The Times, of Corvallis, Benton county, Oregon, had the following in a recent issue: "A field of vetch, thrashed by John Whitaker the latter part of last week is attracting some attention among farmers. The field comprised 48 acres and the yield was 1500 bushels or over 30 bushels per acre. From 52 acres the yield was 1,115 bushels, or nearly 25 bushels per acre. To make the crop more interesting, it is to be understood that the vetch was cut with a mow, raked up like hay, and thrashed from the stack. It was quite ripe when cut and it is estimated that the amount of grain lost, if saved, would have swelled the total yield to at least 80 bushels per acre. Much of the grain had fallen down and was flat on the ground when mowed. The field was last fall. It was pastured until May, and during the time two bands of mutton sheep were turned off of it. The seed is said to be worth 1.50 a bushel, which together with the fact that it is a unique manner in the presence of the throngs in the street fair grounds. The donations of presents will equip them all complete for housekeeping, as the management of the fair will deal liberally with those who will consent to be married publicly at the expense of the Carnival company. Swains who haven't the price, but would like to, can make the arrangements by writing to Secretary Alex Sweek, Portland.

September 9 is to be wedding day at the Portland Elks' Carnival. On that date not fewer than three couples will be united in a unique manner in the presence of the throngs in the street fair grounds. The donations of presents will equip them all complete for housekeeping, as the management of the fair will deal liberally with those who will consent to be married publicly at the expense of the Carnival company. ### A MAGNIFICENT BOOKLET,

Describing the Scenic Grandeur Along the Astoria and Columbia River Railroad.

The neatest and most attractive pamphlet ever put out by an Oregon Railway Company is "What the Wild Waves Say at Seaside, issued by the Astoria and Columbia River Railroad, under the direction of J. C. Mayo, the general passenger agent. The half-tone engravings show to excellent advantage the magnificent scenery along the Columbia river as well as many views of actual summer life and scenic locations at this popular seaside resort. The roadbed of this line was constructed in the most substantial way, the track consisting of heavy steel rails, which are so truly fastened to the substantial underpinning, that it is a delight to travel and view the magnificent panorama of scenery. There is no more attractive place in Oregon than the lower Columbia and Seaside.

Write to J. C. Mayo, General Passenger Agent at Astoria, and get one of the booklets. September is the most delightful of all months.

Every Saturday Excursion Rate to Clatsop and Long Beach, via A. C. R. Railway.

Beginning Saturday, June 14th, and every Saturday thereafter, during the summer season, the Astoria and Columbia River Railroad Company will sell round trip excursion tickets from all stations between Portland and Clatskanie inclusive, to all points on Clatsop and return, at rate of $2.50. Tickets limited good to return Sunday evening. Close connections at Astoria with steamer Natchua to and from Long Beach.

The famous Lost Cabin mine has been located on the south fork of Murderer's creek 40 miles from Canyon city and a like distance from Dayville. The Lost Cabin, from which the property acquired its name, was found in a dilapidated condition. The old shaft sunk near the cabin, in which was found exceedingly rich placer gravel, was also found. The ledge, now being developed, was about eight inches wide on the surface and at a depth of ten feet had widened to two feet. From the surface the ore was highly mineralized, and has the appearance of developing into property worthy of the name. Now find the Blue Rocket mine and Oregon history will be vindicated.—Eastern Oregon Observer.

The fact that the season in Washington for ducks opens 15 days earlier than in Oregon gives local sportsmen an opportunity to engage in sport a few days earlier without violating the game law. It is no fault of the sportsmen that the laws of the two states are not identical. It is the fault of the law makers themselves. The sportsmen who live convenient to the Washington shore cannot be blamed, if he goes to the Washington de to kill ducks, for he violates no law by so doing.

The Thrice-a-Week World.

Time has demonstrated that the Thrice-a-Week World stands alone in its class. Other papers have imitated its form but not its success. This is because it tells all the news all the time and tells it impartially, whether that news be political or otherwise. It is, in fact, almost a daily at the price of a weekly and you can not afford to be without it.

Republican and Democrat alike can read the Thrice-a-Week World with absolute confidence in its truth.

In addition to news, it publishes first class serial stories and other features suited to the home and fireside.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the Oregon Mist together one year for $1.80.

The regular subscription price of the two papers $2.00.

The Oregon Mist and the Thrice-a-Week World for six months for 95 cents; three months for 50 cents.

The Elks Carnival.

The electrical illuminations of the Portland Elks' Carnival, September 1 to 13, will be a revelation in the way of modern utility of electricity in transforming night into a glorious day, radiant as a sunrise rainbow, with its colors many times multiplied. Seventh street is the location of the fair, and some 12 to 15 blocks, extending from the main gate at Seventh and Washington street to Flanders street, taking in the tree lined park blocks north of Burnside street, will give the Carnival effective setting. There will be a Temple of Light and Music at the intersection of Seventh and Ankeny streets; a Court of Honor where a throne room for the queen will be provided; wide arches at the street intersections, all handsomely decorated and glowing with hundreds of electric lights. The Manufacture building will be a beautifully decorated arcade 150 feet long and 15 feet deep. In which the industries of the state and actual manufacturing processes will be illustrated to profitable advantage before the eyes of thousands of visitors.

The New York Evening Post holds up a Chinaman as a victim of what it terms American race prejudice. This particular Chinaman has been kept on ship in Hoboken while the ship was waiting for a cargo. The refusal of the immigration inspector to allow the Chinaman to land is denounced as an outrage. The Chinaman, so far as is known, has committed no offense which justifies the authorities in denying him the privilege of landing.

"But," says the Post, "so terrible would be the result of his settling among us that he is guarded like the worst of criminals."

This particular Chinaman may be in the interest of men, women and children born in the country. The Chinese represent a lower civilization, and the effect of admitting them into the United States would be to lower the American standard of living to the Chinese level.

The wages of laborers fixes the standard of living that must prevail among them.

Electricity on the Farm.

The electric motor in country houses or on a farm may be used with a windmill, and the storage of power produced applied to sawing wood, chopping feed and countless other outside purposes. Possibly before long it will run the mowing machine and the cultivator and take the place of horses and many men. But most and best of all, it can be used now for lighting a house from top to bottom, in every closet and dark place, with perfect safety, with a soft, daylight luster, the wiring costing an average of $2.50 a light in the first place, and the current costing no more than gas. What more there is for electricity to do in the house remains to be seen, but apparently it is going to take the place of the fabled brownie and make work easy and life twice as pleasant there.—Harriet Prescott Spofford in Congressionalist.

Just the Difference.

"My dear, look down below," said Mr. Grandison as he stood on the bridge with his wife and gazed at a tug hauling a long line of barges.

"Such is life; the tug is like the man, working and toiling, while the barges, like women, are—"

"I know," interrupted Mrs. G. acidly; "the tug does all the blowing, and the barges bear all the burden."—Million.

The fertile portion of the earth's surface is estimated at 23,969,900 square miles. The barren region is estimated by the same authority as 22,969,000 square miles, divided as follows: Steppes, 13,901,000; desert, 4,180,000, and polar region, 4,888,000 square miles.

The destination of one of the Duchesses of York's wedding cakes was a poor home in the east end of London. One of the cakes was 7 feet 6 inches high and weighed between eight and nine hundredweight.

The finest ancient marble was that from Paros, called Parian. The next best was from Mount Pentelicus and Hymettus near Athens. The finest modern marble is from Carrara.

Who could have believed a hundred years ago that by studying the sun we should be able to learn something of the condition of things in the earth deep under our feet?
