County Official Paper

The court decided that the initiative ordinance passed prohibiting stock from running at large in the City of St. Helens was so faulty as not to be effective, and so at the meeting of the council last Monday another ordinance covering the same ground and improved in many ways was passed by the council. This was the only right thing for the members of the council to do. At the recent election when this matter was put to a vote the expression of public opinion was so plain that there was no room for doubt as to the desire of the majority not to have our streets used as a cow pasture. The ordinance that was in effect needed fixing, and the one now on the books is far better than it was. But the main object is to set aside at least the principal streets of the city from the range, of which there are hundreds of acres unfenced within a short distance of town.

The current annual report of President Kerr of the Oregon Agricultural College to the Bureau of Education at Washington, makes interesting reading for the young man or woman wanting a college education. Two new chairs have been added during the past year in highway engineering and rural economies. It will pay, and pay well, for our young people to write President Kerr, O. A. C., Corvallis, Ore., for information about the short courses. Farmer's son especially should attend. This is an age of scientific farm operations. Get out of the old rut and learn what the college has to offer. The correspondence course of business methods is proving itself most valuable and farmers have only to write the same source for information on this subject.

Announcement is made from St. Paul that the following sections and communities of the American Northwest will have special exhibits at the land show to be given in St. Paul in December under the auspices of the Northwest Development League.

Yellowstone Valley, Bitter Root Valley, Lake Region of North Dakota, Galletin Valley, Northern Minnesota, Helena, Mont., Great Falls, Mont., Southern Idaho, Spokane Valley, Northern Idaho, Central Oregon Flat Head District, Red River Valley, Judith Basin, Wenatchee District, James River Valley, The Musselshell District, Western Montana, Sun River District, The DesChutes and Crooked River Valleys, The Black Hills District, of South Dakota.

In addition to these the northwest will be represented by extensive exhibits to be made by the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, the Northwestern Lines and the Duluth & Iron Range Railroads.

Preparation of these exhibits has been under way for months while it has required almost a year for the commissioners to collect the Alaska exhibit.

These special exhibits will supplement the displays to be made officially by each of the seven states and will greatly assist in the realization of the managers to "bring the American Northwest to the prospective home seekers and settlers of the middle west."

While there have been half a dozen so called land show enterprises in the field, all claiming for their object the exploitation of the west and northwest, the communities of the northwest have stood almost solidly behind the show to be held in St. Paul because it is really their own show. Different from any other land show the exhibition of western products to be given in St. Paul is one which the commercial club and transportation companies of the northwest have planned and on which private interests stand any chance of making a cent. The large amount of space in the show has been sold at such a small expense that the management is in a position to spend $10,000 advertising the enterprise to get people to attend and see the exhibits.

The eyes of the world are now on the inhabitants of the Flower Kingdom and the sympathy of all is with them in their attempt to overthrow the Manchurian dynasty. The present uprising is far different from the many attempts at resistance made in the different provinces in the past, and seems to be the result of well laid plans by the members of the progressives of the empire, and being well financed there is hope that it will meet with success.

For nerve the two boys that tried to swear away the life of the Swedish sailor Holmberg seem to have it on anything even in this section. The $5000 reward offered for the apprehension of the murderer of the Hill family looked big, and the young hobo was not at all particular about how they got it, even being willing to sacrifice their only friend.

Perhaps the growth and progress made in this town in the past few years is as well illustrated in the methods used by the merchants in delivering their goods as in any other way. Seven years ago John Winters and his wheelbarrow was the city express and delivery, and while one or two of the stores also had wheelbarrows, they did not do much delivering, and Winters was the main stay in the delivery line. More often than otherwise, if you wanted a sack of flour, the only way to get it was to pack it home. Now all of the stores are up to date in their methods and go out to solicit orders and have good deliveries, while one of them is now using an auto truck for that purpose.
