County Official Paper

CHRISTMAS

The Mist wishes all of its friends a Merry Christmas. The year drawing to a close has been a prosperous one and the holiday trade proves that money is by no means scarce. The giving of presents, the return home for the holidays and the general feeling of kindliness that prevails at this season of the year undoubtedly have a beneficial effect, and the telling of the story of the Christ Child and the life of the Man of Sorrows, from the cradle in the stable to the cross on Calvary has lost none of its charm. Poets have made it their theme, and inspired painters have considered its reproduction on canvas their noblest work. There is nothing equal to it for the uplifting of mankind in all the literature of the ages. The dying thief upon the cross believed it and died convinced that he would awake in Paradise. It appealed with equal force to Saul of Tarsus, and from then to now the the religion of Christ has found its believers among and given comfort to all classes and conditions of men. Christlike is the synonym of all that is good, and his birthday is the greatest of the anniversaries. Every nation has its hero whose birthday is celebrated much as we celebrate the anniversary of our national birth, but Christ alone is in the hearts of men of all nations, and even those who class themselves as unbelievers are influenced for good by hearing the story of His boundless love, His suffering and death. Especially is this the children's holiday, looked forward to for many weeks. We hope they may all have their heart's wish gratified, and that many years from now, when their children gather around at Christmastide they may look back with pleasure through a long vista of useful and happy years to the Christmas of 1910.

A CITY'S DUTY

The Mist wishes it could arouse the people of St. Helens to a sense of their responsibility to the young men and boys. As this paper has a good circulation in Rainier we will include that city in our remarks. Neither of these communities is a good place to raise children in or for young men to abide in. Both of them are full of pitfalls and temptations for the young, and neither of them has done anything whatever to offset these temptations. Boys and young men receive no attention from the business men of either community, who seem to have all their attention concentrated on their special business and to have no time to give to what they doubtless consider of no particular interest to them. The ringing of the curfew bell admonishes young children that they must keep out of the glare of the electric lights, but it does not provide for those who are a little older any place where they may pass an evening in harmless amusement. The door of the saloon is closed to minors, but wide open to those who have passed the shadowy boundary between youth and manhood, while the pool and card room, with their gambling features, attract crowds of young men, many of them weak enough to patronize them night after night, to the full extent of their earnings and even beyond. It is said, with some truth, that for the young man without a home there is no place to spend an evening except in his lonesome room, in the public room of the hotel, in the saloon or the pool room. Such a state of affairs is a disgrace to our small cities, and the effect is being shown in the constantly increasing crop of young criminals. From gambling for chips in the pool room to gambling for money in some more secluded place is but a short step. The desire of young people for amusement is natural, and within reasonable bounds it should be provided for. In St. Helens there is no excuse whatever for not providing for the young men a place where they can assemble in the evenings and read the magazines, write letters, or play games under proper restrictions. The room provided by the city for a commercial club room is well adapted for this purpose, and should be utilized at once. If there is no hope of organizing the commercial club and remedying some of these evils, the editor of the Mist will, in a short time, make a personal appeal to the Council and to a number of our citizens, to take up the matter and see what can be done.

SPECIAL GRAND JURY

Gives Three Criminals a Chance to Plead Guilty

A special session of the Grand Jury was held Wednesday and Thursday last a d brought in four true bills: One against John Thomas Watson, for forgery; one against Gust Johnson and Ernest Johnson, for robbing the America's warehouse, and one against George Davis for burglarizing the shoe store of M. Rosenthal of St. Helens.

Davis was the first to plead guilty, and, on account of his youth, was given the minimum sentence of one year in the penitentiary, accompanied by a good lecture from the Judge who plainly informed him that if he did not reform upon gaining his liberty nothing but the penitentiary and possibly worse awaited him. Davis has not shown any signs of sorrow for his crime, but it hoped that a year in the pen will convince him of the unwisdom if not the immorality of his conduct.

The case of Watson had mitigating circumstances. He is the sole support of his mother and sisters. He had been working in a mill or camp near Rainier and had $30 coming to him but could not get his money. Going to his boarding house he found the proprietor's check book laying on the table, and it entered his head to write out the check for $7 and sign the name of Norton, which he did and cashed the ceeck with a saloon man, sending $5 out of the $7 to his mother. He afterwards told the man whose name he signed what he had done and was in the act of squaring the matter with the saloon man when the Rainier Marshal arrested him. Deputy District Attorney Miller presented these fact to the Court, and Judge Eakin gave Watson a parole sentence of two years in the penitentiary. So long as he conducts himself as a good citizen should he will be at liberty to continue supporting his mother and sister, as he has in the past.

Gus Johnson, for breaking into the America's warehouse, was sentenced to serve two years in the penitentiary. Ernest Johnson, who is accused of the same crime, is out on bail and probably will not be tried until the May term of the Circuit Court.

OUR PORTLAND LETTER

Oregon's Metropolis the Mecca for Wool Growers of the United States

PORTLAND, Or., Dec. 20.—When the annual convention of the National Wool Growers' Association opens in Portland January 4th it will be the biggest and most important gathering of sheep raisers in America for years. Questions of vital importance to the sheep industry are to be considered and the future policy of the wool interests will be outlined. According to those high in the councils of the organization, little support for the wool men may be expected either from President Taft or the next Congress. Both, it seems, are determined to lead Schedule K to the slaughter in revising the tariff bill. The friends of the threatened schedule would leave the subject to the Tariff Board, but it is said that President Taft feels that the public expects further tinkering with the rates on wool and woolens and he is determined to accede to their demands.

It is felt by the wool men that their side of the case has never been presented to the public fairly, while on the other hand they charge the agitation that has arisen against them to the mudslinger and muckraker in the sensational magazines.

"Schedule K," said D. O. Lively, chairman of the general arrangement committee, "will be the meat of the cocoanut as far as the convention is concerned. It is the life of the wool trade and when it is threatened the existence of the wool industry is in danger. Wool growers all over the country are alarmed at the rapid advancement of the sentiment for a change in the wool schedules of the tariff."

The program as now outlined includes many speakers of national prominence who will speak on tariff matters and other subjects of vital importance to the wool industry.

A great sheep and goat show will be held in connection with the convention, which meets at the Armory, and prize animals from all over the country will be on exhibition. Breeders and wool men are taking unusual interest in the approaching session and they will attend in very large numbers, it being expected that no less than 6000 people directly interested in the sheep business will be in Portland during the four days of the convention.

James J. Hill played Santa Claus this week by visiting Oregon and promising new railways. Extensions of the Oregon Trunk Line from the present proposed terminus at Bend south through Interior Oregon, the pushing of the United Railways westward to Tillamook and the building of an independent Hill passenger station in Portland were some of the things the Empire Builder outlined.

Oregon may one day have the most beautiful scenic highway in the world, for the new road now under construction to Crater Lake from Medford is said by experts to be superior to any on this continent or through the Alps in the grandeur of its scenery. Road experts of the Government in charge of the work say the new highway will have no superior anywhere and characterize the the work as "Forty five miles of macadamizing through the greatest scenic section of the world."

The Oregon Agricultural College will commence its annual special short courses for farmers on January 3 and the instruction to be offered this year is probably the best since these courses were started several years ago. Experts in the various branches have been secured and the special work will extend over a period of six weeks.

Farmers who work for their money can make their money work for them. The Columbia County Bank proves this.
