TWENTY-FIRST BIRTHDAY.

THE OREGON MIST is now in its 22nd year, having passed a birthday last week. Under the management of various ownerships during its career, it has at all times been one of the solid institutions of Columbia county. It is at this time more prosperous than at any period in its history. This condition indicates a solid and steady growth in population and industries of Columbia county.

The Mist extends to all of its readers the greetings of the season, a Merry Christmas and a Joyful New Year.

The referendum amendment to the Oregon constitution has been declared valid by the supreme court. While the referendum amendment as passed by the Oregon voters, has a great deal of the referendum left out, as it exists in other countries, it must stand as adopted. The supreme court holds that the initiative amendment was legally proposed and adopted, and that the emergency question is a legislative one. The validity of the amendment was brought in question in a matter of street improvement under the new charter in Portland, and the Multnomah county circuit court held that the amendment was not legally adopted.

Claatskanie is the first road district in Columbia county, and possibly the first in Oregon, to levy a special road tax under the provisions of the new law. About 50 voters were present at the meeting last Friday night called by Supervisor Bryant, and a good majority voted for a nine-mill tax. This amount will give Clatskanie a good working capital for her roads, in addition to the County levy. Like the special school tax levy, the special road tax has to be made during this month, in order to be placed on the tax roll for collection.

The fact that County Judge Doan and Commissioner Cass have negotiated the purchase of a rock crusher and traction engine to be used by the county in the improvement of county roads, means that there will be some permanent road making next year. It is important, however, that the road work of the county be done on a systematic plan. The plan of letting road improvements under the supervision of the road master, is working highly satisfactory in Clatskanie county.

A bank in Columbia county is a necessity that would be appreciated, as many thousands of dollars worth of checks are sent to Portland during the year to be cashed. A bank here would materially increase the amount of taxable credits, as thousands of dollars of Columbia county money deposited in Portland banks escapes taxation.

Portland is to have the largest flour mill on the Pacific coast, the result of Harriman, of the Southern Pacific and O. & W. railroads, making a statement that he would increase the Asiatic fleet. The latter is an assurance that quick shipments of flour from Portland to Japan and China will be made. The Portland flouring mills will at once be increased from 2400 to 4600 barrels per day.

Through the offices and efforts of the Oregon congressional delegation, Secretary Hitchcock has released about 200 plow claim final judgments held up at the Oregon City land office, and patents to the claimants will subsequently issue.

RECTOR OF ST. LUKE'S.

Ashburnham, Ontario, Testifies to the Good Qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

ASHERBURNHAM, Ont., April 18, 1903.—I think it truly right that I should tell you what a wonderful effect Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has produced.

The day before Easter I was so distressed with a cold and cough that I did not think to be able to take any duties the next day, as my voice was almost choked by the cough.

The same day I received an order from you for a bottle of your Cough Remedy. I at once prepared a sample bottle, and took about three doses of the medicine. To my great relief the rough and cold had completely disappeared and I was able to preach three times in Easter Day. I know that this rapid and effective cure was due to your Cough Remedy. I make this testimonial without solicitation, having to thank you for having found such a good remedy.

A Reply to Mrs. Oliver,

In answer to the saloon question that appeared in The Mist, Nov. 13th, reminds me of a young man that lived in the Astoria county. He thought he had a call to preach and tried several times to hold meetings.

The poor fellow soon found out that there was a mistake somewhere. When he would get about half through with his sermon the largest part of his congregation would either go to sleep or leave the church.

The would-be preacher felt very bad and wondered why he didn't succeed better. He felt positive that God wanted him to preach. He finally decided to give it up for awhile, and went to help a friend hoe potatoes. He told his friend his trouble, said he was sure he had a call to preach. He wanted to know why it was that his sermons was not appreciated. His friend helped him out of his difficulty by telling him that he had missed his calling, he must have been called to hoe potatoes instead of preach.

I do not wish to be unjust orunkind.

But I do think, if the person that wrote the temperance letter for The Mist had traveled a little or lived in as many states as I have would change their minds about the poor men paying the licenses for the saloon keepers.

I have lived in cities for more than twenty years and have seen as many drunks in a prob'ble state as I have seen in the license states. Experience is a much better teacher than a youth's companion or dime novel or religious slams. In a prohibition city where I lived not long ago, the poor working men didn't pay all the fines for the rum sellers as the doctors and lawyers, teachers, county officer, and those who have large salaries were very generous fellows and did their part for the benefit of schools and kitchen barrooms. If the person would board a week in St. Helens on Water street, it would surprise her to see the business men of that little city going into the saloons and making good long stops and always come out wiping their whiskers. Surely they don't always get free drinks.

Just as long as liquors are made, whether an ion keeper can get licenses or not, it is going to be sold. If people are so anxious to stop the sale of liquors why don't they stop the brewer's from making it? They will always sell liquor as long as it is made. S. Carr and her husband better give it up and go into another business.

Rev. M. H. Everling preached at Beaumont on Sunday afternoon, and in his speech he said,

"I am a member of the First Congregational Church of Astoria, Oregon."

General Association at St. Helens.

It is a good association.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition.

Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their feed.

Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pint air-tight canister of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If you don't send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturer, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Rochester, Ga., Jan. 26, 1901.

Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried.

Our stock had when you gave me the medicine and now they are getting along well.

Very good.

CLATSASKANIE

The citizens of road district No. 10 assembled in sufficient numbers to fill the city hall last Friday evening, to respond to legal notice previously given. The meeting organized by electing road supervisor, E. S. Bryant president and D. W. Freeman, secretary. After considerable discussion it was decided to expend money, if a tax was voted, in even amounts on county road up the Clatskanie; 1½ on the road toward Mist, making permanent improvements only of broken rock or gravel, beginning at the city limits in each case and working out. After this decision the matter of voting a tax came up and W. H. Conyers, local attorney for the A. & C. R. R., became spokesman for the anti tax delegation by a motion that there be no tax voted at this time, which brought H. N. Merrill to his feet in a strong appeal for better roads, and the benefit the whole community would derive from a tax which would bear alike on resident or non-resident property holders. Others put in their oar with telling effect in favor of tax, and a ballot was taken deciding in favor of tax. Then as to the amount ex-sheriff J. H. Rice named ten mills. Attorney Conyers moved an amendment making the amount one mill. This was again amended by making the amount nine mills and after balloting, this amount of nine mills was agreed on. Attorney Conyers recommended many a good natured soul on his lost cause, but made a gallant fight against overwhelming numbers. The resolution to do permanent work only went far toward deciding for tax. Do a little work and do it well was the keynote, as summed up by Merrill, Rice and others, and adopted by the meeting.
