ELECTRIC

Why not have your house wired for electric lights? It is to your interest, not only for your own convenience but for protection from fire. Over ten per cent of the fires in dwellings last year in the U. S. were caused by kerosene lamps and two per cent from electric wires.

POULTRY HOUSES

Success in raising and keeping fowls, and particularly in getting winter eggs, depends as much upon the poultry houses as upon the stock, their care and feeding. The three essentials of a good house are that it shall be dry, receive plenty of sunshine and ventilation without drafts. Any house that will provide these things should prove successful, no matter what the form of construction or the design.

The first consideration in building a poultry house is its location, according to Farm and Home. It is important to have well drained soil so that the ground around it will be located near the dwelling house, for much of the work of caring for the poultry usually devolves on the woman members of the family. A sunny location, well sheltered from the north winds, is highly desirable.

Dryness in the house itself is the first essential. Next to actual starvation nothing is surer to reduce the egg yield and affect the health of the fowls than dampness in the house. Wet yards mean cold, dirty feet, and this in turn results in dirty eggs and less of them. If the site is not dry, it should be underdrained. In any case the foundation should be high enough above grade to prevent the entrance of surface water. On dry soil a dirt floor may be used, although this becomes foul if not removed and renewed each year. A good double board floor or one of concrete is the best.

Good ventilation is essential, but it must be without drafts. If the building is tight on three sides and overhead with no cracks at the eaves or sill, there will be no difficulty with drafts. If one or more window openings or a part of the front is covered with muslin cloth, it will keep out the wind during the cold weather and at the same time permit a good circulation of air without blowing on the fowls.

Plenty of sunshine in winter and spring is the third essential. This is abundantly provided for in the two compartment house which can be thrown almost entirely open and the building flooded with light, yet there is not so much glass that it will become very heated in the day time, and likewise excessively cold at night. At least 50 per cent of the house should consist of openings covered by glass and cloth.

OUR NEW OFFICERS

The officers elected last Tuesday to carry on the affairs of Government for Columbia County during the next two years are pretty good fellows and each one thoroughly competent to perform the duties of the office to which he has been elected. While we all had some disappointments in the election we will all have to abide by the result and do whatever we can to assist the men elected in carrying on our public business. Mr. W. A. Harris, the new County Judge is so well known by every resident of the county that he needs no introduction. He has served the people in the County Clerk's office for so many years and to the entire satisfaction of the people that his competency and integrity have never been questioned. He has been engaged in the practice of law in this city during the past two years and has been quite successful. He is a taxpayer and thorough business man. No man doubts but that the affairs of this office will be properly administered by Judge Harris. For Representative in the Legislature the people have selected Mr. W. A. Hall of Clatskanie. Mr. Hall is a business man of that city, being in the drug business and has served on the school board and in the city council. At present he occupies the office of Mayor of Clatskanie. His business ability and integrity in public matters is beyond question and no doubt the interests of Columbia County will be properly looked after when the Legislature begins to grind out its large grist of laws and appropriations. H. E. LaBare, the present County Clerk was re-elected practically without opposition. His administration of the affairs of his important office has been so satisfactory that no word of complaint has ever been made by any one. His election was as it should have been, almost unanimous. For Sheriff Mr. A. E. Thompson, the present incumbent was returned by a handsome majority although he was on the ticket of the minority party. During his first term in the office of Sheriff Mr. Thompson has met with many difficult questions but has met each and every one in a manner that showed his ability and willingness to perform his duties, unpleasant though they may be some times. He has made a good and efficient officer and the people decided that he was entitled to a second term. For Assessor Charles Blakesley was the choice of the voters. Mr. Blakesley is the present incumbent, having been appointed to fill out the unexpired term of Mr. Clark who resigned during the present year. No man in the county is better qualified to fill this important office than is Charles Blakesley and the people were not slow in recognizing this fact with the result that he was elected by a good majority. R. S. Hattan, formerly sheriff and county judge of this county, was the choice of the majority to be the custodian of the funds and will occupy the County Treasurer's office during the next two years. Judge Hat-

Columbia County would have been as efficient and satisfactory as it will be under the present state of affairs. Good men were nominated by both parties; good men were elected by both parties and good men were defeated by both parties.
