CATARRH CANNOT BE CURED

With local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

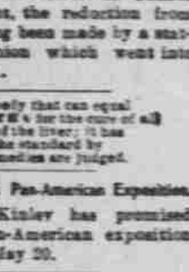
ECZEMA'S

ITCH IS TORTURE.

Eczema is caused by an acid humor in the blood coming in contact with the skin and producing great redness and inflammation; little pustular eruptions form and discharge a thin, stinky fluid, which dries and scales off; sometimes the skin is hard, dry and fissured. Eczema in any form is a tormenting, stubborn disease, and the itching and burning at times are almost unbearable; the acid burning humor seems to come out and set the skin on fire. Salves, washes nor other external applications do any real good, for as long as the poison remains in the blood it will keep the skin irritated.

BAD FORM OF TETTER.



"For three years I had Tetter on my hands, which caused them to swell to twice their natural size. Part of the time the disease was in the form of running sores, very painful, and causing me great discomfort. Your doctors said the Tetter had progressed too far to be cured, and they could do nothing for me. I took only three bottles of S. S. S. and was completely cured. This was fifteen years ago, and I have never since seen any sign of my old trouble."—Mrs. L. B. Jarnagin, 1214 McGee St., Kansas City, Mo.

S. S. S. neutralizes this acid poison, cools the blood and restores it to a healthy, natural state, and the rough, unhealthy skin becomes soft, smooth and clear.

SSS cures Tetter, Eczema, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum and all skin diseases due to a poisoned condition of the blood. Send for our book and write us about your case. Our physicians have made these diseases a life study, and can help you by their advice; we make no charge for this service. All correspondence is conducted in strictest confidence.

FIERCE FEUD ENDED.

LAST PARTICIPANT IN KANSAS VENDETTA DIES.

Four Persons Met Violent Deaths Before Hatred Was Fully Satisfied—How the Trouble Began and Its Very Tragical Ending.

By the death of Charles Vaughn, fifteen miles south of Cedarvale, Kan., in the Osage reservation, the last survivor of a feud which was fought along the border with all the fierceness of a Corsican vendetta for months was wiped out. The participants were, on the one hand, Jim and Charles Vaughn, cowboys, who were cousins, and Tom Wilber and Denis Amos, who ran a dive in Caney, Kan., in 1879 and 1880, and the feud began in this place in August, 1880, when Amos in a game of poker beat Jim Vaughn out of $70.

Vaughn, says the Kansas City Times, was by accident unarmed at the time, but left swearing that he would return in three days and kill all the Amoses. Accordingly, Vaughn returned to the ranch on which he was working in the territory, procured a brace of six-shooters, and on the appointed day went back to Caney. The Amoses, barricaded in their joint and armed with three double-barreled shotguns, were waiting for him. Vaughn hitched his horse, and, pulling his six-shooters, began firing and walking toward the Amos joint. The Amoses replied with a broadside from their shotguns, and when the smoke had cleared away Vaughn lay in the street with his body full of buckshot and Tom Amos lay on the floor with his jaw shattered by a bullet. Blood poison set in and four weeks later Amos was buried. On the other hand, Vaughn, who was thought to have been mortally wounded, recovered, and in two months was able to go to work again.

Vaughn was a crack shot and the Amoses lived in constant terror of him, and after they found that he had gotten well they swore out a warrant for his arrest—which was an unusual proceeding in those days. A deputy sheriff, who was a warm friend of the joint keepers, arrested Vaughn and put the Amoses and one of their friends on the force to guard him the night after the arrest. During the night, while the deputy slept, the Amoses shot and killed Vaughn. They claimed that he had tried to escape. However, three of the five shots which had pierced the dead man's body were fired after he had fallen—so the direction of the bullets indicated.

The Amoses at that time did not know of the existence of Charles Vaughn—who was employed on a ranch in Texas—and, after they had killed Jim, settled down to quiet life. Wilber remained in Caney and Dennis Amos, with his young wife and child, located on a farm just east of Cedarvale. A friend of Jim Vaughn in the meantime notified Charles Vaughn of the manner in which his cousin had been killed, and Charles thereupon boarded the next train and went to Caney. He remained quiet a day and by inquiry learned of the whereabouts of the Amoses. On the second day after his arrival he met Wilber Amos in a drug store, and walking up to him informed him that he was there for the purpose of killing him. Amos reached for his gun, but Vaughn was too quick for him and sent a 45-caliber bullet through his brain. The dead man had hardly struck the floor before Vaughn was on his horse riding at breakneck speed toward the town.

Denis Amos was eating dinner when Vaughn reached his house, and without introducing himself the Texan opened fire and sent one bullet through Dennis' breast and another through his head. The infuriated cowboy then picked up the child and dashed its brains out against the floor. He also fired a shot at the woman, but she escaped into the bedroom, and Vaughn, thinking his pursuers were close upon him, mounted his horse and rode away. Although a posse pursued him for two days he was not overtaken, and his whereabouts had never been known from that day to the day of his death. Recently, when, after a six weeks' struggle with the fever, he found that he had to die, he told his attendants that he was Charles Vaughn and narrated the story, which the older residents of this town know to be true.

Carnegie's Romance.

Andrew Carnegie, in his address before John D. Rockefeller's Bible class in the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, insisted that if a young man must fall in love with a woman he must be careful to love one well on in years. His exact words were:

"If you must fall in love, do so with a woman 20 or 30 years your senior. The greatest friend a young man can have is a woman, but the woman must be much older than he."

This precept is greatly at variance with the practice of the preceptor. Mr. Carnegie in his selection of a wife didn't follow the advice given his hearers. He married late in life, and the woman of his choice was 20 years younger than he. It was not until 1887 that he took to wife Miss Louise Whitfield, the daughter of John Whitfield, No. 35 West Forty-eight street. Ten years later a little baby girl blessed their union. Mr. Carnegie at the time his first child was born was 62 years old.

Behind the steel magnate's marriage there lurks a romance. It is said that he would have married earlier in life, and some years before his marriage was very much in love with a Miss Tula Addison, who afterward became Mme. De Klumenez. Mr. Carnegie venerated his mother, however, and it is said promised her not to marry during her lifetime. He kept his word, and those who like to gossip say that his promise prevented his marriage to the first woman of his choice.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Artist and Painter.

Among the many stories of Sir Frederick Leighton, the great artist, the following account of one of his holiday rambles is given. He noticed a sign board being rudely painted by a local artist. The man, after a few moments, remarked that it was a fine day. Leighton agreed, adding that a figure on the sign board was out of proportion.

"Where be it out?" asked the aggrieved workman. "I'm thinking you've something wrong in your sight."

"If you'll get off that ladder I'll put it right for you," replied the R. A., good-naturedly.

"Aye, but can ye paint?" queried the other, doubtfully. "Ye know I don't want my work sp'iled."

"It's all right; I've done considerable painting in my time," answered Leighton, as the other clambered down the ladder. Then, taking the pallet, he climbed up and commenced to paint, and did not stop until he had completed the sign board.

"Well, that's not so bad," was the rural workman's comment. "Art is not so paying now. Still, if ye like to do more work for me, I'll give ye more than I do as a rule."

"Thanks," replied Leighton. "My name is Leighton."

"Very pleased to know you, Mr. Leighton," replied the man, ignorant of what the name meant. "My name is Tam."

GOOD Short Stories

While James Russell Lowell was editor of the Atlantic Monthly, Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford enjoyed a warm personal friendship with him, and he frequently accepted her stories. Mrs. Spofford feared that he might be taking them because of his interest in her, and not for the merit of her work. She resolved to put the matter to a test. Her handwriting was peculiar. One of the most characteristic letters was her d, to the end of which she gave a queer little crook toward the left. In order to disguise her work she had her sister copy one of her stories before she sent it to the editor. Mr. Lowell accepted it in a letter in which he wrote: "The d's may not be yours, but there is no mistaking the 'ideas.'"

The Westminster Gazette gives some interesting information concerning the use of tobacco by the clergy in different religious bodies. "John Wesley," it says, "forbade his preachers 'to smoke or chew tobacco, or take snuff.' This rule still obtains in the Wesleyan ministry. Thackeray hoped the day would come when he would see a bishop lolling out the Athenæum with a cigar in his mouth, or at least a pipe stuck in his shovel-hat. He did not live to see this, but the Bishop of Manchester has publicly proclaimed the virtues of tobacco as a bond of sympathy between man and man. 'At your idol again, Mr. Hall,' exclaimed a lady once on discovering Robert Hall, the celebrated divine, with a pipe in his mouth. 'Yes,' said the preacher, 'burning it, ma'am.'"

The late Prof. Max Muller was originally just Muller, but he added one of his Christian names, Max, to his surname, and became Max Muller. His change of surname and of nationality did not add to his popularity in Germany, where his former compatriots used to say that "but for his settling in England he might have become a scholar." Considerable amusement was caused at Oxford a few years ago by the Kaiser telegraphing the professor, upon the occasion of some aquatic victory: "My best wishes to you and your gallant crew." "Great Scott!" or its Sanscrit equivalent, the professor is said to have exclaimed, "just as if I were a 'coach' running along the embankment with a trumpet." The point of the joke is that Max Muller disliked every form of exercise, and used to say that "There is only one act of folly more egregious than looking at a football game, and that is taking part in one."

Early in his career at the bar Daniel O'Connell was counsel at the Kerry assizes in an action against a relative named Mr. Siggerson, and, having occasion to refer to that person in somewhat strong terms in his speech to the jury, Siggerson jumped up in court and called him "a purse-proud blockhead." O'Connell said: "In the first place, I have got no purse to be proud of, and, secondly, if I be a blockhead, it is the better for you, as I am counsel against you. However, just to save you the trouble of saying so again, I'll administer a slight rebuke," whereupon he struck Siggerson soundly on the back with a cane, which the tipstaff accommodatingly lent him for the purpose. That evening Siggerson sent him a challenge, but next morning he wrote stating that he had discovered that O'Connell's life was inserted in a very valuable lease of a portion of his lands. "Under these circumstances," he continued, "I cannot afford to shoot you, unless, as a precautionary measure, you first insure your life for my benefit. If you do, then heigh for powder and ball. I'm your man."

Many Want to Do Murder.

It is a matter of legal record that a famous English physician, Sir Richard Owen, when called upon for expert testimony in a celebrated poisoning case where a subtle toxic was suspected to have been used, testified that there are several toxics which cause death and leave no trace, and, upon being asked to name them, and refusing to do so, stated as his reason for refusing that such knowledge was too dangerous to be made public. The court for that reason sustained him in his refusal to name the poisons. This single circumstance in the report of the trial attracted such wide attention that Sir Richard Owen received 700 letters from all parts of the world and all conditions of people asking for the names of the poisons—letters in which the writers resorted to all sorts of arts and wiles to elicit the coveted information.

Burglars' Booty.

Burglars are said to seldom receive more than 20 per cent of the value of their booty from the buyers to whom they dispose of it, if it happens to be in any other form than coin. A fifty-dollar Bank of England note will bring about $10 from a buyer, while $500 worth of plate would be worth only $75 or $100 to the thief, who must risk years of liberty in obtaining it, and so on with all other valuables.

MRS. PARCE'S STORY.

HER TROUBLE MADE HER AFRAID TO RETIRE AT NIGHT.

Nervousness, the Disease That Wrecks the Happiness of so Many Women, Conquered at Last.

No incident of the many that are daily brought to public attention is of greater human interest than that which centers about Ellen Parce, the wife of Mr. David F. Parce, of No. 4 Spruce St., Binghamton, N. Y. The story is told by Mrs. Parce as follows:

"It was two years ago this summer that I was in a miserable condition as the result of hard work. I was completely run down, pale and losing flesh, and so nervous that I could not sleep or even get rest. It was dreadful to go to bed at night all worn out and lie awake for hours with nervousness. If I did fall asleep it was to wake up in the morning as tired as when I went to bed.

"My head troubled me a great deal, too, both with pain and dizziness. If I stooped over at any time I would be so dizzy I could hardly see or keep from falling down. I was troubled somewhat with indigestion at this time, but the nervousness was the greater trouble. If I became a little excited my hands would shake so I could hardly hold anything in them. I felt that something must be done so I employed our best physicians. They did all they could for me and although I obtained some benefit from their treatment, not one of them did me any permanent good.

"I had, of course, read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People but had never taken any of them till a friend recommended them to me so strongly that I got some and before the first box was used up I began to feel that they were doing me good. I kept on taking them according to directions and got from them the only real, permanent benefit I have had from any remedy. It did seem so good to get a night's sleep and to be refreshed by it. I am a firm believer in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and recommend them to all my friends. I generally keep a box in the house to take in case I feel a little run down."

PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

First Presbyterian Church of Greensboro, Ga., and Its Pastor and Elder.

The day was when men of prominence hesitated to give their testimonials to proprietary medicines for publication. This remains true today of most proprietary medicines, but Peruna has become so justly famous, its merits are known to so many people of high and low stations, that no one hesitates to use his name in print recommending Peruna.

The highest men in our nation have given Peruna a strong endorsement. Men representing all classes and stations are equally represented.

A dignified representative of the Presbyterian church in the person of Rev. E. G. Smith does not hesitate to state publicly that he has used Peruna in his family and found it cured when other remedies failed. In this statement the Rev. Smith is supported by an elder in his church.

Rev. E. G. Smith, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Greensboro, Ga., writes:

"Having used Peruna in my family for some time it gives me pleasure to testify to its true worth. My little boy seven years of age has been suffering for some time with catarrh of the lower bowels. Other remedies had failed, but after taking two bottles of Peruna the trouble almost entirely disappeared. For this special malady I consider it well nigh a specific. As a tonic for weak and worn out people it has few or no equals."—Rev. E. G. Smith.

Mr. M. J. Rossman, a prominent merchant of Greensboro, Ga., and an elder in the Presbyterian church of that place, has used Peruna, and in a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, writes as follows:

"For a long time I was troubled with catarrh of the kidneys and tried many remedies, all of which gave me no relief. Peruna was recommended to me by several friends, and after using a few bottles I am pleased to say that the long looked for relief was found and I am now enjoying better health than I have for years, and can heartily recommend Peruna to all similarly afflicted. It is certainly a grand medicine."—M. J. Rossman.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, president Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.
