Music, sausage and more on tap at this year's Wurstfest

CHRISTENA BROOKS SPECIAL TO THE APPEAL TRIBUNE

MT. ANGEL - Six wines, six beers and 19 sausages.

Don't worry, no one was counting what you ate at Oktoberfest last fall. That's the menu at Wurstfest, the upcoming indoor celebration of the German sausage and the indomitable Bavarian culture surrounding it.

The ninth annual Wurstfest starts at Mt. annual Angel's Festhalle at 10 a.m. Friday, Feb. 24 and ends at 10 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 25. Adult admission is $5, or $10 with a specialty beer stein. People under 21, who must be accompanied by an adult, get in free.

Three restaurants – Mt. Angel Sausage Company, Ebner's Custom Meats, and the Urban

German Grill will be serving everything from traditional bratwurst to modern currywurst. On tap is beer by Seven Brides Brewing, Warsteiner and Budweiser, and guests can choose from an array of German and American wines, too.

to Wurstfest's New stage this year is Doppelbach Quartet, a five-piece band of accordion, guitar, drums, saxophone and bass. The musicians play a combination of Oktoberfest polkas, waltzes, yodels and non-traditional blues and boogie. They'll be joined by regulars, the Bavarian Echoes, Z Musikmakers and Oregon Polka Beats. The Engelberg Dancers and Kinder Dancers will round out the entertainment, and a dozen artisans and craftspeople will be selling food, crafts, costumes and jewelry.

Operated by Mt. Angel Library, the popular kindergarten corner will feature a number of childcentered activities such as face painting, soap carving and balloon modeling. There's also story time, coloring and a free book giveaway for every child.

While it's unlikely you'll be tackling 19 sausages alone, you might still want to work up an appetite for the festival's culinary offerings.

Along those lines, all entrants in Race Northwest's Wurst Run 5K run/ walk or 10K run, both of which start at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, gain free entrance, a stein and a drink. Race day registration is

The racecourse navigates the streets of Mt. Angel and offers views of town, Mt. Hood and hazelnut orchards; it includes enough hilly terrain to make runners crave a brat, wurst or side of sauthey've erkraut after crossed the finish line.

Wurstfest is organized by Mt. Angel Chamber of Commerce, with all proceeds benefiting that organization. The event is always held the weekend before Ash Wednesday. All ages of participants are welcome. The Festhalle is at 500 Wilco Highway NE in Mt. Angel.

best way to protect children against vaccine-preventable diseases such as whooping cough and measles," said Stacy de Assis Matthews of the Oregon Health Authority. "It helps keep schools and the entire community safe and healthy."

In 2016, local health departments sent 41,045 letters to parents and guardians informing them that their children needed immunizations to stay in school or child care, according to the health authority. A total of 6,995 children were kept out of school or child care until the necessary immunizainformation turned in.

The history of immunizations in Oregon changed in 2015 with the passing of Senate Bill 895

Under the bill, religious exemptions signed prior to March 1, 2014, were no longer valid. Parents are now required to turn in documentation of immunization or complete a new process for a nonmedical exemption prior to Exclusion Day.

Additionally, schools and children's facilities are required to have immunization and exemption rates available at the main offices, on a website, and for parents on paper or electronic format.

When it comes to nonmedical exemption rates for K-12 students in 2015-16, Marion County had a rate of 3.1 percent and Polk County had a rate of 4 percent. These rates compare to the Oregon rate of 4.1 percent. Dallas Community School had the highest percentage of at least one non-medical exemption in either Marion or Polk counties, coming in at 44 percent.

Bill Conlon, the interim director of the school, said Dallas Community School primarily serves home-schooled children. Conlon said roughly 40 students are on site each week out of the 156 total enrolled. It is common knowledge among the community that many parents are opposed to vaccinations, he said, and the requirements may be one of the reasons those parents decided to home school.

If children are sick, Conlon said, like any other school, they request the child stay home. If the child is sick at school, they contact the parents to take them home as soon as possible, which he said is easier with the school's model and parent agreements than traditional schools can be.

Parents seeking immunizations for their children can contact their health care provider or local health department, or call 211Info — just dial 211 — or go to 211info.org.

No one can be turned away from a local health department because of the inability to pay for required vaccines, according to the release. Many pharmacists can immunize children age 7 and older.

Additional information on school immunizations can be found at www.healthoregon.org/ imm and individual districts' websites.

nance and improvement and cannot be used for staffing or equipment purchases," Saxe said.

Several councilors said they favor adding a local fuel tax because it shifts part of the financial burden maintaining streets onto tourists and those who drive Silroads the verton's most.

"In all cases, a consumption tax is the fairest; it burdens the people who actually cause the damage," Councilor Kyle Palmer.

Along with slurry sealing street surfaces throughout the city with Marion County, the city is moving toward rehabilitating McClaine Street. It requires storm drains, a total roadbed rebuild and new asphalt; the multifaceted project will cost more than $1 million, Saxe said.

"McClaine Street is falling apart," said Councilor Jim Sears, "If we don't deal with the storm drains when we repair the road, we're going to have to spend more money in the long run ... It's going to come back and get us one way or another."

The council also voted to raise sewer rates for commercial and industrial users.

In other business at the Feb. 6 meeting, the council:

» Approved the Tourism Promotion Committee's proposal to spend up to $22,000 to light 22 trees along Main, Oak and Water streets with LED bulbs. The city will fund the installation of the removable lights on European hornbeams, repaying its general fund with transient occupancy tax collections at a rate of $5,000 per year.

» Voted to expand Silverton's Urban Renewal District to include the MillTown Pub and a number of properties in the North First Street area. Formed in 2004, the special district receives a portion of all property taxes levied inside it. Landowners don't experience a change; rather, the district receives a portion of the monies already slated to be collected, to be spent on rehabilitation projects by the Urban Renewal Agency, until it expires in 2024.

» Agreed to pay the Oregon Department of Revenue to collect Silverton's 3 percent tax on marijuana sales rather than requiring city staff to do so. Silverton has one dispensary, Lucky Leaf, on Oak Street, and the taxes it pays won't be made public, in keeping with state law.
