A Hundred Thousand Settlers.

If the Harriman Lines bring 100,000 settlers into the northwest within the next two years, there is no doubt they can be taken care of and made comfortable. The purpose of the Harriman management, as outlined in a Chicago dispatch of Saturday, to locate these settlers in Oregon and Washington. While it may be to the interest of the management to place the large numbers of settlers in the first named state it is inevitable that many should take up locations in Washington, and the action of the Harriman companies inaugurating the movement will therefore be commended.

The work of colonization is to be undertaken on a scale that has hitherto been unattempted. It is to be systematically and thoroughly done and it is not improbable that even more settlers will be brought to the west than is now contemplated. One hundred thousand people means more than are now in the state of Idaho, but when these immigration waves are once started thousands are carried along with them who originally may never have thought of seeking a home in the west The movement to the Pacific coast is just beginning and during the next five years the aggregate of new settlers who have located in the north west is almost certain to be surprisingly large.

Inasmuch as it is said that especial attention will be given to show what Oregon and Washington have in the way of mineral, agricultural and timber resources, it goes without saying that the rich mining sections, broad wheat and fruit belts and immense timber areas of this state will fully be described. These descriptions can hardly fail to attract those seeking new homes and the population of Oregon must inevitably be increased many thousands.

The Rise of the Mule.

Somehow the mule has been singularly prominent in the South African war from first to last. When Sir George White fell back upon Ladysmith he sent one column off to attack the enemy. None of the detachment returned except the mules carrying a mountain battery. The men taken prisioners were illogical enough to claim that their disaster was caused by the stampede of the mules, but it is practically certain that the Boers, with their deadly rifles, would have quickly put the guns out of action if they had been available. As the conflict went on, the demand for more mules was even more urgent than the requisition for more men. When Lord Methuen's army was recently scattered or captured, the blame was laid again upon the stampeding mules in a baggage train. But as the pending peace negotiations seem to be the direct result of the Methuen episode, the stampede of the mules tipped the scales in favor of ending the war, if the charge against them is true.

The London Spectator gives the mule another lift by declaring that "the horse in the war is expensive, fragile and a fool; he is greedy and his food is bulky as himself; he requires an expert to keep him efficient under hard work, and a mirical to keep him alive under fire." The mule is the reverse of fragile; he may be undemonotrative, but he is no fool; he can live on whatever food happens to be handy, and to find one dead is proverbially a surprise. His tendency to stampede semi-occasionally is due to some intuitive mental process never yet explain. The physical force with which he moves on such occasions suggests a volcanic eruption rather than nervousness. He could hardly be called scared when his momentum would knock a herd of elephants, or a dozen lions for that matter right and left. When he stampedes he simply decides to go, and that settles it. The closing point of the war is marked by general excitement over alleged British mule camps in Missouri and Louisana. Mules have become the pivot of military science and of nice international questions. This remarkable animal, which is indifferent to pride of ancestry, and perfectly secure in its vicarious hope of posterity, evidently has qualities that specially fit him for the twentieth century, and to which the historian and zoologist have not yet done justice.

Clatskanie Briefs.

The steamer Dixon makes us two trips this week and will probably be to the companys advantage to keep up biweekly visits.

The Tichenor mill company is now under good headway getting out fir lumber and getting it to the steamer landing in generous quantites.

Dave Lane has been hauling shingles over from Mist the past few days.

John Wallace and Chas Lovegren have been bringing baled hay and John Maynard has been supplying wheat and oats from his ranch near Fishhawk.

Dan Berg got a very early start for Clatskanie one morning this week, returning about 6 a. m. after a 16 mile ride from Fishhawk. He found a new two-seated hack at the steamer warehouse, which he loaded with supplies, and started for home. A number of new vehicles have gone into the Nehalem valley during the past few months to travel over roads that are not the pride of the valley by any means.

W. S. Chandler was appointed chief of the fire department at the last council meeting and expects to get the boys together to keep up the organization of a fire company.

Mrs. C. H. Wheeler, of Portland, is spending a few days with her invalid mother, here.

Clatskanie has concluded to celebrate in a vigorous style though a little slow in getting wakened up to concentrated efforts. Now that election is over, work toward a grand effort to wake the echoes on the glorious fourth is being pushed with determination and enthusiasm. The council at its meeting this week was visited by a committee to solicit an appropriation of city funds to assist in the work and the city fathers voted $50 for the purpose, liberal contributions by business men and citizens generally, insure funds sufficient to make quite a demonstration, and the people of the United States generally are invited to celebrate the 4th of July at Clatskanie.

A raft of fine looking logs from the camp of Chandler & Hughes was recently floated past town toward Beaver where a steamer is expected to take it in tow for Portland.

The flume is getting down near the mouth of Conyers Creek indications are favorable for an early completion if no obsticles are presented in securing additional right of way.

The Knights of the Maccabees and ladies branch of that order propose to hold memorial services next Sabbath afternoon, in accordances with the usages of the order.

Some of our young men are trying their muscle on the public highways this week, by the direction of the road supervisor.

Mrs. Rev. Hawkins is entertaining her father, Mr. Hotchkiss, who came from Indiana the latter part of last week on a visit.

The school district No. 5 is at present able to pay its indebtedness which it has not been able to do for some years past.

The teachers at Quincey arranged for an ice cream and strawberry festival at the close of school last week. Their patrons were quite numerous and soon finished up their stock of supplies. In fact the refreshments ran short of supplying the demand but a pleasant evening was spent and an addition made to the school fund. Mrs. Graham and Miss Harriet Thayer have conducted a successful term of school in that district.

We notice a new team of horses and a "bran new wagon" as a recent acquisition to the Howitson outfit.

The Tichneor company's office has been moved and James McDonald is preparing a foundation for a new building on the lot next to the one where Z Bryant's store is located. It is reported that Chris Johnson has bought a lot beyond Perrine's with a view to building a livery stable in the near future. Johnson's house near Flippins is getting in shape and promises to be one of the good houses of the town.

Vernonia Pick-Ups.

R. Besseman spent last week down the river, doing carpenter work for Frank Peterson.

We understand that the milling company organized to operate at Pitteburg is expecting to buy the mill and put it in an once, and will put in an outfit that will do all kinds of work.

W. W. Allen made a trip out to Houlton and St. Helens last week with several timber cruisers who have been hereabouts for over a month past. A large number of our people are selling a part, and some all of their timber land at from $6 to $8 per acre. The latest buyer on the market is a woman, Mrs. Mary K. Nixon, of Forest Grove. She has bought several pieces, among them being eighty acres from A. L. Baker.

The various school districts will hold their annual elections next Monday. The one in the town district here promises to be quite spirited.

Rev. J. C. Emmel filled his first appointment here and at Keasey last Sunday, having good audiences. He will be at Kist next Sunday at 11 o'clock, at Beaver at 2:30, at Vernonia in the evening.

The question of road-making, "good roads," is being considered by our local grange and taking the suggestion from the experience of road-making in the lower Mississippi valley. Black earth (gumbo) is burned hard, and out of this burned material a road is made almost as hard as crushed stone. Some of the members of the grange here have burned some of our Nehalem gumbo and find it very hard. Samples have been sent to Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, and he has asked for more samples to be sent, as he is of the opinion, judging from the samples already sent, that the Mississippi valley method of working roads can be applied to Columbia county roads.

Mrs. Thos. Cooper, of Kalama, visited relatives in this city a day or two this week.

Mr. H. H. Clark was down from Warren Tuesday.

The fees in the county clerks office in May amounted to $440.

Omar Spencer, of Vernonia, passed through town Tuesday en route for Portland.

Rev. Lew Davies will preach at Houlton next Sunday morning, Warren in the afternoon and St. Helens in the evening.

Lost on road, near St. Helens, May 31, book, "Winning of the West." Reward if returned to this office.

Rev. Mr. Breck will conduct services in the Episcopal church in this city Sunday evening next, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Kreiter and son and and daughter, of Whatcom, Wash., visited their relatives, the Gray family, in this city a few days recently, leaving on Wednesday for Idaho, where they expect to engage in the stock business.

A young son arrived at the home of E. H. Mitchell, last Friday

The Grand lodges of Masons and Eastern Star are in session in Portland this week and numerous of our pominent people have been in attendance.

Wealth from the Mines.

Although one of the great sources of supply, the South African mines, was virtually cut off, the world's total production of gold in 1901 was considerably greater than in 1900, when the aggregate amount was two hundred and fifty-six million dollars. The United States led the increase with a gain of three or four million dollars, the total output for 1901 being between eighty-one and eighty-two million dollars. Colorado continues at the head of the gold-producing states.

How much was lost through the inactivity of the South African mines may be inferred from the fact that before the Boer war broke out, these mines produced, 1898, seventy-eight million dollars. In 1901 their production was only four or five millions, although competent authorities estimate that, in full operation, they could have produced one hundred million dollars.

According to the "Engineering and Mining Journal," not more than one-quarter of the gold annually produced goes to increase the monetary stock of world. The larger part is employed in the arts and for other purposes aside from the manufacture of coin and the accumulation of bank reserves. Among commercial countries it is estimated that at present the United States and France contain the greatest accumulations of gold. There has been a notable hoarding of gold in France for some years past.

During 1901 there was a reversal of the situation as to the comparative value of imports and exports of gold in this country. In 1900 the imports exceeded the exports by between nine and ten millions; in 1901 the exports exceeded the imports by two million seven hundred and ninety thousand dollars. But in 1901 the total of both exports and imports was only one hundred and two million dollars against one hundred and seventeen million dollars in 1900. The exports of gold in in 1901 went mainly to France and Germany, and relatively little to Great Britain.

The production of silver in the United States in 1901 was practically the same as in 1900, when the total amounted to fifty-nine million five hundred thousand ounces. But there was a marked decrease in the quantity smelted and refined from imported ores. Over the world at large, the production of silver showed some falling off.

Tuesdey was the most exciting day at the United States land office in Oregon City, in many months. The reason therefor was the throwing open to settlement of township 8, range 10 west. Nearly 70 people, eager to file upon land surrounded the doors of the office at 9 in the morning, and when the hour for opening arrived there was a rush to be the first to file. The township is in the Siletz Reservation, near Kernville. Sections 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 were surveyed in August, 1892, and were thrown open for settlement September 26, 1895. Twenty nine homestead filings were allowed today, involving about 4640 acres, and all of the homesteads are in sections 31, 32, 33 and 34. The total acreage in the land thrown open today is 23,876.71. In addition to the 29 filing allowed, 17 filings were made which are in conflict, and wherever these conflicts occur, the fortunate homesteader is yet to be determined Any squatter in the section, or any one who has improvements on, or who is living on the land, has a preference right, and has been allowed by the register and receiver until next Monday to fil affidavits to prove his allegations and claims. To cap the climax of Tuesdays rush, 10 timber proofs were recorded. On July 21 next township 8 south, range 9 west will be thrown open to the public for settlement.

Relelf or Reciprocity, Which?

First they called it relelf. Now they call it reciprocity. Which is it, as a matter of fact? If there be destitution and suffering in Cuba that can only be assuaged by a money gift, let it be so understood, and let money be given outright and placed where it will do the most good. Above all, it should reach the needy and the distressed, and no part of it should go to the enrichment of a trust or to the guaranteeing of profits to foreigners who have invested in Cuban sugar and tobacco lands. In that case a reduction of duties would be the wrong way, and an outright donation would be the right way. But if it is proposed to attack the Dingley tariff schedule for the purpose of selling more of our goods to and taking more of her products from Cuba, that is another and a very different proposition. First it is asked, will reciprocity relelve Cuban distress? If so, whose distress? It certainly will not help the treasurery of the new republic. On the contrary, it will greatly diminish the revenues of a government which starts out with an empty treasury and which depends wholly upon customs receipts for its revenues. Will the native planter profit to the extent of the reduction in the duties on the sugar and tobacco which he ships to the United States? Will not the sugar trust and the tobacco monopolies share to some extent in the benefits of such reduction and pay lower tariff? Undoubtedly they will get a substantial part of the benefits. Many people beleive they will get them all.

Then comes the plain, practical commercial question whether a scheme of reciprocity concessions will prove advantageous to the general body of producers of the United States, or whether it will not work to the profit of some and the loss of others. Will it pay us to cripple our own sugar and tobacco industries in order that somebody else may sell more of their products to Cuba? That is a fair question. It involves considerations that must be taken carefully into account while we are rigging up a reciprocity scheme.

Of the two plans, relelf and reciprocity the American people would undoubtedly prefer the former, that is, provided relief is really needed in Cuba and is called for at our hands. If we must "do something for Cuba," let us choose the least mischievous and most practical method of donation. That method we can follow with our eyes wide open. We shall be experimenting and dealing in the dark if we try reciprocity.

From all over the country comes the report of a failure in the prune crop. It is estimated that in this county there will not be more than a fourth of a crop, possibly not more than a fifth. This is indeed, a very serious condition of affairs. Robert Johnson, manager of the big orchard of the Benton County Prune Co., says that their orchard produced as many prunes last year as the whole of Benton county will produce this year. Along about the latter part of next month prunes generally drop from the trees to some extent and with the small setting of fruit this season if they should drop to any degree the output will be most seriously affected. However, every thing indicates that the prunes that are produced will be unusually large, and it is hoped that the price will be as large as the crop is small.—Corvallis Gazette.

Keasey Notes.

As little grains of sand make the beautious land, so little grains of news from all parts, carried on the wings of Uncle Sam, helps to make the county newspaper.

Mrs. Melinda Athans, who, for several weeks has been visiting and doing business in Portland, has returned for a short time to Upper Rock Creek. She will go back again in a few days.

Mrs. Ella McPherson, who, for a long time has been on the sick list, was able to attend services at the school house last Sabbath. A full house greeted the new pastor, Rev. J. C. Emel.

The Keasey school, under the supervision of Miss Ella Austin, is progressing finely. Although the pupils are not remarkably far advanced Miss A. pronounced this one of the pleasantest schools she ever taught. The pupils are easily governed and among themselves very harmonious—we told you so.

Prospects of fruit in these parts are very promising. Grain looks well notwithstanding we have found one man who protests against the way "the Lord is running things." We sadly fear if it were given into the hands of man to manage we would meet with worse disasters than St. Vincent or Martinique.

Mrs. D. E. Keasy is again at her home in Portland, much improved in health. She has been absent since last October.

George Schaub, a well known German citizen of New Lebanon, Ohio, is a constant reader of the Dayton Volkszeitung. He knows that this paper aims to advertise only the best in its columns, and when he saw Chamberlain's Pain Balm advertised therein for lame back, he did not hesitate in buying a bottle of it for his wife, who for eight weeks had suffered with the most terrible pains in her back and could get no relief. He says: "After using the Pain Balm for a few days my wife said to me, 'I feel as though born anew', and before using the entire contents of the bottle the unbearable paine had entirely vanished and she could again take up her household duties." He is very thankful and hopes that all suffering likewise will hear of her wonderful recovery. This valuable liniment is for sale at the St. Helens Pharmacy.

How to Avoid Trouble.

Now is the time to provide yourself and family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the summer is over, and procured now may save you a trip to town in the night or in your busiest season. It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful medicine in use for bowel complaints, both for children and adults. No family can afford to be without it. For sale at the St. Helens Pharmacy.

My little son had an attack of whooping-cough and was threatened with pneumonia; but for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy we would have had a serious time of it. It also saved him from several severe attacks of croup.—H. J. STRICKFADEN, editor World-Herald, Fair Haven, Wash. For sale at the St. Helens Pharmacy.

Of what does a bad taste in your month remind you? It indicates that your stomach is in bad condition and will remind you that there is nothing so good for such a disorder as Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets after having once used them. They cleanse and invigorate the stomach and regulate the bowels. For sale at 25 cents per box at the St. Helens Pharmacy.

How About Your Title?

ARE YOU SURE it is all right? Remember that it is the RECORD that governs. It is our business to search the records and show what they contain in relation to land titles. If you contemplate buying land or loaning money on real-estate security, take no man's word, but insist upon knowing what the record shows regarding the title. An Abstract is as essential as a deed. Insist on having it. We have the only set of abstract books in the county. All work promptly executed and satisfaction guaranteed. If you have property to insure give us a call. We are agents for the best fire insurance companies in the world. If you have property for sale list it with us and we will find a buyer.
