Heretofore, however, this duty has been performed under a law which provided that his services should be paid for at the rate of $3 per day, when employed, but the last Legislature provided a rate of salaries for Assessors in different counties, the salary in Columbia County to be $75 per month, and from January 1st, this year, Mr. White will draw his salary at that rate.

Scappoose is all agog with railroad excitement, and well enough it might be. About a week ago about a half a ton of grub was unloaded at the station there, and its ownership was a mystery until Monday of this week, when a corps of surveyors and assistants was unloaded there and a camp established near O. D. Garrison's place, on North Scappoose Creek. The gentlemen state that their mission is to survey a railroad route from Scappoose to Nehalem, or at least, up in the hills about the headwaters of Scappoose. It is known that there are valuable iron deposits in that vicinity, besides a body of splendid timber, which, combined, makes an attraction for a road. Just what is meant by this sudden intrusion of the surveying party is very much obscured in mystery as yet, but we may be able to give more definite information in the near future.

At press hour colder weather was indicated.

W. D. Connell, of Deer Island, was in town Tuesday.

Attorney Conyers was up from Clatskanie Monday.

Miss Mamie Dart, of Portland, visited relatives here a few days this week.

Attorney R. P. Graham, of Portland, was attending to legal matters here Tuesday.

Judge Woodard was down from Portland Wednesday attending to legal matters.

Mr. Holcomb, of Portland, visited his granddaughter, Mrs. Dillard, in this city this week.

The season of less darkness and more daylight will soon be here. After the first of next month the days will lengthen very quickly.

Mr. John Scott, of Kalama, was in town Tuesday afternoon and evening to attend the installation of officers of the Knights of Pythias.

Commissioner Frakes came down from Scappoose Tuesday evening to be on hand Wednesday for the January session of county court.

John Cooper, of Kalama, and Fred Watkins, of Portland, spent last Sunday in this city. The latter had just recovered from a seige of sickness.

Charley Davis, formerly of this city, who has been in the mining camps of British Columbia and Eastern Oregon for five years, is visiting his relatives in Portland.

Miss Gertrude Finley, after spending the holiday vacation at her home in Oregon City, returned to this city last Friday to assume her duties as principal of the school.

O. E. Hunter, of Goble, was in town Wednesday forenoon attending to his liquor license affairs before the County Court. He continued on to Portland later in the day.

No difference what the new year brings to us just so it is not a revival of the old controversy as to whether this is the old or the new century. We feel that we could stand anything better than that.

If troubled with weak digestion, belching, sour stomach, or if you feel dull after eating, try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Price 25 cents. Samples free at St. Helens Pharmacy.

Messrs. Walter Blakesley and D. W. Richardson have bought the Banquet saloon from C. E. Whitney, who, it is said, will engage in the saloon business at Clatskanie after the 15th of the month.

Cut this out and take it to the St. Helens Pharmacy and get a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and the benefits of the same. Also cure disorders of the stomach, biliousness and headache.

Miss Mary Miles was married to Mr. Stephen Hicklin, of Seattle, Wednesday morning at the residence of bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Miles, in Oregon City, January 2, 1901. The bride is the niece of Mr. S. A. Miles, of this city.

In answer to the question, "What is a rig?" the editor of an exchange furnishes the information that it is an outfit for which a young man blows in the fruits of a week's labor for the privilege of letting his best girl hold the lines for an hour while he holds her.

Our friends Charley Gable and Magnus Saxon were down from their fishing grounds Tuesday, the latter to attend the semi-annual installation of officers of the Knights of Pythias, he himself being installed as Chancellor Commander for the ensuing term.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Dillard entertained the members of the reading circle at their home Monday evening at progressive whist. The evening was pleasantly spent at the game and the consuming of the good things to eat. Mr. and Mrs. Dillard are entertainers of a high order.

All persons who know themselves indebted to us, or those who think themselves indebted to us, are very respectfully requested to call and settle their accounts. Our bills have to be paid, and it takes money to pay them. In many instances we have accommodated you for many months, and a little reciprocity would be very much appreciated here.

Attorney Hall received notice from the attorneys of the Astoria Railroad Company Monday, that the company was willing to settle the damage case against it brought by James and Robert McKay, of Scappoose, for the loss of stock. Notice of appeal was filed, but the company decided not to take the matter to a higher court, hence a compromise and settlement.

Beginning with the first of the year the County Treasurer will receive an advance in his salary of $100 per year, that is, he will be paid at the rate of $600 per year instead of $500 per year. This is a result of the law passed by the last Legislature regulating the salaries of the officers of this county, but the County Treasurer had not been receiving his advance as had the other officials. The salary is little enough now.

Abstracter Quick finds his time nowadays altogether consumed in making abstracts of title to lands in this county. The value of the abstracts books for this county is daily becoming more appreciated and popular, and calls for abstracts and charts are being had from all parts of the country. An abstract of title is almost indispensable in transfers of realty, and Mr. Quick and his associates are at all times prepared to supply such documents on short notice.

Last week's Kalama Bulletin states that Dr. McLaren will have charge of Dr. Simms' practice at that place during the latter gentleman's attendance at the Legislature, which convenes in Olympia next Monday, and of which body Dr. Simms is a second-term member. We infer, of course, that Dr. McLaren did not elect to locate in Eugene, as he thought he might do when he departed for that place two weeks ago.

We are now in the new year. Some claim that it is the beginning of the twentieth century while others claim it is the second year of the century. We do not think it is a Solomon on this point, and admitting that it is either, and stating emphatically that we are still doing business at the old stand, we wish our readers and those who should become readers of the paper a happy and prosperous new year, and square accounts, and thus demonstrate your desire for our happiness and prosperity.

We publish this week a list of the amount of taxable property in each school district in this county. School boards anticipating levying a tax for school purposes should send forthwith to the County Clerk for a certified list of the taxable property, call the meeting, vote the tax and inform the County Clerk immediately of the amount you wish to levy. If the tax may be extended on the roll, without which you will be deprived of the benefit of special tax for school purposes. Unless the amount of your levy is in by the 1st of February you will be too late with it.

The highest bridge in the world has just been completed at Astoria. It spans a gorge on the White Pass & Yukon Railroad, and does away with a switch-back. The bridge over the main portion of the gorge is 400 feet long, and with the trestle work at each approach 850 feet long. The track is 230 feet above the lowest part of the gorge. The steel work is 90 feet high. As may be imagined, it cost a large sum of money, but a comparatively small sum as compared with the cost of the entire road. It would seem that the promoters have unlimited capital at their back.

H. V. Gates, of Hillsboro, who has several electric lighting plants running in the Northwest, is shipping cordwood from Fairview, Multnomah County, to Heppner, for the use of his furnace there. This is hauling wood 150 miles, though there is plenty of wood in the Blue Mountains, 20 miles from Heppner. The heavy body of Mr. Western Oregon. Mr. Gates thinks, is the best wooden fuel in the world and so he considers it economy to ship it from Fairview. It costs him, laid down in Heppner, $2.40 per cord, while the soft pine of the Blue Mountains can be bought in Heppner for $3 per cord.

An exchange very appropriately remarks: "What constitutes one of the drawbacks in the development of a town or community is the petty jealousies and antiquated prejudices of the people. New blood and new life is often necessary to get rid of an evil of this kind, and then a long time is sometimes required to produce good results. Too many people of a conservative nature are often a detriment to a city, while a reversed condition is just as harmful. So, in the end, it is more like luck that an even balance is struck, and in such places great activity and continual growth prevails."

A shrewd Portland man who has observed the products and the markets of the country has written a long article telling of a number of industries that ought to be made more profitable in Oregon. He says that both our soil and our climate are peculiarly adapted to city raising. He thinks our wheat crops would be larger and better if more attention were given to proper summer fallowing, and says a greater per cent of it ought to be made into flour before export. He sees no good reasons for so many oats and barley products being imported while our own state can produce such superior articles. There ought to be several starch factories to utilize our immense crops of potatoes. There are no good excuses for bringing in so many hog and poultry products, and all the sugar and butter we need could be made within the borders of our own state.

Considerable attention was attracted at the O. R. & N. wharf a few days ago, says the Astorian, by the presence of an old-looking craft lying alongside the dock and looking like a bob-tail river steamer. The vessel is the ill-starred Klickitat, which was started by the Pacific Railway Company of which Paul Mohr was the prominent figure and when that company which was to build a boat railway at the Dalles, went to the wall during the late summer the Klickitat was sold to satisfy a mortgage. She was a splendid model of a river steamer and was to have been one of the finest boats of the company but she was never completed and has no machinery or wheel and consists of only the hull and outer shell of her upper works. She was purchased by the O. R. & N. Co. and is being used in the rather inglorious role of a barge. She has on board some seven thousand sacks of wheat which are being lightered down for the steamer Ching Wo.

The horse-selling season did not wait for spring to open this year, but has already started in, owing to the heavy demand for good draft horses for the logging camp, says the Oregonian. Quite a number of animals are being bought for the British Columbia market, and these are shipped to the coast by the 30 per cent Canadian duty. Those who have to buy horses now think they are rather at the wrong end of the bargain, as a well-bred pair, weighing 1600 to 1800 each, readily sell at from $300 to $400. Heavy horses, however, are scarce, and purchasers will have to content themselves with the lighter animals purchasing more of them. According to experienced dealers, the horse ranges of Eastern Oregon were pretty well depleted of their best animals last year, and so very few of those to be brought in this season will reach the desired standard in weight. "Horses are high here," a dealer says yesterday, "but they are worth nearly double Portland prices in the woods of British Columbia, and a team selling for $300 here will bring $600 across the British line."

Every now and then a rumor is wafted about on the breeze that there is no law forbidding hogs running at large in this county. Such is an incorrect statement of the facts in the case, as anyone may ascertain by visiting the County Clerk's office and examining the returns of an canvasser held in the county in the returns of the general election held in this county June 5th, 1888. Messrs. J. Calvin Johnson, Justice of the Peace for Scappoose precinct; A. H. Blakesley, Justice of the Peace for Union precinct, and N. C. Dale, County Clerk, have canvassed the canvasser, and their report shows that "for hogs running at large" there were 157 votes cast; against hogs running at large, 61. This vote was taken in accordance with a provision of the statute which provides that the people of a county may vote upon and forbid or permit at large, by a majority vote deciding it either way. The petition of 100 voters was filed with the Clerk, according to law, and the manner of voting on the question was the same as prescribed for voting on the adoption of an amendment to the constitution. Hence, hogs are lawfully run at large in Columbia County.

The Portland Telegram, which is never afraid to express an opinion, rolls up its sleeves and goes at the office of State Printer in this wise: "Senator Mulkey, of Polk County, has another commendable idea, though not a new one, for the Legislature to consider. This is to abolish the office of State Printer. This should certainly be done. There is very little excuse for such an official. If the office could be conducted at a reasonable expense, and be of no great objection to it, it is not judging from all past experience no hope of reasonable economy in this work can be expected. It costs at least three times what the state ought to pay, merely to make one man wealthy, and put him in a position to be an important factor in log-rolling schemes to be introduced into the banking business, if he so desires. State officers should be well paid, but two or three of them enjoy a great fair out of proportion even to the exalted positions they hold or the valuable services they perform. None of the State officers, however, are to be abolished, except this one of State Printer, but that is one entirely unnecessary."

Attorney Powell was attending to business matters at down river points Thursday.

Washington County Farmer's Opinion of Road to Nehalem.

The following communication appeared in Wednesday's Oregonian: TIGARDVILLE, Or., Jan. 5.—(To the Editor.)—I notice in your issue of January 6 a communication from Scholl's about the route of a proposed railroad from Portland to Nehalem by way of Oswego, to connect with the old Nehalem road on the north side of the Nehalem. Being familiar with the route from childhood, and having conducted a lumber manufacturing business for ten years, and being familiar with all the timber resources of this section, I think I am in a position to give your readers some idea of the benefits to be gained by building a road over this route. In the first place, there is a choice of three routes, all of which are practicable, and would be nearly on a water level, without any very heavy grading, and not much trouble work, and I am satisfied a road would pay from the time the first train would run over the road.

The building of a railroad through this section of the country has become a necessity, and the people are still in the mood to take hold and help in any way they can. Leaving Oswego, the road would run through a rich farming and lumbering country until near Tigardville. From Tigardville to Scholl's there are fine farms in plenty, besides thousands of acres of timber suitable for cordwood and lumber and on the south side of Cooper Mountain and tributary to the proposed route are several thousand acres of the finest pine and spruce lumber to be found anywhere in Oregon today. Along the Tualatin River is a large amount of the finest beaverdam land only waiting the advent of transportation facilities to pour its wealth into the commercial centers. At Scholl's would be a shipping point for the north side of the Chinaman Mountain, a strip of land some four miles wide by seven or eight long, all thickly settled with resources enough to nearly pay for building the road. From Scholla to Newton Station the route would run through a fine section of country, where, at every cross-roads, would be waiting wheat, hay and cordwood for shipment.

The resources of the Nehalem are too well known to need more than a casual mention. Suffice it to say that the timber of the Nehalem Valley is the finest to be found anywhere in Oregon, and is in such quantity that any one can hardly comprehend its magnitude. And it is in my candid opinion that the company which first takes hold and builds a road over this route will line its pockets, he sides concerning a lasting favor on the people of the richest part of Oregon.
