Mrs. Smith Wanted a "Rain Check" to Show Something Was Due.

Fifteen years ago Representative Hank Smith was wedded. As he is a lawyer and delights in the triumphs of his profession, the wedding day this year had more than the usual significance for him, for on that day he also won a law case.

Mr. Smith secured a favorable verdict in the Washington courts for his fellow townsman, Mr. W. H. Harrison, in a suit involving a contract for granite for the pedestal of the Sherman monument. He immediately telegraphed to Mrs. Smith, who is something of a wit as well as her liege lord in congress:

"Have just won a good verdict in lawsuit on the anniversary of our wedding. What shall I bring you for a present?"

A half hour later the messenger boy brought this reply from Mrs. Smith, in Pontiac:

"I will take a rain check for that present till you get home."—Washington Post.

Faith and Works.

One's faith is often wonderfully strengthened when some one unites it with works. We are told that one hard winter, when sickness came to the poorly paid pastor of a certain New England church, his flock determined to meet at his house and offer prayers for the speedy recovery of the sick ones and for the material blessings upon the pastor's family. While one of the deacons was offering a fervent prayer for blessings upon the pastor's household there was a loud knock at the door. When the door was opened, a stout farmer boy was seen. "What do you want, boy?" asked one of the elders. "I've brought pa's prayers," replied the boy. "Brought your pa's prayers! What do you mean?" "Yep, brought his prayers, an' they're out in the wagon. Just help me, an' we'll get 'em in." Investigation disclosed the fact that "pa's prayers" consisted of potatoes, flour, bacon, cornmeal, turnips, apples, warm clothing and a lot of jellies for the sick ones. The prayer meeting adjourned in short order.—Rural New Yorker.

Too Great a Risk.

In almost every neighborhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. IRELAND'S FORGERIES.

I hear that a millionaire in New York is negotiating for a copy of the Ireland forgeries, those famous documents, alleged to be the writings of Shakespeare, put forth by a youth of nineteen of the name of W. H. Ireland. The chief forgery was entitled "Miscellaneous Papers and Instruments, Under the Hand and Seal of William Shakespeare, Including the Tragedy of King Lear and a Small Fragment of Hamlet, From the Original." His play, "Vortigern and Rowena," was palmed off as Shakespeare's and actually produced at the Drury Lane theater in 1796. The fraud was at length detected and acknowledged. Only in recent years has it been learned that the pronoun "its" occurs but two or three times in the acknowledged works of Shakespeare. Had this fact been known in Ireland's time his frequent use of the word would have exposed him.—New York Press.

Modern Building.

Solomon's temple was about seven years in building, but it stood for centuries. No one can estimate accurately the life of a modern steel structure, which comes into being in remarkably quick time. In a recent instance in New York an apartment hotel was completed, leased and sold in less than fourteen months after the purchase of the site. The actual work of construction was done in less than ten months, although this was a twelve and a half story building, which covered a lot 71 by 100 feet, and contained more than 200 rooms. These marvels do not come by chance. Every bolt and rivet is planned and provided for before the foundation is laid, and a perfect system controls the gangs of workmen, who carry on the most diverse operations without getting in one another's way.—Youth's Companion.

PROGRESSIVE CONSUMPTION.

Dr. Charles Conrad Abbott, whose work as a naturalist has made him well known, returned from a fishing excursion not long since deeply impressed with the cruelty that is an almost inevitable attendant upon living. Dr. Abbott caught on this excursion a pike, says the Philadelphia Record. It was a fish about six inches long, and on opening it to clean it the angler found in its stomach a good sized mud minnow. He examined the mud minnow in some amazement, and his hand felt something bulky inside it. Accordingly he cut it open and found within it a tiny pike. He felt now as they feel who study those Chinese puzzles that have ivory ball within ivory ball, and without hesitation he ripped open the little pike. Within it he found what he had expected to find—another mud minnow. Thus in one catch he had come upon a pike containing a minnow that contained a pike that contained a minnow.

Senator Bate's Career.

Senator W. B. Bate of Tennessee has often been urged to write a book of reminiscences, but now declares that he is too old to undertake such a task. The old gentleman served as a youth in the Mexican war and in the Confederate army he was reckoned one of the most intrepid men who ever wore the gray. From start to finish he was on the firing line, and as colonel of his regiment he won deathless fame on the bloody field of Shiloh. In that fight he had three horses killed under him, while he himself and four members of his family were simultaneously bleeding. His heroism won for him the rank of a major general, and since those stormy days there has been no office that was too good for him in the opinion of the people of Tennessee.

Miss Alice Roosevelt.

This is what an English writer has to say of Alice Roosevelt, whom he met at a small party in Washington: "She is an attractive girl rather than pretty, with tremendous high spirits and at times, I should say, a little excitable. It was a homely affair, at which a lot of youngsters were present, and we all knew one another pretty well, which may account for the little ebullition we were treated to. There was a good deal of jollity and romping, and Miss Roosevelt danced around the room in the gayest abandonment, occasionally firing blank cartridges from a little gold trinket pistol which her father had given her. These have been quite the fashion lately."

Hungry John Dillon.

T. P. O'Connor says that one of the funniest experiences that ever John Dillon had was while he was on a tour of this country. Mr. Dillon is of very slight frame and rather looks melancholy. He and Parnell appeared on the same platform in an eastern city at a time when famine threatened Ireland. After the meeting the chairman took Mr. Dillon by the hand and, with tears in his eyes, said: "Ah, Mr. Dillon, when I heard Parnell speak I was not moved. There, I said to myself, is an orator who knows nothing of suffering. But when you, Mr. Dillon, got up I shed tears. There, I said to myself, is a man who has known hunger. He has hunger in his face."

Spring Housecleaning.

If clergymen would warn men that those among them who are wicked—and few of them are not—will be doomed to live for all eternity in a house that is being cleaned, many would repent who could not be moved by threats of a lake of fire. There is a beautiful hymn which tells us that "rum has ruined my happy home." But for every home made unhappy by the demon rum two have been ruined, at least pro tem., by spring cleaning.—Baltimore Sun.

Backward New York.

Dr. William H. Tolman, director of the American Institute of Social Science, has been saying disagreeable things in New York. In one of a series of lectures delivered in the city residence of Miss Helen Gould he informed his hearers that Chicago and other cities were far in advance of Manhattan in the matter of public baths. He even went the length of adding, "New York, which needs these necessities very much, talks while other cities act."

Sticks to His Gray.

The only ex-officer of the Confederate army who clings to his uniform is General George F. Alford of Dallas, Tex. He has never discarded his colors since he donned them to go into the army in the early sixties. Pedestrians turn to look at him, peering at his badges, scanning his gold belt and trying to decipher the letters on his old army hat. General Alford has been a judge, a banker, a legislator and a congressman.

Mr. Joseph Pominville, of Stillwater, Minn., after having spent over $2 00 with the best doctors for stomach trouble, without relief, was advised by his druggist, Mr. Alex. Richard, to try a box of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. He did so and is a well man today. If troubled with indigestion, bad taste in the mouth, lack of appetite or constipation, give these Tablets a trial, and you are certain to be more than pleased with the result.
