ent acts, and the event included an intermission featuring desserts made by the high school's culinary class.

"It was a really fun night," said senior Ricki Milner. "There were girls I'd never heard sing solo before and that was fantastic."

She said many of the students work all year to perfect their performances for this show.

In addition to being a way to display students' musical talents, the Cabaret was also a fundraiser for the family of Matt Albrecht, a Silverton High School junior killed in a car crash on March 4. Milner said many attendees donated money above the admission cost to help the family, and one group sang a song in his memory. Kercher is just finishing her fourth year as the choir director and has seen many of her students grow artistically between their freshman and senior years.

"These kids have really taken ownership of the program," she said. "They have pride in what they do."

In April, SHS Choir will compete for a spot at the Oregon School Activities Association's state choir championships. The choir took fourth place in the 5A competition in 2015.
