NOVEMBER 1, 1901.

AND now, as if the newspaper men of the country were not already overburdened with troubles, some meddling statistician comes forward with the startling announcement that owing to the fact that the output of the Kentucky distilleries for the year has been cut down to only 25,500,000 gallons, the country is threatened with a whiskey famine!

Six carloads of cavalry horses and one car of heavy draft animals for the Seattle logging camps have been sold in Pendleton during the last few weeks. They were picked up here and there and good prices were paid. It costs little more in Eastern Oregon to raise a good horse than a good steer and the Blue mountains will furnish range for horses when cattle have all been surrounded by fences. The man in that part of the state who has a band of good brood mares will be wise if he keeps them and gives their increase the best of care.

The whole miserable intrigue against Schley stands revealed. Cautious in the protection of his fleet when caution was essential, he proved himself a furious fighter in the supreme hour of action. The country hailed him as the hero of Santiago, and his increasing popularity excited envy in the hearts of a number who thought that their efforts were being eclipsed. The next step was to throw a false light on Schley's caution, misrepresent the Brooklyn's famous "loop," at Santiago as an act of cowardice, and magnify and distort various movements of his before the battle.

APPARENTLY the reduction of the revenues in the present fiscal year will not be more than $25,000,000, although congress supposed, in its cut of the war taxes made last winter, that the reduction would be fully $40,000,000. There will be considerable surplus this year. This gives a chance for another cut in taxes, and congress will give its attention to this matter in the coming session. Of course the good times are largely responsible for the swelling revenues, and for the embarrassment which they cause. In this aspect of the case republican prosperity has its disadvantages. Still, as General Frederick D. Grant once remarked, surpluses are easier to manage than deficits.—Globe-Democrat.

In his executive capacity President Roosevelt is setting a good example to White House employes by going to work every morning for six days in the week at 8 o'clock. Not only is it a good example to White House employes, but to all employes, and more particularly to that class of individuals whose greatest effort is to see how little work they can do and hold the positions. Any man who is afraid of getting to work a few moments ahead of hours, and who has his coat on ready to bolt for the door as soon as the clock begins striking the hour, will never rise very high in the estimation of his employer—not high enough for positions of trust at high salary.

A RECENT bulletin of the federal census shows that there are over $13,000,000 of capital invested in the manufacturing concerns of Portland, and in all the cities and towns of the state combined over $38,000,000. The interesting point in this information is that the manufacturing growth of our state has only covered a period of a few years, and is due to the agitation of the local newspapers which created a sentiment that led to the creation of a home manufacturing club in Portland with a membership throughout the state. Now the value of all the manufactured products is $46,000,000, indicating that millions are now paid annually to the producers of raw material, and millions more to the wage earners employed in the factories.

LEON CROGON, the cowardly assassin of President McKinley, took his place in the electrical chair, at the place of his confinement, at Auburn, New York, Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock and twelve minutes, and paid the penalty of his awful crime by sacrificing his own life. His punishment was but the natural consequence of his crime, and that which could not be expected by him. The ending of this terrible episode is such as ever can be expected by the anarchist of that type who endeavors to inaugurate a political revolution through the assassination of the president of the United States. His was the punishment which he richly deserved, and which has met with the approbation of every American citizen. Hardly two months have elapsed since President McKinley was stricken down in the Warren Happlings.

Mr. George Vanouf departed last Saturday morning for Newburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lamberson, of Seaside, visited with Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Bennett one day last week.

The protracted meetings which have been going on at this place for nearly two weeks, have been concluded. They were all well attended.

Miss Myrtle Ayres, of Carico valley, was the guest of Mrs. Mollie Sunday for a few days last week.

Orville Bacon, who has been quite ill for some time, is able to be about again.

It is rumored that the Sunset creamery will not operate after this month. Some of the farmers are talking of purchasing separators.

Miss Ollie Johnson, who has been visiting Mrs. Isbister for the past three weeks, returned to her home on Seaside's island last week.

Dr. Cliff was called Tuesday to see Mrs. Marion Slavens and little daughter, who are both quite ill.

Services continuing one week or more to be held every evening at the schoolhouse near Keasey. Rev. Jones, the young preacher, conducting.

C. C. Keasey, wife and baby, after a brief visit, have taken their departure from Houlton and their future abode will be on the Detroit ranch, at Pittsburg, Cal. Preferring to be his own boss, notwithstanding his monthly compensation will be much less.

The following is a letter dated Los Angeles, Cal.: "Jacob Alexander came to this hospital March 31st and died April 5th. Was buried by us in the county cemetery April 6th." Sad to think of such a death far from home or any friends, "newspaper" unobeyed, and "ungung." He had no relatives in this country. He has a sister somewhere in Germany.

Geo. Ramsey Still Alive.
George W. Ramsey and John G. Temple, who left Nome in a small boat for Teller, July 10th, and who were reported lost, have been heard from, to the great relief of their friends here. Temple is in Seattle and Ramsey is in Nome. They had started to take supplies to their partners in a mine in the Konyok country, but did not get there and their partners came out to look for them. The fact that the pieces of a small boat were found on the coast, and that the body of a man washed ashore, led to the supposition that they had been drowned. Just why they failed to reach their mine, or where they were during the time they were missing, has not been learned. Ramsey has received letters from both of them.—Wednesday's Oregonian.

Death of Mrs. Shattuck.
Mrs. F. S. Shattuck, of Seaside, died at her home there last Sunday, after an illness of some length. Deceased was the oldest resident of this county, coming here with her husband, David Cloninger, from the Southern states. They settled near Seaside, where their home had been continuously. Mrs. Shattuck was a woman of rare business attainments, and had accumulated a great deal of property, which she generously allotted to her children, Thomas A. Cloninger, Mrs. Wickereham and Mrs. W. E. Stevens, of Seaside, D. A. Cloninger, now of Deer Island, and J. S. Cloninger, of Kalama. The remains were laid to rest in Fairview cemetery, at Seaside, Tuesday. Deceased was nearly seventy-two years of age.

Repairing the Mill.
Material has arrived on the ground with which to thoroughly repair and resharpen the mill here with her own hands. The owners do not give out any information further than that the structure will receive a thorough overhauling and repairing. It is presumed that the mill will, sometime in the not distant future, be operated, but there is no accumulated a great deal of property, which she generously allotted to her children, Thomas A. Cloninger, Mrs. Wickereham and Mrs. W. E. Stevens, of Seaside, D. A. Cloninger, now of Deer Island, and J. S. Cloninger, of Kalama. The remains were laid to rest in Fairview cemetery, at Seaside, Tuesday. Deceased was nearly seventy-two years of age.

Household Hints.
Matted will lie much more smoothly if setting like carpet than when tacked down, as is frequently done.
An old piece of soft silk is the best dust cloth for highly polished woodwork. A camel's-hair brush is the best for bric-a-brac.
A delicate perfume for the bureau drawer is made by mixing one ounce each of cloves, nutmeg and tanga beans with three ounces of orris root, all finely ground. Put in bags of thin China silk and lay among the clothing.
A housekeeper says the letters and labels on flour sacks, etc., can be removed by soaking the sacks in sour buttermilk before washing them. Washing sets the printing. Thus the great objection to their use as towels, etc., is removed.
A broad shelf on the cellarway, which is usually on the back stairs, is a convenience the housekeeper appreciates, who can place many articles there and save herself a trip downstairs. It is running up and down stairs that adds fatigue to the day's work.

What Constitutes a Home.
Some witty and domestically unhappy judge defined home to be the place where a man goes when he has nowhere else to go. A good many men seem to accept this definition. They make of home a mere dormitory and restaurant, and except at meal time or bed time are never to be found under the domestic roof. Yet home should be the pleasantest place on earth, and a man ought to enjoy his hearth as the nearest place to a paradisaic Eden.
No matter how humble a man's position in life, no matter how his business or his necessities compel him to knuckle down to others and sacrifice his pride, no matter what selfishness and injustice he encounters in the world, at home—if it be a true home—his spirit enlarges and acquires a sense of freedom and importance. There, if nowhere else, he has dignity and position.

GET INTO DEBT.
On the face of things it seems rather poor advice to give a young man, and without qualification, it cannot stand; suffice to show that systematically getting into debt may make you independent of others and the world.
The president of one of the strongest banks of the central states attributes his success to the "systematic assumption of monetary obligations." He commenced his business career at a salary of a few dollars a week, and by hard work and actual privation he saved two or three hundred dollars, and then put into practice the plan he had in mind. He bought a piece of land and borrowed enough money to pay for it. He saved small sums and credited them at intervals on his loan, and in his own words, he had it paid for before he realized it. He did this again and again on an increasing scale, as his income increased, not always in real estate, but in property in its broad sense, and today he is a millionaire. It was getting into the right kind of debt that made him rich.
The secret of the banker's plan, if there is a secret, is that all the time he was paying for his property he was parting with his own money, spending it practically, and thus he had nothing on hand to be tempted away by the innumerable "opportunities" and "chances in a million" that are constantly appearing. The fact that the ground was his, but for an incumbrance, furnished an incentive to get it clear as soon as possible.

Women and Jewels.
Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, it often ruins in the own money, spending it practically, and thus he had nothing on hand to be tempted away by the innumerable "opportunities" and "chances in a million" that are constantly appearing. The fact that the ground was his, but for an incumbrance, furnished an incentive to get it clear as soon as possible.
