THE REAL DIFFERENCE.

Nothing distinguishes the personalities and abilities of President McKinley and his late opponent for the high office he holds, W. J. Bryan, more than their respective utterances before the public. There is the greatest possible difference in the tone, quality and statesmanship displayed in the oratory of these two eminent personages.

McKinley has made his tour after the honors have been bestowed upon him, after the prosperity promised under his administration has been realized and during its enjoyment. He spoke to vast crowds who had not the least doubt of his genuineness, honored for what he is, and does, and says. His words were honest, true, hopeful, and hold before the people the glorious past, present and future of this great nation. No speech he uttered groaned with a weight of condemnation. He talked to the reason and good sense of common people, rather than appealing to their prejudices.

Bryan made his tours of the country before he was anyone or had done anything. He appeared in American politics like a swift moving comet coming from space, not having shed any light on the political globe for its benefit, yet claiming the reward of a steadfast star. Comets attract attention, but ships, not even of state, can use them for guiding stars.

In any speech he ever made never did he appeal to the sober sense of the people, for it wasn't his style. His words were of discontent, narrow contraction, get rich by the manipulation of the currency rather than the operation of industries, and condemnation of republican policies, which have alone made the United States what it is.

Since McKinley started West he has proven himself a more popular orator than Bryan was able to prove himself in all his campaigning. McKinley spoke sentiments which have a response in his hearers, and such was Demosthenes' definition of true oratory.

It is not an unapt comparison to place McKinley and Bryan respectively as the Demosthenes and Aeschines of the present day. Both can talk, but Demosthenes as McKinley, was alone able to point to the accomplishment of good to to the country through the execution of the policies he advised. McKinley has received the golden crown at the hands of the nation, while Bryan did not receive many more than a sufficient proportion of votes to maintain him a residence in the land, according to the laws of the Ancient Greeks.

THE constitution follows the flag. This decision was arrived at Monday by the United States Supreme Court, when the case of Delima & Co., sugar importers, against Bidwell, collector of customs, came up for hearing on appeal from the United States District Court for the district of Southern New York. Bidwell forced collection of $13,000 as duty on certain sugars imported from Porto Rico. Delima brought suit to recover and the court found for the plaintiff, thus deciding that the constitution does follow the flag and that territory acquired by conquest or treaty is a part of the domestic economy of the United States after such treaty shall be ratified, and being domestic connot, of necessity, be foreign, and as we can collect duties from foreign countries only, it logically follows that imposition of duties upon Porto Rican products is contrary to law, since Porto Rico became domestic territory upon the ratification of the treaty of Paris. In summing up Justice Brown, who handed down the majority opinion, said: "In short, territory, when once acquired by treaty, belongs to the United States, and is subject to the disposition of congress." The decision in the Delima case will establish a precedent for future proceedure and effectually settle the fact that the constitution follows the flag.

THE surprisingly good condition of the defunct Vancouver bank, as shown by the examiner's report, makes the act of the president and cashier in killing themselves all the more remarkable, and their rash and cowardly act can be accounted for only by the fact that they had made false reports to the controller in a false credit entry of $10,000, which act, when discovered, insured for each of them a long term in the penitentiary and consequent ruin and disgrace for themselves and families. This was a thought which they could not reconcile themselves to after years of ease and luxury, and rather than submit to it they preferred to desert their families, friends and duty and have done with the trouble quickly. Some people have been heard to remark that they believed these men were honest but were the victims of circumstances which they had no power to control. This kind of reasoning is neither true nor logical. There is no law either human or divine, that forces men to be dishonest, nor will an honest man's conscience allow him to convict and execute himself.

BRESCI, the New York anarchist who assassinated King Humbert and was sent to prison for life, improvised a rope out of his blanket and hanged himself in his cell at Santo Stephano, Italy, Thursday. The group of New York anarchists, of which Bresci was a member, have notified one of the Italian cabinet officers that they hold the government responsible for Bresci's death and that a renewal of anarchist hostilities will soon begin. As these anarchists are a desperate lot and firmly bent on terrible vengeance, it is highly probable that one or more thrones will change hands in the near future. These people have become a very active factor in European politics and while the present occupants of thrones do not like their methods, there are a large number of aspirants to the said thrones who will be secretly glad to hear that war has again been declared between the monarchs and murderers. It is an open question which class of people most needs killing on general principles—the kings or anarchists, but since the American government will not harbor kings it would be just as well to run the anarchists out of the United States and let the contending factions settle their differences in the countries where they are supposed to exist. The people of this country have the same interest in kings that they have in anarchists and when we see them fighting we are impelled to take the same position that was taken by the old lady, who with arms akimbo, stood complacently by and watched her "old man" fight a bear, and when her husband appealed to her for assistance, she quietly replied, "Go in lemons, and get squeezed."

MEMORIAL Day is a season for perspective as well as retrospective contemplation. It impels us to look into the future for the fulfillment of the grand aspirations of the noble patriots who are now fighting for our country's honor and glory, and at the same time it bids us reflect upon the sacrifices which were made by the vast army of honored dead in order that our country might live, that its integrity might be preserved, its glory be untarnished, that human slavery might be banished from out its borders and that all within its domain should enjoy the priceless blessings of liberty, peace, prosperity and the pursuit of happiness insured us by that immortal instrument, the Declaration of Independence. The wisdom, acts and lives of those men through whose patriotism, fidelity and sacrifices our country has grown and prospered, are worthy of all emulation. It is only out of the lives of such men as these that as great a country as ours can be builded, and it is only by emulating their ambitions, sacrifices and loyalty that the integrity and greatness of our country and institutions can be perpetuated, for a government can never be better than the people of which it is composed. Too often they are not as good. The ranks of this grand army of heroes are being rapidly decimated. One by one they are answering the last roll-call and taking their places in the ranks of the legions which have preceded them to the land which is not rent by the strife of war, where the sullen roar of angry cannon is never heard or the gleam of sabre and bayonet is never seen. We therefore, approach their last bivouac with feelings of mingled respect and sorrow and tenderly pay them the only tribute of honor an inscrutible providence has placed within our power—a few peaceful emblems of a nation's inward sense of gratitude to its benefactors and heroes.

THE Supreme Court decision in the insular cases confirms the logical view that territory acquired by treaty or otherwise, becomes an integral part of the Union and that the same broad principles of government must apply to it that is invoked in the management of original territory; but while the principles of political econ my are not to be materially changed the temper, fitness and capacity for government, of new peoples are to be considered, and the simplest, most suitable and effective laws are to be applied to them. There is nothing in the constitution which compels us to confer indiscriminate privileges upon these semi-civilized or barbarous additions to our population. Such an act would manifestly be unjudicial even if it were compulsory. When our constitution was conceived it was framed upon the broad principle that we represent the highest type of intelligence and civilization and are capable of the highest form of government. This being true it was understood that future generations would be able to intelligently adjust themselves to any combination of circumstances which might arise, and this is exactly what the government is endeavoring to do in the management of our new insular possessions. The people of those islands will be given a wise, kind and equitable administration and when they are ready for and capable of receiving a higher form of goverment it will be ready for their acceptance.

THIS is awful. The Presbyterian General Assembly, which has been in session back East somewhere for about a month, has decided not to change the creed nor map out a new route to heaven, so it seems we will be obliged to peg along in the same old rut in order to reach Paradise. The present straight and narrow path, with all its stumps, chuckholes and pitfalls is exasperatingly ungenerous for the majority of ordinary sinners, and it was hoped that a road containing more roses, easier grades and fewer deceptive mudholes, would be surveyed and located by the august body lately in session. They have refused to do so, alas! probably out of respect for the old adage that "the way of the transgressor is hard," and also for fear that the shades of Martin Luther and other founders of the faith would rise up and accuse them on the day of judgment. The creed and the bible have both been changed and revised until it is doubtful if Paul or Moses either one would be able to distinguish them from baseball scores or a copy of Geo. W. Davis' balance sheet. Another revision of the creed is not looked for for at least another year.

LOCOMOTIVE drivers and their firemen have a great responsibility resting upon them in many respects, and the slightest neglect of duty or least departure from the code of any established rules and laws is most liable to involve them in difficulties of a very serious nature. What narrowly escaped being a disastrous circumstance was caused at a railroad crossing near Warren Tuesday afternoon, through neglect of a locomotive driver to sound the warning of the approach of his train. Such conduct is not merely the neglect of duty, but it is criminal neglect, for which the offender should be severely dealt with. In thickly settled territory the strictest observance of all rules should be exacted of those in charge of speedy trains, that the public might at all times be warned of any approaching danger. Every instance of criminal neglect of this character should be reported to the proper authorities, that more regard for the public's safety might be enforced.

THE report of Bank Examiner Maxwell, who caused the Vancouver bank to be closed, has been received by the controller of the currency, and the latter official has made a statement to the effect that the bank will be able to pay more than 50 cents on the dollar. This statement is made on the findings in the report which show that while the bank's liabilities are over $250,000, it holds securities which are negotiable for more than $130,000, in addition to which there are other securities which it is believed will ultimately prove to be more or less valuable assets. As no move has been made towards appointing a receiver, it is evident that the bank is to continue under the direct management of the controller of the currency, which will probably be just as satisfactory to the creditors.

LAST month the United States sold abroad $49,000,000 more than it purchased in foreign countries, which is a neat little balance in our favor, averaging $1,577,000 for every day in March.

RATE WAR IS SOON TO END

FORMER FARES BY RAIL AND BOAT ARE RESTORED.

Higher Fare and Better Service will Now be the Order.

The Astoria rate war has been called off. Last Monday the representatives of the various lines, who had previously held several conferences, reached an agreement as to freight and passenger rates, to go into effect tomorrow, June 1. It is asserted on all sides that the exceedingly cheap rates which have prevailed between Portland and Astoria and seaside points will never be known again and that all the lines will hereafter charge a living and reasonable rate. By rail the fare to Astoria from Portland will be $2 for a single trip, or $3 for the round trip. On all steamers it will be $1.75 for a single trip and $2.50 for a round trip.

To Seaside, Gearhart Park, Long Beach and Nahcotta the fare will be $4 for the round trip, either by rail or steamer until September 15th, when it will probably be increased. An arrangement has been entered into whereby the tickets to these points will be interchangeable, and can be used either on cars or steamer. Fares between Portland and Astoria and intermediate points will also be adjusted according to the figures herewith given.

The parties to the agreement are the Astoria & Columbia River Railway Company, the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company, the Columbia & Puget Sound Navigation Company and the Vancouver Transportation Company, and these companies practically control all the routes of travel between Portland, Astoria and the beaches. Until late last summer the Ilwaco Railway & Navigation Company was a party to the fight, but this property, after the close of the seaside season, was bought by the O. R. & N.

Nothing Like Trying.

Everyone who has tested the truthfulness of the advertisements of John Dellar's store, on the corner of First and Yamhill streets, has admitted that ours is a money-saving proposition to every purchaser. Whether in men's or boys' clothing, or in men's, ladies' or children's shoes, of which he carries a complete stock. It is surprising to see men's suits, all wool cheviots, marked $7.50 and $10. Boys' suits, from $1.25 to $4.50, as good as other stores charge $1 more for. Men's and ladies' shoes, 20 per cent less than any other stores' prices. Special line of boys' satin calf shoes. We are out of the small sizes, but we still have sizes from 3½ to 5½ for 95 cents.

Railroad Fight in Sight.

ASTORIA, May 29.—A big fight will be on in Clatsop and Tillamook counties between the Southern Pacific and Northern Pacific railroads for control of the timber industry. It developed today that the Northern Pacific has had a surveying crew of thirty men at work, under the direction of C. H. Peck, chief engineer of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy system, surveying a route from Scappoose to New Astoria. Two lines are contemplated, one running to the mouth of the Nehalem, and the other to New Astoria, with the terminal at the latter point. It is expected that the crew will reach this city in four weeks, and active construction work will begin within six weeks. A millionaire Wisconsin lumberman, who was in the city recently, will build a large sawmill at New Astoria.

A Large Mill at Tongue Point.

ASTORIA, Or., May 29.—A. B. Hammond today made a formal cash offer of $16,000 to the Tongue Point Company for what is known as the Tongue Point mill site, consisting of about 200 acres of land and water frontage. In his proposition he agreed, if the offer was accepted, to begin the construction on the property within sixty days of a sawmill to cost not less than $200,000, and with a capacity of not less than 150,000 feet of lumber per day. The members of the company decided to accept Mr. Hammond's offer for the property, providing the citizens will give them a subsidy in city property to the value of $10,000. A special meeting of the Astoria Progressive Commercial Association was held this evening, and a committee of nine appointed to raise the subsidy. About $2000 worth of the property has already been subscribed, and the committee expects to secure the remainder tomorrow.

Hessian Fly in Wheat.

HILLSBORO, Or., May 29.—The Hessian fly pest has made its appearance in the wheat fields of Washington county. V. Billion, of East Portland, made a tour Sunday through the farming districts around Hillsboro, Glencoe and Mountaindale and found that nearly all the fields are affected by the insect. Many farmers are much discouraged. The fields are turning yellow. The stalks are stung by a fly and eggs are formed inside, which feed on the sap and destroy the stalk.

Many farmers are plowing up their fields and putting in potatoes and oats. Mr. Billion took home a bunch of stalks. Near the roots of nearly every stalk is a deposit of the eggs, and in the little bunch there must be 100,000 eggs. Richard Connell, a well-known farmer, told Mr. Billion that the pest has infested the wheat fields of that county for the past fifteen years, but never so extensively as now. Only the wheat is attacked. Mr. Billion did not learn whether the depredations had extended into Yamhill county, or not, as his trip was confined to Washington county. The farmers are very anxious to learn what to do to exterminate the pest.

A cough is not a disease but a symptom. Consumption and bronchitis, which are the most dangerous and fatal diseases, have for their first indication a persistent cough, and if properly treated as soon as this cough appears are easily cured. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has proven wonderfully successful, and gained its wide reputation and extensive sale by its success in curing the diseases which cause coughing. If it is not beneficial it will not cost you a cent. For sale at the St. Helens Pharmacy.

Question Answered.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers' and grandmothers' never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Get Green's Prize Almanac.

"It is with a good deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Sawtelle, of Hartford, Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale on my show case, said to me: 'I really believe that medicine saved my life the past summer while at the shore,' and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he left my store smilingly informing me that he felt as well as ever. Sold at the St. Helens Pharmacy.

How About Your Title?

ARE YOU SURE it is all right? Remember that it is the RECORD that governs. It is our business to search the records and show what they contain in relation to land titles. If you contemplate buying land or loaning money on real estate securily, take no man's word, but insist upon knowing what the record shows regarding the title. An Abstract is as essential as a deed. Insist on having it. We have the only set of abstract books in the county. All work promptly executed and satisfaction guaranteed. If you have property to insure give us a call. We are agents for the best fire insurance companies in the world. If you have property for sale list it with us and we will find a buyer.
