COBERTS SUICIDE—R. Kennedy, aged 32 and unmarried, committed suicide by shooting himself through the temple, at a room at the Grand Central hotel, Clatskanie, at about 4 o'clock Monday morning and was found with a revolver in his hand, lying across the bed, by the hotel proprietors when they broke the door in at 8 o'clock. Kennedy had been a sufferer from severe headaches for some time and was under the care of a physician, but was well enough to follow his trade as an engineer most of the time. Saturday and Sunday he took large doses of quinine, hoping to gain relief, which, it is supposed, caused temporary insanity, as from plans for the future communicated to friends, it is shown the act was not premeditated. At about 11 o'clock Sunday evening he went to the room of G. D. Sutherland, one of the proprietors, and asked for a revolver, saying some one was trying to kill him, but Mr. Sutherland told him he was sick and to go to bed. He went up stairs and shortly afterward a shot rang out, which aroused the household and crashed through the door of a room on the opposite side of the hall. He was heard moving around the room and everyone was afraid to attempt to go in, for fear of being shot. At 4 o'clock two more shots were fired, which evidently caused his death. Deceased was a prominent young man of Clatskanie where he had made his home for the past seven or eight years. He was also a Spanish War veteran, enlisting in Ohio. Relatives living at Marysville, O., have been notified.

FIRE AT RAINIER—Two buildings well furnished and owned by Mrs. Elsie Davis burned at Rainier early Tuesday morning. The fire, which was in the heart of the city, caused considerable excitement and only valiant fighting on the part of Rainier's three fire companies saved the entire business portion. One building was used as an amusement and dance hall, and the other as a lodging house. Four women and a baby were the sole occupants of the lodging house. Mrs. Davis was partly suffocated and fell to the floor in a swoon before she was rescued. One woman is in a critical condition from fright and exposure. The two buildings and furnishings were insured for $2500, which will defray a small part of the losses which are roughly estimated at $7000. Origin of the fire is unknown.

GRANGE WORK

The Good Work Accomplished by the Organization.

From an address delivered by Dr. James Whiteycombe at the Columbia County Pomona:

"Grange work during its earliest history in Oregon, as in other states, was characterized by ill-advised attempts to control the immutable law of supply and demand. The ordinary merchant was regarded as a user in appearance in the field of commerce, thus the grange through co-operative stores undertook to eliminate the middleman. The plan was to sell direct to the consumer and purchase from the manufacturer and importer; by so doing it was thought that competition would be removed and prices sustained. While this sounded good in the theory, it is needless to add that in practice it proved to be a dismal failure.

"Without doubt the greatest work of the grange has been along educational lines. It was wholly due to the direct influence of the grange that the State Agricultural College was placed upon its plane of usefulness. Thus through the well-directed efforts of such men as R. P. Boise, J. Voorhees, Wm. Hillary, and others, the grange became the parent of industrial and agricultural in education. Later through the influence of the grange an appropriation was secured for farmers' institutes, which have been a potent factor in bringing about improved farm conditions. Were it not for the grange it is doubtful if the farmers' institutes and the demonstration train would be known in our midst. The rural telephone is a creature of the grange. In fact, practically every agricultural reform is due to grange influence. In national reforms relating to agriculture the grange has been a lively factor. Perhaps the most conspicuous work of the grange in national legislation is the rural mail delivery. To this may be added the pure food law and the elevation of the commissioner of agriculture to a cabinet position, thus giving to agriculture a national recognition commensurate with its commercial importance to the welfare of our people.

NORWEGIAN DAY

Carrying a crew of eighty men, forty oarsmen and forty mariners, an ancient Viking ship will sail from its moorings at Botiel on Lake Washington and take the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition on Norwegian Day, August 30. The Viking has already been launched and it presents a novel appearance. It is patterned after the Viking ship which was unearthed a number of years ago from the King's mound at Gokstad. The ship will carry a king and the crew will be dressed in the costumes of the ancient Norsemen, who were the most dauntless sailors of ancient times. This is but one of the many novel features which the Norwegians have arranged for their day at the Fair. The parade through the grounds will over a thousand people, dressed in the costumes of the various periods of Norwegian history, and fourteen historical and mythological floats.

The first group in the parade will represent the Goths and Vandals, attired in the skins and hides; then will come a float representing a Viking ship. The Valkyries or three noons on block chargers will follow, then Rollo, the walker and spearman or archer; Harold, the Fair-haired; William the Conqueror; Olaf the Saint; and so on down to the peasant girls and boys of modern Norway.

An attendance of over 15,000 Norwegians from all parts of the Northwest is expected by the committee.

THE SHIPWRECKER.

His Life Made Up of Hardships, Adventures and Accidents. The career of the shipwrecker consists of a series of hardships and adventures and accidents and narrow escapes from the first day he enlists with a big wrecking company up to the time he is brought ashore from the grim ship he calls "home" crippled or fatally injured. Of all the professions that demand heavy toll of human life none, not even mining or powder making, is as dangerous as the one of these wreckers. Every year these daring men, who brave storm and wave and tempest to save the stranded liner, to raise the sunken ocean greyhound, to rescue the ship impaled upon rocks and, if nothing else, to save what valuable cargo may be removed from helpless wrecks, meet death by the score. Many of them, exposed often for days and nights to the icy blasts of winter seas, to driving lightning and to drenching storms that bite to the marrow, succumb to pneumonia. Others at work on the pitching, tossing barges have legs or arms shattered during the risky operations of removing masts or of slinging wrecking pumps or other castings that weigh tons. Others have hands or feet so dreadfully frozen that these must be amputated, and still others are wiped out of existence after suffering hours of untold agony and exposure before the eyes of their helpless comrades.—Appleton's Magazine.

To Make Hen Lay More Eggs.

The hen is an innocent creature of limited understanding and fixed habits. It has always been a puzzle why hens invariably cross the road in front of rapidly-moving vehicles, and some people have reflected that the hen may be displaying the same degree of sense in her habit of laying only one egg a day when she might just as well lay two, and the world would be glad to have the doubled supply.

It is contended that the hen carries an ample supply of embryo eggs and could easily do better if it were not for the force of habit. The problem is to break the old habit and to aid the hen in forming a less stungy one.

The Philadelphia Record is authority for the statement that the farmers of Ringtown, Pa., are planning to try a novel scientific experiment on their hens, with the object of fooling them into laying two or three eggs a day.
