There is much talk and much writing nowadays about roads and canals. The automobile has made goodroads imperative and we will have them by and by. A contract for deepening the Dismal Swamp Canal has been let. What a leap has been taken in labor-saving machinery since that canal was first projected! Now the steam shovel and the dredge will do labor of thousands of men. This canal is to be made a waterway for ships between the Chesapeak Bay and the Carolina Sounds. May it not be the much talked of inception of a land protected shipway from Florida to New England, of vital use in commerce or in war?

Just before the Civil War, this country was fourth in rank of wealth. England, France and Germany then outranked the United States. Now our wealth exceeds that of any two of them and our manufactures all three of them.

This season a man was mistaken and shot for a squirrel in Maine, another for a deer in Wisconsin, and a third for a bear in Montana. The season is not half over and there are several other specimens in the fauna of the woods that might be mistaken for a man by quick-on-trigger hunters.
