

Salt Rheum

You may call it eczema, tetter or milk crust. But no matter what you call it, this skin disease which comes in patches that burn, itch, discharge a watery matter, dry and scale, owes its existence to the presence of humors in the system.

It will continue to exist, annoy, and perhaps agonize, as long as these humors remain. It is always radically and permanently cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla which expels all humors, and is positively unequalled for all cutaneous eruptions.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED. By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness cured by our method. It cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 73c. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

BAD BLOOD, BAD COMPLEXION.

The skin is the seat of an almost endless variety of diseases. They are known by various names, but are all due to the same cause, acid and other poisons in the blood that irritate and interfere with the proper action of the skin.

To have a smooth, unflaking, clear skin from the worst forms of skin troubles, it is the greatest of all blood purifiers, and the only one guaranteed purely vegetable. LACE CAUSED FAMOUS QUARREL.

Empress Josephine Cut a Costly Piece and Napoleon Slapped Her. For $2,000 has been sold in Paris a piece of lace which was the cause of a quarrel between Napoleon and Josephine, in which the cheeks of the Empress were slapped. It had been the property of Mile. Perusse, daughter of a favorite maid of the flighty Empress. Napoleon had brought the lace from Italy. He often brought her beautiful things on his return from a successful campaign, and Josephine never asked him how he had got them, for she thought that perhaps he would not care to tell.

It was a large square of the finest old point de Venise, and Josephine, as soon as she had it in her possession, sent for M. Duplan, her man-milliner, and asked him to make with it a certain fichu and a cap.

"Impossible, your majesty," answered Duplan, "the piece is too large, and we could not arrange it gracefully."

"Well, cut it, then!" "Cut a treasure such as that! Oh, madam, I could not do such a thing!" "Nonsense!" cried Josephine. The lace was draped on her shoulders; she knew how she wanted it, so she calmly took a pair of scissors, and in a second had it set right, while long, narrow pieces of the priceless stuff fell round her.

At this moment the Emperor entered the room. "Cannibale!" he cried. And he gave her a sounding slap on her violently rouged cheeks, which were soon covered with tears. Duplan discreetly withdrew, and the lace was thrown into a chest of drawers. Josephine could not bear the sight of after that, and gave it to Mme. Perusse, her favorite maid. The odd bits of it have now been sold for $2,000. Another bundle fetched $1,000.

The passion of Josephine for lace caused frequently scenes between her and Napoleon. She would have lace, and she seldom let anything stand in the way of acquiring it. It is even said that this frivolous fancy helped to bring about her downfall, for Napoleon, who at first would not bear of forsaking her, one day said to the Prince De Wagram: "The cup is full now, Prince. What do you think Josephine did lately? 'Nobbled' one of my young generals, and made him pass lace for her in his top boots through my own frontier! Her soul is made of lace, Prince, and that is too fragile a stuff for an Empress' soul!"

GALLANT SENATOR SPOONER. The Wisconsin Man Buys a Woman's Fried Oysters in a Restaurant. While the national convention of the W. C. T. U. was in session in Washington one of the California delegates, an elderly lady, went into a restaurant on G street, looked the bill of fare over carefully, and ordered fried oysters.

"How many?" asked the waiter. "Oh," she said, remembering the diminutive oyster of California, "I guess a dozen and a half will do."

The waiter lifted his eyebrows, but took the order back to the kitchen. In due time he appeared with an enormous platter full of fried oysters, each half as large as a man's hand.

The California lady nearly fainted. "Take them away," she gasped. "I never, never ordered that great mass of food."

"That's a dozen and a half fried oysters, ma'am," the waiter replied. "There was some hysterical but vain argument on the part of the delegate from California."

She was told she would have to pay for the oysters, but she needn't eat them unless she chose to do so.

Just then Senator Spooner came in and sat down at the next table. The W. C. T. U. delegate, almost in tears, leaned over and asked impudently: "Oh, sir, do you like fried oysters?"

Senator Spooner stared. "I have eaten them, madam," he replied, with dignity. "Then please buy these; please, please do."

"But," said the Senator, laughing. "I never eat them now, for I find they promote indigestion."

The lady exhibited her white ribbon badge and implored again: "Oh, you haven't eaten anything yet; please buy these."

"Well, I'll buy them, but I assure you, madam, I do not contract to eat them."

And he paid the check, while the delegate from California almost ran out of the restaurant.

BUSINESS HAS BEEN QUIET.

Considerable Movement in Iron and Steel—Wheat Market.

Bradstreet says: Trade has been quiet in all lines, interest being concentrated largely in stock-taking and contemplation of 1900 results. Cereals and provisions have advanced this week, while stocks have declined, but the upward movement has been one of those familiar of late, a short selling with small fluctuations, limited bearish desire to bag profits. Failures show the usual large crop of small disasters, a feature of the turn of the year, but the results for 1900 as a whole are not all discouraging.

Cotton is rather quiet and unchanged on the week, while cotton goods are without much movement except to slightly weaker quotations for gray cloths at Boston.

Wool is dull and rather easy. Outside of the United States, however, the situation is a strong one. Manufacturers will only buy against orders and except in plain dress woollens nothing special is doing.

Lumber is rather quiet, but it is to be noted that white pine stocks are slightly smaller than last year. War is reported broken in rubber goods and quotations have certainly been cut. Sugar prices are also lower.

The feature of the week in iron and steel has been the large sale of steel rails reported from Chicago, 25,000 tons being reported sold in one lot. Bessemer iron producers have reduced wages 15 per cent. Export trade is still quiet.

Wheat (including flour) shipments for the week aggregate 3,914,301 bushels, against 3,668,165 last week. Business failures for the week number 265 in the United States, against 218 last week.

SUBSIST BY EATING DIRT.

Strange and Repulsive Habit of Native of the West Indies. You can't convince the coolie of the Grenadine Islands, West Indies, that there is any harm in eating dirt. His own diseases ought to convince him, but they don't. The rest of their diet is simple and meager. For the most part they are vegetarians. They eat rice, peas, curry and ghee, a specially prepared butter in great use. Most professing vegetarians do not exclude from their diet milk and eggs, but these coolies will not touch either except when they are in a hospital and forced to do so. To hard workers in the cane fields under a scorching tropical sun such a frugal diet cannot be supposed to be productive of health or robustness. And when to this sort of food is added the luxury of dirt-eating it is no wonder that these coolies are bloodless and stiff-jointed. These ills are characteristic of the race.

Coolie patients in the English hospitals of Carriacou, one of the Grenadine Islands, frequently are found to have gravel hidden in their clothing, and they cry and beg for it like the morphine eater for his dope. This stuff which they eat is a soft, slate-colored or grayish stone. Sometimes the pulverized dirt is made into cakes. If there isn't much of this to be had the coolies eat rags, paper and coke.

A coolie who is well along in the art of dirt-eating is swollen all over the body and the muscles of his legs are tense. His face is puffy and has a distressing look of weariness and premature age. He is short of breath and is unable to speak, so that he has to make signs to indicate his condition. His tongue is swollen and flabby and lies in the floor of his mouth, from which he cannot raise it, from pure weakness. It is marked strongly with impressions of the teeth. He has severe headaches, dimness of sight and pains in the abdomen. His skin is thin, flabby and lacking of firmness, and even in the case of children feels like the skin of an aged person. The complexion is pasty.

But to have the diseases incident to dirt-eating it is not necessary to eat dirt intentionally. Laborers in the fields, who rarely wash their hands, have been known to take enough dirt into their stomachs by handling their food with their unwashed hands to acquire all the ills which afflict those who eat dirt because they like it.

Hot Iron for Animals. "When all other methods of controlling wild beasts fail, the keeper has only to employ an iron rod, which has been made red hot at one end," said an old circus man to a Washington Star reporter. "Lions and tigers will cringe before the heated poker and no matter how restless and fretful they may have been the sight of the glowing iron immediately brings them to their best of animal senses. It has an almost hypnotic influence over the beasts. I have seldom heard of an animal being burned in this manner, however, so there is nothing cruel in the treatment. It would not do for the keeper to burn the charges under his care, for the scars would mar the animal for exhibition purposes. The hot iron is a terror just the same and under its persuasion the kings of the jungle are docile and ready to do what is wanted of them."

"In circus menageries the animals often become almost unmanageable. This is true of the younger specimens, who do not like the idea of being so closely housed, so much hauled about and often cut off from the light of the outside world. When it becomes necessary to give their cage a thorough and sanitary cleansing one attendant holds the beast in a corner by means of the red-hot iron, while another thoroughly cleanses the remaining portion of the cage—the work being accomplished by brooms and mops from the outside. In changing the wilder animals from the cages employed on the road to the larger and more commodious quarters of the winter station, what we call a strong box is used. The wagon is hauled alongside the large cage and the steel strong box, open at both ends, is constituted a passageway. The animals hesitate to make a journey through such a suspicious-looking object, however, and again the heated iron must be brought into play."

Clothes Personalized. There's a good story told on a young fellow here noted for his closeness. He went to spend the night with a friend. During the entire night he betrayed much restlessness, which kept the host wide awake, and finally the slumberer betrayed signs of violent emotion. "He's going to have a nightmare," said the friend, "but he always grumbles so when you wake him up that I hate to disturb him." He waited a while longer, sitting up in bed staring on the miserable sleeper, and finally, becoming alarmed, he roused him. He sprang up in bed, glared wildly around and said: "Where am I? I don't see the storm?"

"Why, here in my room," said the host, soothingly; "you remember you stayed all night with me? I beg your pardon for waking you up, but you carried on so I had to."

"Beg my pardon," gasped the guest. "I shall never be grateful enough to you. I dreamed I was out with Miss Bud and a terrible storm came up, and my shoes were new, and I was just ordering a coupe for two when you roused me. Old boy, you have saved me a dollar."

And the host says he was actually afraid to go to sleep again that night, for fear the coupe would come.—Louisville Times.

Reminded. The queen having departed, after having deposited with her royal consort a piece of her mind, the court jester remarked: "Sir, you remind me of King Henry VIII."

Scores Another Victory

A Terrible Disease Conquered by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—Doctor's Efforts Had Proved Unavailing and a Cure Was Desperate.

Another person released from the terrible grasp of an agonizing disease, another name added to the long list of those who have received new life by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

For years a sufferer from the cruel disease of St. Vitus' Dance, scarcely able to move, the power of speech almost gone, and all efforts to cure her proving in vain, Mrs. Minnie Fiedler, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, thought her case hopeless and she had sunk to the blackest depths of despair.

She turned as a last resort to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and the wonders worked by this remarkable medicine are told in her own words: "I was afflicted for years with St. Vitus' Dance. The first symptoms of the disease began in 1889, when the nerves began twitching in my left hand. I consulted physicians of this city, but none of them ever did me a particle of good. After I had suffered for two and one-half years, the disease continuing to grow worse, I heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"It was in 1891 that I was induced to try them, and I was surprised at my rapid improvement. I took only two boxes, and was entirely cured. It was hard to realize that I, who for over two years was scarcely able to walk, and who often found it almost impossible to talk, should be restored to perfect health and in full possession of all of my powers by two boxes of this wonderful remedy.

"I am happy to state that my health is still perfect and I have never had the slightest symptoms of a return of the disease, although it is eight years since I was cured.

"I know of others who have been likewise benefited and are as grateful as myself."

MRS. MINNIE FIEDLER. All the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves are contained, in a condensed form, in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental strain, over work or excesses of whatever nature. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.
