COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

THE WAY TO VICTORY.

In Tuesday's Oregonian we find the following item:

Contractor J. B. Tilletson, who is erecting the elevated roadway on East Taylor street, between East Water and Union avenue, yesterday morning discharged all his nonunion crew and employed a full force of union men on the job. He made this change for the reason that the crew were making altogether too slow progress to suit him, only three rows of piles having been driven in a week's time.

It furnishes an excellent text for an essay on the subject of unionism and clearly points the way to victory for all labor organizations. A member of a union should be, as a rule a better workman than a non-union man, just as a member of a grange should be a better farmer than one who holds aloof from that organization. Unions should be technical schools in which all knowledge of methods should be common property. Instead of meeting for the purpose of listning to windy agitators, denouncing their employers, and adjourning to the nearest gin mill, they should meet to discuss the best methods of making their members good workmen and indispensable to their employers. Contractor Tillotson has given the best possible proof that he considers a crew of Italian carpenters preferable to a non-union crew, and we have no doubt this applies to other unions. Yet he will probably find individuals among his new crew inferior to some whom he discharged. It should be the business of the carpenters and other unions to see that the inferior men are, as nearly as possible, brought up to the standard of skilled workmanship. By pursuing these methods and following out the excellent principles inculated in their printed constitutions and by laws the union men of Portland will win back the esteem of the general public and achieve glorious victory. Strikes are war, and "war is hell," and means loss for both victor and vanquished.

THE OREGONIAN AND MR. LADD.

The Portland Oregonian has opened its batteries against Mr. Wm. Ladd because that gentleman is part owner in the Oregon Journal, and it has no use for any one who assists in breaking the monopoly it has enjoyed for so many years. The Oregonian is a great paper, with an excellent news service and as able editorials as can be found in any newspaper in the country. The great objection to it is that it has always used its power without mercy to crush those who had the temerity to oppose it. It has not done this from principle, because when it found it was unable to crush a man, it was willing, as in the case of Senator Mitchell, to withdraw and become a part of his machine. It did not do this honestly and sincerely and when the senator became involved in the meshes of the law it immediately dug up the hatchet and used its news and editorial columns to embitter public opinion against him.

Whoever started the Journal is entitled to the gratitude of the people of the State of Oregon. Its existance breaks up the most intolerant newspaper monopoly ever known. It has compelled the Oregonian to pay some attention to public opinion, and has given the public a medium for expression of views that were heretofore suppressed. If Mr. Ladd did this he deserves credit. It was high time for something to be done. As to Mr. Ladd's financial transactions, they are probably neither better nor worse than they have been for years, and it is safe to say that were it not for the fact that he has "entered in" to the newspaper business the Oregonian would have been silent regarding them. There is still room in the Portland journalistic field, and we hope that in the near future a strong Republican paper will be established.

The people of Oregon can not afford to neglect the enforcement of our state laws regulating the speed of automobiles. We find the statement in a New York paper that the number of persons killed by automobiles in the United States last year was greater than the number of American soldiers who were killed or died of gunshot during the Spanish war. The vital statistics of New York show that 1040 deaths resulted from automobile accidents in that state last year. It has become necessary to resort to extraordinary measures to keep automobilists from running at a dangerous speed. In a village near Chicago there is a curve around which automobilists persisted in running at a high rate of speed to the terror of residents who had to use the road. As fines proved of no avail the local authorities have built a brick street crossing at that point which rises above the level of the street. An automobile which is running at a safe rate of speed will go over the crossing without much jar, but broken springs and other casualties are likely to happen to machines which strike it at a high rate of speed. The Breeder's Gazette says the effect of this "crossing" has been so salutary that many others will probably be constructed.—Agriculturist.

SHORT BITS.

The Asiatic cholera is coming to the relief of the daily papers.

The war has been fully as beneficial to Russia as to Japan.

Only a few more weeks of the big fair. Don't miss an opportunity that may never recur.

Watch Columbia County grow.

Don't fail to visit Columbia County's exhibit at the Fair. We are willing to have it compared, so far as the quality and variety of the product is concerned, with any county in the State.

The right of woman to an equal show in framing the laws she must obey has never been seriously disputed, and that which is right will eventually be found to be expedient.

Columbia County's exhibit at the Fair is constantly improving. It rests with the farmers of the county to keep up the good work. We want apples, pears, peaches—and all kinds of fruit and big vegetables.

It is safe to say the experts have found nothing in Columbia Count'y books reflecting discredit upon the county officers. There is no better managed county in the State of Oregon than Columbia, yet it is true that eternal vigilence is the price of liberty.

Mr. Witte is probably sorry he did not ask the Japs to surrender Port Arthur. He probably could have induced them to do so.

The next war will be between the Oregon State Lewis and Clark Commission and the Portland fair corporation. It is now on.

The Mist was the first paper in Oregon to print the truth about the Portland Fair corporation. The facts have been in the possession of the Portland papers for some time, but they were afraid to give them publicity.

If Mr. Mitchell keeps up his lick until after the June election he will have Ananias distanced. And he will keep it up. Mr. Mitchell will make charges any and everywhere except before a grand jury, and there he is as dumb as an oyster.

The Register promises to make it interesting for the Republicans who voted for Judge Hattan. The Mist did its best to defeat Hattan, but it is willing to admit that he is making a good judge and trying to keep his ante-election promises.

Elisha Applegate found fault with our form of government for the reason that there are not enough offices to satisfy the demand of the office seekers, but at the rate at which public offices are being multiplied the real danger seems to be that they will get too numerous, and, with the civil service system we will have fastened upon us a set of barnacles whom it will take drastic measures to get rid of.

and beaten in a labor riot, until covered with sores, a Chicago street car conductor applied Bucklins Arnica Salve and was soon sound and well. "I use it in my family, writes G. J. Welch of Tekonsha, Mich, and find it perfect." Only 25c at Perry & Graham's.

Only six weeks more remain of the Lewis and Clark exposition period. The big fair will close October 15. Nearly everyone who visits it goes home advising his friends to take advantage of the opportunity to see this wonderful exposition before it is too late. When President Francis, of the St. Louis fair, visited Portland two weeks ago, he urged the people, in a public address, to attend the big show for their own pleasure and benefit. "If you do not," he said, "you will regret it only once, and that will be all the rest of your life. You will begin regretting it as soon as the fair has closed its gates. This is the opportunity of a lifetime."—Independent.

A NOBLE ACHIEVEMENT.

The result of the peace conference must stamp Theodore Roosevelt more than ever in the world's estimation as a statesman of preeminent ability. The conception was brilliant, and the splendid results have been worked out with masterful sagacity, tact and determination.

No other ruler could have done it. France, the ally of Russia, and Great Britain, the friend of Japan, were clearly disqualified from the role of mediator. Emperor William would have been regarded with distrust by Japan and probably by Russia as well. In no other country was there inspiring statesmanship of an order calculated to harmonize the seemingly irreconcilable relations of the belligerents. The exalted duty of silencing hostile cannon and sending joy into more than a million homes fell upon the United States, and it should be a source of gratification to every American citizen this morning that this country had called to the White House a man who was capable of performing the sublime task.

There never was a time when an American citizen had such good reason to dwell with patriotic pride upon his citizenship. There never was a time when the flag spoke of higher dignity or commanded greater respect. As it was said of Washington, that he was "first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen," so now may it be said of the United States, that if not first in war, it is first in peace and first in the hearts of the people of the whole civilized world.—Spokesman-Review.

THE PEACE OF PORTSMOUTH.

Portsmouth has written its name beside Utrecht, Ghent, Vienna, Paris and the half a dozen other places, small and large, in which peace has been brought between great nations. Let us hope that that portion of the adjustment which divides up Saghalien between Russia and Japan may not render the peace of Portsmouth as short-lived as was the peace of Amiens, a century ago. As in almost all adjustments which bring wars to an end, each side conceded something at Portsmouth. Japan started out by making a list of demands which startled Russia and which surprised the world. The demands, however, were such as any other power in her place, with the possible exception of the United States, would have made. They seemed necessary, from her viewpoint, to compensate her for the expenditure which the war brought, and to insure her a peace that would stick. Naturally, Russia opposed Japan at every point in the conference. Russia conceded seven points, however, and Japan was obliged to recede on four stipulations.

Japan gains control of Korea, gets a lease of Port Arthur and Dalny, as well as the whole of the Liao Tung peninsula, which she will undoubtedly make perpetual: forces Russia to get out of the remainder of Manchuria, hands over that province to China, compels Russia to recognize the integrity of China, and gets, on the Siberian coast, the fishing privileges which she has sought. On the other hand, Japan gets no indemnity, and she gains only half of Saghalien, Russia retaining the rest of the island. Japan's demands for the surrender by Russia of all the Russian interned vessels and the limitation of Russia's naval power in the Pacific are given up. While Japan has not secured all that she asked in the conference, she gets more than she demanded at the beginning of the war. Russia is down and out of Mancouria for good. This would have satisfied Japan previous to the beginning of hostilities. It was the refusal of Russia to keep her promise to evacuate that incited Japan to attack her. Not only has the Mikado's people freed Manchuria from Russian control, and thus removed a menace to themselves, but they have gained a foothold in Manchuria for their own country have won a protectorate over Korea, and have saved China from dismemberment, except as they themselves may want to dismember it, metaphorically or actually some time in the future.

Except in giving up its demand for a money payment from Russia, Japan's concessions count for little. Saghalien will virtually be Japanese territory throughout. Japan's presence on one end of the island, and the absence of all Russian power anywhere in the vicinity, will make its complete conquest easy for Japan at any time if war should be renewed. The interned Russian war vessels are, for the most part, antiquated craft. The limitation of Russia's fleet in Pacific waters has been obtained through the work of Togo and his subordinates, even though Togo's countrymen failed to insist on it in the peace conference. There is no Russian fleet to vex the Pacific or any other waters. Russia will need a fleet in the Baltic before she thinks of putting one in the Pacific. For a generation at least Japan will be easily supreme, so far as regards possible menace from Russia, from the Yellow sea to the sea of Okhotsk. Japan's ocean fighters settled this detail long before Japan's plenipotentiaries started from Tokio on their journey to the United States. Oyama and Togo may mourn because their occupation is gone, but the world at large particularly Nicholas II and the rest of the incapables and reactionaries who brought on the conflict, will rejoice that the work of destruction is over.—Globe.

Are You Engaged?

Engaged people should remember, that after marriage many quarrels may be avoided by keeping their digestions in good condition with Electric Bitters. S. A. Brown of Benneteville, S. C. says: "For five years my wife suffered intensely from dyspepsia, complicated with a torpid liver, until she lost her strength and vigor, and became a mere wreck of her former self. Then she tried electric bitters, which helped her at once, and finally made her entirely well. She is now strong and healthy." Perry & Graham sells and guarantees them at 50c a bottle.

ABSCESS

ABCESSES, with a few exceptions are indicative of constipation or debility. W H Harrison, Cleveland, Miss. writes, Aug 15 1902: "I want to say a word of praise for Ballard's Snow Liniment. I stepped on a nail which caused the cords of my legs to contract and an abscess to rise in my knee, and the doctor told me that I would have a stiff leg so one day I went to J. F. Lord's drug store—who is now in Denver, Colo—he reccomeded a bottle of Snow Liniment. I got a 50c size and ic cured my leg. It is the best in the world Sold by A. J. Deming.

OBITUARY.

DIED—At the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Beaver, of Warren, on Friday, September 1st, of inflamatory rheumatism, Lillie June Beaver, aged 21 years, 2 months and 11 days.

Miss Beaver was born and raised at Warren, and was a general favorite among the young people and highly esteemed by all, for her many estimable qualities. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Lew Davies, of the Evangelical church, of which Miss. Beaver had been a member since her childhood. The remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at Scappoose. Mr and Mrs. Beaver have lost six children by death, and Lillie was the last one remaining at home, a circumstance which makes her loss more than ordinarily painful to her parents, who have the heart-felt sympathy of the entire community. The attendance was quite large, attesting the esteem in which the young lady was held.

Like Finding Money

Finding health is like finding money, so think those who are sick. When you have a cough, cold sore throat, or chest irritation, better act promptly like W. C. Barber of Sandy Level, Va. He says: I had a terriable chest trouble, caused by smoke and coal dust on my lungs; but, after finding no relief in other remedies, I was cured by Dr. Kings New Discovery for Consumption, coughs, and colds. Greatest sale of any cough or lung medicine in the world. At Perry & Graham store; 50c and $1.00; guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

JERSYS AND HOLSTEINS AT THE SHOW

The breed of Holstein-Friesians will make a great display at the show and in the point of numbers has made more entries than there are of any other breed. P. A. Frakes, the Oregon breeder, will show 14 head; the Hazelwood Co., of Spokane, Wash., 20 head; Pierce's noted Riverside herd, Stockton, Cal., 30 head; R. M. Hotalling, San Auselmo, Cal., 21 head, and John B. Irwin, of Minneapolis, Minn., 16 head, these herds include a number of the most famous representatives of the Holstein-Friesian breeders in America.

The Jersys follow close behind the Holstein-Friesians in point of number, with about 90 entries. Naturally a much larger proportion of the Jerseys than of the Holstein-Friesians, will be shown by Oregon breeders. The Ladd-Estate's Hazel Fern herd will be represented by 23 head; Harry West will show 9 head; D. H. Looney, 14 head; Atkinson Bros., 8 head; Altman Bros., 8 head; O. F. Martin, 10 head; McConnell Bros., 3 head; John Schoop, one, and Dr. E. C. Still, of Missouri, 18 head. Dr. Still's herd includes the famous one formerly owned by J. E. Robbins, and includes many notable prize winners. The exhibition of Jerseys will be superb in quality.

Beautiful Women

Plump cheeks, flushed with the soft glow of health and a pure complexion, make all women beautiful. Take a small dose of Herbine after each meal; it will prevent constipation and help digest what you have eaten. Mrs. Wm. M. Sirond, Midlothian, Texas, writes, May 31 1901: "We have used Herbine in our family for eight years, and found it the best medicine we ever used for constipation, billious fever and malaria. Sold by A. J. Deming.
