LEVELING TENDENCIES.

English Aristocrats Who Are Making Money in Trade, Americans cannot lay claim to being the only people who now take the sensible view that no man is degraded by engaging in a lawful business. England is coming round to the same way of thinking. The old order of things is changed. It is the aristocrats now who serve many of the retail buyers with groceries, vegetables, coal, and other necessaries of life. The following list of titled tradesmen would seem to emphasise the statements:

Lord Hampden is said to supply the best cream cheese, and his carts, filled with all the fresh dairy produce of his Tend farm in Sussex, go daily on their West End routes.

Lord Londonderry will deliver half a ton of coal with promptness. A grand-son of William IV. prefers a more retiring method of meeting the demands of his customers. Through the medium of the post he sends out his packets of tes all over the country.

Among the smaller shop-owners who belong to the old aristocratic families of England is Lord Harrington, who opened a shop a few years ago on his London property that he might sell fruit and vegetables grown at Elvaston Castle. The late Lord Winchilsen was the ploneer of the fresh vegetable crusade which started the shop in Long Acre where all kinds of British farm may be bought at the lowest prices.

Lord Portsmouth has gone into the mineral-water trade, a bottling establishment for which he has started. The restaurant business seems in high favor. Mr. Algy Burke was one of the first of the "upper ten" to put his energies into the management of a restaurant. He succeeded in making fashlouable the restaurant known as Willis' Rooms. Two other young men Miami Brown. "I'ze been studyin' de white folks. What yoh wants to do is jes' put on de airs yohse'f an' let de yuthuh folks do de guessin' 'bout whut of the family of Lord Vaux of Harrowden. They have opened an hotel at a new watering-place.

Although the interest in millinery shops owned and managed by society women has somewhat abated, this field of trade has found new workers. A man well known in society is the latest milliner. He has taken a shop in Bond street a short distance from one over the door of which he painted "The Countess of Warwick," and under the name of Camille he successfully carries on his business.

Boer in a Box.

A most remarkable story has been furnished to an Express representative by the second officer of the R. M. S. Goth, which has just arrived home from the Cape. On the Goth's arrival on Christmas morning at Ascension Island, on the homeward voyage, a Boer commandant was discovered on board in a large wooden case forming part of the carge. The "consignment" had been received on board at St. Helena, and shipped as a box of Boer curios for England. The measurements of the case were:

4 inches; and height, 2 feet. When the box was opened the contents proved to be a live Boer commandant, who gave his name as Smonerburg, and owned that he was a prisoner or parole. Standing over six feet in height, he was helped out of his cramped "room" in a weak and exhausted state. He had there been cribbed, cabined and confined for five days. Enough food was stored to last him for his voyage to England, but in being stowed away in the hold his water bottles had been broken. He was eventually landed at Ascen sion under an escort, to await reship ping on a man-of-war for St. Helena, where he will join his brother Boers in captivity. The box in which the prisoner was found was a most clever contrivance, apparently of Boer carpentership, with sliding panels. It contained clothing, biscuits, potted meats, books, and a candle and matches.-London Express.

world, presumably, that place a premium upon spinsterhood. A celibacy insurance company has been founded. If the holder of a policy in the Cellbacy is unmarried at the age of forty she is considered immune and gets s life annuity. If she marries before forty she forfeits her policy and premiums. Between an annuity and a busband a Danish malden's heart is often rent with indecision. In Sweden for spinsters. One of these at least is as attractive as it is unique. Grimly Grotesque.

The following tale anent Li Hung Chang reminds one of the grim jesting of Mr. Gilbert's Mikado, who will be remembered as having indulged in pleasantries regarding "something with boiling oil in it."

Li Hung Chang had, beyond all doubt, an iron will and a very unsentimental beart. Once, when he was Viceroy of Chi-Li, a man who had tampered with a telegraph wire was brought before him. The man wrung his hands and begged for mercy, saying that he would never touch the wire again. "Don't be vexed, my good fellow," said Li, "nor trouble yourself any further about the matter. "SCIENTIFIC" BEEF.

The Reast Beef of Old England Is Deteriorating.
England would not be England without its famous roast beef. Patriotic Britons are still under the delusion that by paying the price they can obtain the genuine article "as good as ever it was, sir." This is another of the pleasant fictions which the faithful journalist is obliged to shatter.

As a matter of fact, the distinctive flavor which won the admiration of King James has been slowly lost owing to modern methods of fattening

Tenderness and juley quality undoubtedly have been gained by modern breeders owing to their scientific feeding of oxen; but the original "beefy" flavor, which took about three years to become perfect, is gradually being replaced by quite unpleasantant flavors. For instance, and the British Farmers' Association is the authority consulted by the writer, Devonshire beef has a distinctly "turnippy" taste, due to the roots and turnips upon which the beasts are fed.

In apring beef of this flavor is more noticeable, for it is during the winter months, when pasturage is scarce, that the animals have to be fed on roots. If for one month only, just before slaughtering, the cattle were fed on hay this objection would be removed; but our cattle breeders are in such a hurry to send the animals to the market that this month cannot be spared when the demand for English beef is great and pressing.

Olicake is another artificial food that affects the flavor. The taste of the oil is most unpleasantly perceptible when the food is used to any great extent. But it fattens very rapidly, so farmers use it. Six weeks only is necessary to get an ox into market condition on oil-

What, then, is the finest beef for is ble? The answer will come as a shock. It is, according to an expert, the American who "succeeds again."

American beef, bred from the finest English stock, has many advantages over the home-grown animals. The pasturage in America is ideal. Sunshine is abundant, and sunshine has a great effect in the way of improving flavor of beef. The most exposed portions of the animal, such as that from which the sirioin is taken, are always the best. American beef comes over in chilled, not frozen chambers. If the "Ice gets into the meat" the flesh becomes tasteless, but a cold chamber, the temperature of which does not fall below freezing point, arrests decomposition without spelling the flavor.—London

CUT OUT HER DOUBLE CHIN.

Delicate Piece of Surgery to Save

Woman from Suffering. To save herself from death by suffocation and incidentally to cure a double chin of prodigious development, Mrs. Florence Shipley, of Baltimore, Md., has submitted to one of the strangest surgical operations on record. Her chin Length, 4 feet 3 inches; breadth, 2 feet was allt open in four places and a large quantity of fat removed from her neck. The operation was performed at the University Hospital on Lombard street. A slip of the knife by a hair's breadth and the patient would never have awakened from the ether. This she fully understood, but preferred the risk to further suffering.

Mrs. Shipley is a tall woman and stout in proportion to her weight. For years, however, an unnatural growth of flesh under her chin has created a pressure on the carotid arteries. All efforts to reduce it proved fruitless. The still healthy arteries, as time only increased the deposit, were crusned beneath the weight of fat.

The carotid arteries carry the blood from the heart to the brain, and their deformity soon produced not only pain but a lack of supply of blood caused periods of unconsciousness. Respiration was also so far interfered with that the unfortunate woman dreaded Curative Compound. By the way, the

ANOTHER REMARKABLE CASE Which the Doctors Failed to Cure or Understand.

A medical man, as a rule, dislikes to acknowledge the value of a proprietary medicine. In fact, professional eti-quette debars him from doing so. There are many eminent physicians, those most avanced in thier professions, who give full credit to the great curative properties of Vogeler's Curative Compound from the fact that it is manufactured by an old and reliable company, proprietors of St. Jacobs Oil, from the formula of a brother physician, who today stands in the front ranks of the most eminent medical men, and on account of its intrinsic merit it is largely prescribed by the medical profession.

Mrs. Nettleton graphically relates the particulars of her own case, which will doubtless be of interest to many of our lady readers:

"I had been an intense sufferer for many years from dyspepsia, liver and kidney troubles, when a pamphlet was placed in my hands, and, although at that time I had been bedridden for more than six months, I determined, after reading some of the cases similar to mine, which had been completely cured by Vogeler's Curative Compound, to try some, especilly as my dictors failed to even benefit me, and I had given up all hope of ever being well The very first dose of 15 drops relieved me. It was not long before I was able to get up and about; three months from taking the first dose I was enjoying better health than I had been for 14 years. I should not have been alive today had it not been for Vogel-er's Curative Compound."

Mrs. Nettleton said: "I have recommended Vogeler's Curative Compound for indigestion and eczema, and in every case it has proved a cure, beyond doubt. Mr. Swinbank, our chemist, has sent me the names of no end of peoproprietors have so much confidence in this great London physician's discovery, that they will send a sample free to any person sending name and ad-
