BLAMING THE PRIMARY LAW.

The direct primary law had nothing to do with the defeat of Mayor Williams. On the contrary, it probably secured him a number of votes he would not otherwise have received. If the ticket had been nominated under the old primary convention system he would doubtless have been the candidate and his defeat would have followed with even a greater majority against him.

The direct primary law gives the voters an opportunity to choose their nominees, and in the campaign next year there will be presented the first real test of the direct primary system. Its first effect is the candidacy of Dr. James Withycombe for the office of Governor. Under the old system Dr. Withycombe's candidacy would have been impossible, as neither of the factions would have considered it. He is not the kind of a man the bosses favor, though he would come nearer to uniting the Republican party than any other man that could be named. He stands high in the estimation of the people, is a thoroughly educated man, of good executive ability, and thoroughly conversant with the wants and wishes of the people. As an exponent of scientific farming he has come in direct touch with the agriculturalists of the State, and they have derived great benefit from his services. They recognize this fact, and the further fact that he is willing to announce his candidacy a year in advance of the primaries is conclusive evidence that he courts investigation of his merits and demerits. A man who can stand this test will undoubtedly, if nominated, secure the support of an united party. This is the great benefit to be derived from the direct primary system. It compels candidates for nomination to contest openly for the suffrages of their partisans. they can not depend upon the favor of one or two bosses, but must submit their claims for nomination to the rank and file of their respective parties. Mayor Williams' defeat is no argument against the direct primary law, but it is due notice that in order to defeat the democratic machine which has been built up in this State it will be necessary for the Republican voters to attend the primaries and nominate for state and county officers men who will command the full respect and support of the Republican voters.

OUR EXHIBIT.

The Columbia County booth at the Lewis and Clark Centennial is now in readiness for inspection, and we invite all citizens of this county to call upon us and see what has been done to place this county upon the map. It is a lamentable fact that no county in the State of Oregon is so little known as ours, notwithstanding the fact that no other county in the State is so favorably located or has such great resources. The reason is that it has never before been advertised, and today it is expending less than one half for its exhibits than has been appropriated any by other county represented at the exposition, and we ask that this fact be considered when passing judgment upon the showing that has been made.

Unfortunately there is an element here that is opposed to any expenditure of public money that is not made necessary by the actual running expenses of the county, and the county court pays too much deference to that element. More progressive counties are appropriating large sums for exhibits, and they will surely reap the benefit in increased development, better roads and schools, and every thing that makes for progress and improvement. Some counties have given their agents a free hand and told them to expend whatever is necessary to make a creditable showing. They consider it is true economy to place their resources before the public in such a manner as to secure the co-operation of capital to aid in their development.

However, Columbia County's exhibit is attracting favorable attention and many inquiries have been made by intending settlers in this State. We trust and believe it will accomplish a great deal of good, and again invite the co-operation of the people. We want cherries, strawberries, fruits, grains and grasses of all kinds. They should be carefully handled and nicely packed. All packages weighing less than one hundred pounds should be sent by express when possible, as the hauling from the docks is greater than could be saved by sending in any other way.

Address, E. H. Flagg, section 13, Columbia County Exhibit, Agricultural Building, Portland.

Though farmers in the aggregate employ more labor than any other branch of business, they escape the worry of strikes, as their labor is not unionized. This is something to be thankful for when they cast their eyes toward Chicago and other cities. The eight hour day and the walking delegate have not yet reached the farms, but there is no telling what may happen in these palmy days of the agitator.

BEST MEN WANTED

General Manager Calvin, of the Southern Pacific, has issued an order requiring all applicants for positions with the company too undergo a physical examination. In the employment of trainmen or freight handlers, it has always been understood that healthy, strong men were required, but under the new order, applicants for office positions must also qualify physically as well as mentally, the theory being that a sound body is conducive to better work mentally. There was a time, not so very many years ago, when the railroads as well as other employers of labor were unable to make such a distinction between the different laborers in quest of work. It was a case of take what comes, including persons who, at times, looked to long on the wine that was red. The increasing independence of the employers of labor has been one of the greatest factors in the promotion of temperance among Americans.

The population of the country has increased so rapidly that it is no longer necessary to employ a man who uses spirituous liquor even at intervals. No matter how skillful a railroad man may be when he is sober, the railroad companies no longer take any chances with him if he is known to drink at all. They can secure all of the men needed to operate their trains and run their business who are practically total abstainers, and, as a result, the men who drink must look elsewhere to a steadily narrowing market for their labor. The new order requiring none but physically sound men in the service is perhaps only a continuation of the temperance requirements, in that it is an expression of a determination to get the very best there is in the labor market. The man whose brain is befuddled by liquor cannot give as satisfactory se vice as one who does not use intoxicants and the man who is physically imperfect cannot, as a rule, prove as satisfactory as the one to whom Nature has been more kind.—Oregonian.

SHORT BITS.

If the people under a free form of government will not provide themselves with a good government, they will fail to get it from any other source. Philadelphia illustrates the point.

The farmers of Oklahoma and Kansas have given assurance to Secretary Shaw that in the event of financial distress coming to the government they will take care of the deficit.

Mayor Weaver proceeds on the idea that he is mayor of Philadelphia and that his authority in the town is stronger than that of the bosses. It is a sound proposition, but needs sand—in Philadelphia.

If the Democrats expect that President Roosevelt and Secretary Shaw will meet the treasury deficit by issuing bonds they will be disappointed. Rather than do this, the President will resort to the extremity of selling his collection of bear skins.

It is hard to realize that the Rojestvensky fleet that held the front of the stage for so many months no longer exists, and that it was wiped out in a single night. If all the armada coast could be grouped, the footing would be stupendous.

An American boat not only won the race across the Atlantic, but made the best time for a vessel of its class by nearly two days. Our merchant marine would lead the world if given the same encouragement that is bestowed on foreign shipping.

Complete election returns of the Portland election give Dr. Harry Lane a plurality over George H. Williams of 1217 votes. Lane received 7587 votes, Williams 6370, Schrader, Socialist, 451, and Paget, Prohibition, 272. Lane has a majority of 484.

Lynching, as a national industry, seems on the wane. The mobs kill a victim here and there, but the decline in the crimes leads to hope that eventually the shocking form of barbarism may be stamped out. It is peculiar to the United States, no other civilized country seeming to find it necessary to abrogate the law in the punishment of evil doers. Crimes against life constitute the most serious blot upon our national character, and no reform is so badly needed as the reviving of general respect for the majesty of the law.

There is a fallacy in the argument which justifies big navies on the ground that they insure peace by warning other nations not to attack. But could not the same end be reached by a general agreement among nations to keep no warships at all. Then none could attack with these monsters, and, therefore, no nation would need them for defense. The same argument applies to armies. If abolished entirely all nations would be on an equal footing in this respect and the dangers of war reduced to a minimum.

Sheriff Ward had the opportunity to practically test the new whipping post law when big, burly Charles McGinny was convicted. He was sentenced to receive 20 lashes. McGinny is the first to be convicted under the new state law and shortly after the court pronounced judgment the punishment was administered by one of the deputy sheriffs under Ward. A cat o' nine tails was used on the bare back of the victim who quivered under the strokes as they fell upon him. Each stroke brought blood. McGinny now knows the full effect of the whipping post and will never again try to secure his wife's earnings by beating her.

AN EXCELLENT EXHIBIT.

The Oregon educational exhibit at the Lewis and Clark Fair is a credit to the college and public school system of the state, and to the industry and intelligence of professors, teachers, students and pupils. The college exhibit, except that of Pacific University, is not yet complete, but even in their unfinished state those of the University of Oregon, the Oregon Agricultural College and those of a number of smaller colleges are highly creditable. The Catholic exhibit is also attractive in a way peculiar to itself, and shows an infinity of detail and of careful direction of the educational ideals of the institutions of a great ecclesiastical body.

But it is the public schools' exhibit that represents the democratic idea in education and makes plain the opportunities for practical instruction in the morning of life that is within the reach—without money, without price—of every child in the state, and, for that matter, in the United States. This showing is by no means confined to the work of the public schools of Portland or of Oregon. Many towns in different sections of Oregon and of the Northwest share the honors that come from this presentment of the work that children are doing in the public schools.

There are many exhibits at the Fair of which the people of Oregon may be proud. The grand panorama of the Fair as a whole, with its magnificent settings of green hills and shimmering waters its glimpses of beautiful homes, its profusion of flowers, its stately architecture, and its snow-capped mountain peaks in perspective, inspires more than admiration. The exhibits throughout are educational in their nature and purpose. But the school exhibit is especially significant of the intellectual development of the Pacific Northwest, and as such will attract special attention.

Oregon was unfortunate in her educational exhibit at St Louis. Those to whom the task was delegated were inexperienced in the work, while the material furnished was not of the best, in many respects. It devolved upon our educators therefore, to redeem themselves, their schools, methods and results, from the slur that was cast upon them at St. Louis. It may be said even thus early in the progress of the Exposition that they have risen to the importance of the occasion and have met the opprtunity offered. We are proud of our schools. Let us not neglect any chance to introduce our Summer visitors to them as they appear in modest dress parade on the second floor of the Oriental building, inviting inspection.—Oregonian.

THE ANIMAL'S PICNIC.

Three animals held a picnic
Beneath a huge oak tree;
A dog was there, and an elephant,
And a long-limbed chimpanzee.
"I've heard it said," quoth elephant,
That a trunk is on each tree,
But where it is on this one
I'm sure you may search me."

Then out aloud the dog spake,
Saying: "Friends, you please will bark,
And tell me if you ever hear
This silent oak tree bark;
For I have heard that all trees
Have barks just like us dogs,
Though I have failed to hear it
In saplings, trees or logs."

"And let me ask this question,"
Broke in old chimpanzee;
"I've heard it said that legs and arms
Grow forth on every tree.
The people speak of them as limbs
Instead of legs, you know;
But I can't find on this oak tree
Such limbs as on me grow."

"Nor have I ever felt a heart
Beat throbbing in its shell,"
Spoke up again the elephant,
"Tho' you will hear folks tell
That trees have hearts as well as men:
But to that I don't agree,
For no one ever found a heart
Inside a wooden tree."

The dog sat down and sadly smiled.
"Tis a fairy tale," he said;
"Aye, aye," agreed the elephant,
As he wisely shook his head.
"Tis all a fake," spoke chimpanzee,
"And folks should not so blunder.
And will they ever know the truth
About a tree, I wonder?"

DO YOU WANT TO SELL?

If you have a farm for sale there is no better place to advertise it than in the Mist's special Lewis and Clark edition of five thousand copies of an eight page illustrated paper. It will go directly into the hands of the homeseekers from the East. We wish we could print 100,-000 copies of this paper, as we believe it will do the county a great deal of good. The illustrations will be numerous and the descriptive matter written with great care, mainly by residents of the particular neighborhoods described. Single copies will be mailed to any address at 5c per copy.

Cures Old Sores.

Westmoreland, Kans. May 5, 1902: Ballard Snow Liniment Co. Your Snow Liniment cured an old sore on the side of my chin that was supposed to be a cancer. The sore was stubborn and would not yield to treatment until I tried Snow Liniment, which did the work in short order. My sister, Mrs. Sophia J. Carson, Allensville, Mifflin Co. Pa. has a sore and mistrusts that it is a cancer. Please send her a 25c bottle. Sold by A. J. Deming.

Dying of Famine.

is, in its torments, like dying of consumption. The progress of consumption from the beginning to the very end is a long torture, both to victim and friends. "When I had consumption in its first stage," writes Wm. Myers, of Cearfoss, Md. "after trying different medicines and a good doctor, in vain, I took Dr. King's New Discovery, which quickly and perfectly cured me." Prompt relief and sure cure for coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchitis, etc. Positively prevents pneumonia. Guaranteed at St. Helen's Pharmacy, price 50c and $1.00 a bottle. Trial bottle free.

A substation of the Portland postoffice has been established on the grounds of the Exposition, near the main entrance for the accomodation of visitors at the Fair. The station is equipped completely and visitors may receive their mail there, puschase money orders and mail letters.

A Bad Scare.

Some day you will get a bad scare, when you feel a pain in your bowels, and fear appendicitis. Safety lies in Dr Kings New Life Pills, a sure care, forall bowel and stomach diseases, such as headache, biliousness, costiveness, ect. Guaranteed at St. Helen's Pharmacy only 25c. Try them.

Early visitors at the Lewis and Clark Fair have been surprised to find that the hotel and boarding house keepers are making very reasonable rates for Fair visitors. The charges in most cases are but little above those ordinarily in effect. Portland is unusually well supplied with restaurants, and prices for food have not gone up at all.

Acute Rheumatism.

Deep tearing or wrenching pains, occasioned by getting wet through; worse when at rest, or on first moving and in cold or damp weather, is quickly cured by Ballard's Snow Liniment. Oscar Oleson, Gibson City Ill. writes Feb. 16, 1902: "A year ago I was troubled with a pain in my back. I soon got so bad that I could not bend over. One bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment cured me," Sold by A. J. Deming.

A careful estimate made by a Portland florist places the number of roses now in bloom in Portland at 10,000,000 while other estimates are twice as high. The Lewis and Clark Exposition grounds are decked with fragrant blossoms which are found everywhere in great profusion. The magnificence of Portland roses has been a source of great astonishment to early visitors from the East.

That Tired Feeling.

If you are languid, depressed, incapapable for work, it indicates that your liver is out of order. Herbine will assist nature to throw off headaches, rheumatism and ailments akin to nervousness and restore the energies and vitality of sound and perfect health. J. J. Hubbard, Temple, Texas, writes, "I have used Herbine for the past two years It has done me more good than all the doctors. It is the best medicine ever made for chills and fever," 50c. Sold by A. J. Deming.

The Herald of Eureka, Cal., will send a party of five to the Exposition in August, paying all the expenses of the party for a period of ten days. Those who will enjoy the generosity of the Herald will be the most popular saleswoman the most popular city teacher, the most popular postal employee, the county teacher who receives the most votes, and the most popular lodge member. Valuable prizes are offered also for those who stand second in the contests

Huge Task.

It was a huge task to undertake the cure of such a bad case of kidney disease as that of C. F. Collier, of Cherokee, Ia. but Electric Bitters did it. He writes: "My kidneys were so far gone I could not sit on a chair without a cushion; and suffered from dreadful backache, headache, and depression. In Electric Bitters, however, I found a cure and by them was restored to perfect health. I recommend this great tonic medicine to all with weak kidneys, liver or stomach. Guaranteed at the St. Helens Pharmacy; price 50c.
