MR. SCOTT'S DEATH

The death of the editor of the Oregonian will be felt as a personal loss to all his readers. He was so large, mentally, that when one spoke of the Oregonian Mr. Scott was always in the mind. His work made the paper the great force it has been in the State. No doubt his associate contributed all that was possible as a business manager, but others might have done the same, while Mr. Scott's genius could not have been duplicated. One thing that contributed to his success was his perfect freedom from restraint. For good or evil, right or wrong, he wrote his thoughts, and dressed them in language so plain and pure that none could misunderstand. His career was wonderful. In a small community, in a State remote from the great thought centers, against all adverse circumstances, he made a name second to that of none in his profession and obtained recognition from all the great journalists of the country. He was part of the State he loved, and its citizens, whether his opponents or his allies, will always remember him as the greatest Oregonian of his day.

WANTS INFORMATION

The following letter from Mr. Cordes, of Deer Island, is the kind that every newspaper man should like to receive.

DEER ISLAND, Aug. 9, 1910.
E. H. FLAGG

Dear Sir: You would do me and many others a great favor if you would let us know the history of the candidates for office, if Assembly or Statement No. 1 candidates, in your paper. We do not care for party lines, Republicans or Democrats. We want honest men with backbone. I hope you will tell us the truth.

CHAS. CORDES

Mr. Cordes shall have all the information we can give him, and especially in regard to the position taken by candidates on Statement No. 1. And it is right on this point that many a good citizen is going to make his decision as to who to vote for.

The expression "we do not care for party lines" comes far from meeting our approval, but, in local matters, very nearly expresses the stand to be taken by hosts of voters. The man who votes for Republican Presidents and Congressmen all his life very often fails to pay any attention to the matter of political affiliation when having his say as to who shall be the next County Judge or Assessor.

We'll try to tell the truth. It will certainly be as we see it.

At some time in the near future we will also devote space to a resume of the Initiative and Referendum measures which will appear on the ballot in November.

Recently we have heard a number of complaints from the ladies about the way men are allowed to gather in front of the saloons in the evening. On Saturday when there are a number of people in town the walks will be just about blocked up. Ladies object to threading their way through a group of men, some of whom are very often in an intoxicated condition.

PHILLIP SOBER

(Oregonian, Jan. 25, 1907)

"The virtually unanimous ratifications by the popular choice of Mr. Mulkey and Mr. Bourne for the United States senators marks an epoch in the political history of Oregon. It is not likely that the precedent thus firmly established will be broken hereafter. The time of the legislature will henceforth be devoted to the business of the state; its only concern with the election of senators will be to fulfil the constitutional form by ratification of an antecedent popular choice."

Again the Oregonian said: "This achievement is of fundamental importance and the people of Oregon are willing to believe that in accomplishing it they have received loyal and substantial support from Mr. Jonathan Bourne. His ambition to become a United States Senator is of long standing. He has finally attained it by encouraging and assisting the people of Oregon to break up the political rings which have dominated the state, not always to its advantage, and to take both political power and much of the machinery of government directly under their own control. Mr. Bourne has succeeded in making the people of Oregon believe that he is the unwavering friend of the direct primary, the referendum and the popular election of senators. It was because of this widely accredited devotion to a great principle that Mr. Bourne received his largemajority of the popular vote last June."

Again, in its excellent article the Oregonian said: "Seldom has a body of public men given a finer demonstration of loyalty to American principle than the Oregon legislature gave in ratifying promptly and decisively the popular election of Senators Mulkey and Bourne. By doing this they have acknowledged the fundamental truth upon which our institutions rest, namely, that all power resides ultimately in the people, and whenever the people choose to exercise this power directly it is their right to do so."

Concluding its ratification of Mr. Bourne and Statement No. 1, the Oregonian said: "Our legislators have also acknowledged with noble fidelity to fact and reason that, high as their duties may be, they are but the servants or agents of the people, and that the popular mandates expressed under the forms of law are of binding obligation upon all public officials. We may therefore say without undue insistence upon its importance that the ratification by the Oregon legislature of the popular choice of our senators marks an epoch in the development of free institutions."

Phillip was sober in those days, now that he is drunk he raves against his better self.
