Shows Value of Notes.

A well known minister is telling an anecdote about a brother clergyman who was required unexpectedly to officiate at the funeral of a man concerning whom he knew nothing. When he arrived at the town where the deceased had lived he had just time to make a few inquiries about his traits and achievements, the results of which he noted on a memorandum. His eulogy at the service, as reported, was about as follows:

"Our dear brother, whom we mourn to-day, was a man of rare character and ability. He had the mental capacity of a"—referring to his notes—"Daniel Webster, the tact of a"—again consulting his memorandum—"Henry Clay, the pertinacity of a"—another reference—"Ulysses S. Grant. We can only mourn him with a profound and sorrowful regret now that he has gone to meet his"—another reference to the notes—"God."

A Consoling Thought.

Bramble—Yes, I'm ugly, I know I'm ugly; but there is one grand consolation.

Friend—What is that?

Bramble—If ever I should become great, and the American people should resolve to erect a statue to my memory, they won't be able to make me out any uglier than I am.

The Reason Why.

Drummond, Wis., Sept. 19 (Special)—Whole families in Bayfield county are singing the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills and the reason why is given in experiences such as that of Mr. T. T. Wold, a well known citizen here.

"I had such pains in my back that I did not know what to do," says Mr. Wold, "and as I came across an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills I sent for a box. That one box relieved me of all my pains. My wife also used them and found them just what she needed. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as a sure cure for Backahe, and other Kidney Troubles."

Backache is one of the earliest symptoms of Kidney disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure it promptly and permanently and prevent it developing into Rheumatism, Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease.

An Amplified Woman.

"The car was entirely empty, with the exception of one man," said Miss Myra Kelly. "He was the reverse of the car. As I entered he rose, made me an unsteady but magnificent bow and said:

"'Madam, phleashe be kind 'nough to asshept thish plashe.' There was nothing else for me to do, so I thanked him and sat down.

"And for twenty blocks that idiot hung from a strap, swaying in the breeze, with not a soul in the car but ourselves. Occasionally I have been taken for other women; but I never before had any one think that I was a car full."

He—Mother's advice?

She—Yes. She advised me not to wear a thin waist until it got warmer.

Kisses and a Hat.

"I was talking to my little granddaughter over the 'phone the other day," said Judge Parker recently to a few of his friends at a hotel in Albany, New York, "and when I ended I said:

"'Here, Dorothy, is a kiss for you.'

"She replied: 'Oh, pshaw, grandpa, don't you know that a kiss over the telephone is like a straw hat.'

"I said: 'Why, no, sweetheart, how is that?'

"'It's not felt, grandpa.'"

INHERITED SCROFULA

When a child I had a very severe attack of Diphtheria, which came near proving fatal. Upon recovery the glands of the neck were very much enlarged, and after the free use of iodine, the right one was reduced to its normal size, but the left one continued to grow—very slowly at first, until it was about the size of a goose egg, which began to press on the windpipe, causing difficult breathing, and became very painful. An incision was made and a large quantity of pus discharged. The gland was removed, or as much as could with safety be taken out. For ten years I wore a little piece of cloth about an inch long in my neck to keep the place open. During this time I had to have it cut open by the doctor every time I took cold or the opening clogged. In the Spring or early Summer of 1884 I was persuaded by my wife to use S. S. S., which I did, strictly in accordance with directions. I took twenty-six large bottles, and was entirely cured, for I have not suffered since that time.

TENDENCY OF OCCUPATIONS.

Commercial and Industrial Pursuits Have the Call.

That we have become in the last twenty years a commercial and industrial people and have ceased to be a people with whom agriculture is the predominant industry is indicated by the census report on occupations, recently published. The following table shows the proportion of all those in gainful pursuits who were engaged in the five principal classes of occupation in 1880 and in 1900:

	1880.	1900.	Dec.
Agricultural pursuits ..	45.29	35.79	9.50
Professional	3.48	4.80	*.84
Domestic and personal.	20.00	19.20	.80
Trade and transportation	10.08	16.30	*6.22
Manufacturing and mechanical	21.17	24.41	*3.24
Total 100.00		100.00

*Increase.

It will be seen that in 1880, while 45 per cent of those employed were engaged in agriculture, only 31 per cent were engaged in trade and transportation, manufacturing and mechanical pursuits, but that in 1900 less than 36 per cent were engaged in agriculture, while almost 41 per cent were engaged in manufacturing and commerce.

This does not, of course, indicate the extinction of agriculture. It merely indicates a change in its relative importance. The number of persons actually engaged in agriculture increased between 1880 and 1900 from 7,714,000 to 10,382,000 and the number is likely to increase for many years, especially if our vast irrigable domain is thrown open to settlement and is settled by bona fine homeseekers. With the growth in the commercial and industrial population there is bound to be a growth in the number of those engaged in the business of growing their food supply. In a country such as this, with its broad areas of fertile land available for industry, and with its vast resources of the raw material of industry and of manufacturing power, agriculture is bound to demand the services of more and more men. To make this clear it is sufficient to say that in 1880 there were engaged in commerce and the mechanical industries 2,250,000 persons, who were fed by the labors of 7,714,000 agriculturists, while in 1900 there were engaged in commerce and the mechanical industries 11,852,000 persons, who were fed by the labors of 10,382,000 persons.

While it is still true that agriculture is, and for many years is likely to remain, the foundation industry on which rests the prosperity of the whole country, such a change in the distribution of occupations as that which has occurred since 1880 is of great social and political as well as of economic significance. It is reflected in the growth of cities, in the rise of problems of municipal government now undergoing investigation and solution and in the ferment of labor and capital. It has had and is likely to have political effects of far-reaching importance affecting our internal policies and our foreign relations.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

NOW HAS A PARIS BRANCH.

Y. W. C. A. Established Under Guidance of British-American Women.

No Young Women's Christian Association has ever been founded in Paris for the reason that no enterprising person with means ever took the matter in hand until a few months ago. It would have made happy all who take an interest in Christian associations to have attended the dedicatory exercises of the newly established British-American Young Women's Christian Association at 5 Rue de Turin, five minutes' walk from the business center of Paris, where, in a private house, with garden in front, at least thirty women can be housed, boarded and well cared for.

This has been done through the activity of Mrs. John J. Hoff, who for several years has stirred up the energy of the American Christian residents of Paris and has produced wonders. On the opening day the sunlit drawing and dining rooms were crowded with American residents who listened to a bright discourse from Mrs. Hoff, a witty speech from John Wanamaker, who has done so much for Christian young men and women in Paris; an address by Mrs. Beach, whose interesting Sunday evening meetings for American students are so well attended, and a prayer by Rev. Dr. Thurber; then tea and lemonade were served, after which every one ran up the two flights of stairs to look at the cheerful bedrooms.

The preamble to the constitution says that the members of this association are actuated by a desire to stimulate interest in the religious development of young women in Paris, to improve their intellectual, social and physical conditions, and to do this there will be classes in French, German, lectures, social and Bible meetings and teas, besides physical culture. The fees for active and sustaining members are $4 a year, and board and lodging from $5 to $6 a week, and any woman of good moral character may be elected as associate member by a vote of the members present at any regular meeting of the board.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Fish Had False Teeth.

H. S. Noble, a well-known traveler, was at the American House, Denver, and with him he brought one of his stories with which he has thrilled the nation—at least that is what he says about them. Mr. Noble, it seems, had occasion, a few years ago to visit near Akron, Ohio, where is located a lake famous for its fishing.

"It was about this way," said Mr. Noble, "and there is no question about the absolute truth of the statements I am about to make. I was fishing in the lake, for fishing is one of my failings. I had not had very good luck so far that summer, and that was two years ago and I was getting just about tired enough to cut it all out and go home.

"On the day in question I received a mighty tug at my line, and after four hours' hard work I landed something in the shape of the largest fish I ever saw in fresh water. I have never been able to learn the name of it. It certainly was an awful fish for size. The jaw of the animal measured some five feet, and in the jaw is the interesting part of the story. On examination the fish had for teeth in its lower jaw a cross-cut saw. When the saw was more closely examined the name of the man who had lost it was found. The saw had been lost in the lake some two winters before by a man who was cutting ice. The fish, which was an old one, and had lost its lower teeth, simply used the saw for a set of false teeth. The saw served its purpose remarkably well. The fish is now on exhibition in the store of a prominent hardware man in Akron."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

DEAF FIND EARS IN PIANO.

Instrument Used with Success in a School for the Afflicted.

Pupils in the Horace Mann school for the deaf in Boston now have the assistance of the piano in lessons taught by a teacher of voice, Mrs. Sarah A. Jordan Monro. She has her deaf-mute pupils give a play, as they have many times before, and in this also the piano is used for drill. Its aim is to overcome the monotone liable in the speech of those who do not hear. With the instrument they can learn inflection and phrasing and acquire a sense of rhythm by repeating to music the "Mother Goose" rhymes.

From feeling the vibrations of the piano as the teacher plays the pupils get an impression of sound as the teacher would have it impressed on them, for they learn the accent of "Jingle Bells" from feeling it in the piano better than they can read it from the teacher's lips, where the force of the accent is not so observable, because the sound is lost to them. Hence the piano serves as ears to these deaf children.

The piano is not the only way to teach sound, but it is the most effective. Until the present system was adopted the pupils followed the teacher in a rhythmic exercise by "stepping out beats" or clapping their hands. But it was still better when they could recite their "Hey Diddle Diddle" to the music in the song books. That would be the performance of a little class. Older ones drill on such verses as "Merry, Merry Christmas Bells." They do not sing these songs, but they make tones in harmony and they recognize a tune after the teacher has played a few measures. To test them she begins "Home, Sweet Home," and the children all smile.

"I am sure," she says, "that they would recognize 'America' if a band were playing it on the street, for they would get the rhythm. They like to sing when it is being played, and once in Tremont Temple, when the pupils were there for public school exercises, they asked if they might join in the chorus, and I let them, and they did much better than people who 'have no ear' for music. They take such delight in the 'Star Spangled Banner' and all those national airs that I think they ought to know them. Pleasure is not, however, the main object of our music. Our serious school work centers around the piano and it is of great importance."

Unlike other schools for the deaf, the Horace Mann teaches exclusively by the oral method and discourages the use of signs and the manual alphabet.

At a Turkish Bookstall

A writer, who spent much of his early life in Turkey, observed that Turkish books and booksellers were amongst the curious features of the country. "The Turkish booksellers," he said, "has a soul above trade. He rarely or never attempts to push his wares, and will cheerfully turn his attention from a likely purchaser to one who (being a lover of literature) merely wishes to talk with him about books. He treasures some of his more valuable books so greatly that he can hardly be induced to sell them, although they form part of his stock in trade. It is only in disposing of the Koran that his commercial talents are seen. There is a law forbidding the sale of this sacred book, because it is essential to the salvation of every Turk, and the bookseller is supposed to give it away. So he does; but in this fashion: You make him a present of fifty piastres, and he makes you a present of the Koran! Many of the books displayed by the bookseller are in manuscript, which the old-fashioned Turks esteem more highly than print."

For the Poor.

A lot of minstrels went to a country town and advertised to give a performance for "the benefit of the poor; tickets reduced to 25 cents." The hall was crammed full. The next morning a committee for the poor called upon the treasurer of the concern for the amount the said benefit had netted. The treasurer expressed astonishment at the demand.

"I thought," said the chairman of the committee, "you advertised this concert for the benefit of the poor?"

Replied the treasurer:

"Didn't we put the tickets down to a quarter so that the poor could all come?"

Assistance.

"Which of these books or periodicals would you recommend?" asked the woman with a pleasant smile.

"Well, lady," answered the boy who was attending to the depot news stand, "it depends. If you want genuine first-class information I'd sell you dis copy of de Sportin' News, but if you jis' wants somethin' to t'row at de Pullman porter I'd recommend dis substantial-bound book—by Herbert Spencer."—Washington Star.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Adding Insult to Injury.

The day had been appointed for the ceremony which was to make one of two, but for some reason best known to the fickle maid she had relinquished the glittering solitaire.

"Oh, well," said the young man in the case, "I don't suppose I could be happy with a woman who dyes her hair, anyway."

"Sir, 'tis false!" she exclaimed indignantly.

"Is it?" he rejoined. "I thought it was only dyed."

A prominent Southern lady, Mrs. Blanchard, of Nashville, Tenn., tells how she was cured of backache, dizziness, painful and irregular periods by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Gratitude compels me to acknowledge the great merit of your Vegetable Compound. I have suffered for four years with irregular and painful menstruation, also dizziness, pains in the back and lower limbs, and fitful sleep. I dreaded the time to come which would only mean suffering to me.

"Better health is all I wanted, and cure if possible. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me health and happiness in a few short months. I feel like another person now. My aches and pains have left me. Life seems new and sweet to me, and everything seems pleasant and easy.

"Six bottles brought me health, and was worth more than months under the doctor's care, which really did not benefit me at all. Declares Eskimos Doomed.

The Rev. Mr. Ryberg, pastor of the First Congregational Church at Nome, urges President Roosevelt to do something toward saving the Eskimo population of Alaska.

"Though they have saved the lives of hundreds of gold seekers," says he, "this kind and childlike race is rapidly passing away. Its members are meeting a sad and undeserved fate. Shamefully neglected by our government, the last chapter of their history is being rapidly written in cruel characters of neglect and want, disease and crime."

The minister declares that the reservations are unsuitable to Eskimos, but that four to six colonies between Point Barrow and the mouth of the Yukon will solve the problem in two years.
